1972 Legislature Opens At Unprecedented Pace

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The 1972 Legislature burst from its starting blocks Tuesday plunging into an opening day of unprecedented activity.

Lawmakers introduced 83 new bills, including more than a score of major legislative proposals, engaged in a contentious debate over a resolution and even dipped into the stack of 123 holdover bills from the 1971 session.

But the latter effort proved futile when senators bumped into a significant constitutional amendment which could point the way toward single board control over institutions of higher education.

Faced With Decision

Faced with a major decision over a proposed amendment to provide for statewide, rather than district, election of members of the University of Nebraska Board of Regents, the Legislature decided to adjourn for the day.

The fast-paced opening day meeting of the second session of the 82nd Legislature lasted one minute short of two hours. Senators will convene Wednesday at 10 a.m.

After seating its single new member, Sen. LeRoy Pfister of South Sioux City, and reaffirming its present rules, the Unicameral's first official act was to approve a resolution congratulating NU Football Coach Bob Devaney, his staff and the Husker team for their Orange Bowl victory and successful defense of the national championship.

Go Big Red

"Big Red has done it again," proclaimed LR1, signed by Sen. E. Thome Johnson of Fremont.

It was approved on a 43-0 vote.

Among the major new bills included in the seven dozen propoals accepted for introduction were measures to initiate a state lottery system, grant personal property tax exemptions, provide for state support of the public school system and increase the state gasoline tax.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff produced a package of bills designed to financially assist the elderly with increased homestead exemptions and discounts for public bus fares and public utility bills.

Penal Reform Bills

The Judiciary Committee tossed in a number of its penal reform proposals, including the bill providing for implementation of a comprehensive reform program by 1974 and a proposed constitutional amendment to authorize bond financing of correctional facilities.

Sen. Gerald Stromer of Kearney sponsored a measure to reduce the age of majority from 20 to 18.

The personal property tax exemption plan (30% in 1973, gradually rising to 90% by 1978) was included in the tax reform package prepared by the legislative tax study committee.

Sen. Calvin Carsten of Avoca urged designation of the green ash as Nebraska's state tree, and establishment of an Arbor Day Centennial Commission funded with $10,000.

Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan produced a bill to establish a Trees for Nebraska program financed during the next fiscal year by a $100,000 appropriation.

The state lottery plan came from Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh, who estimated that the weekly drawings of 50-cent tickets would produce at least $6 million in revenue for the state during its first year.

Carpenter introduced the constitutional amendment proposal directing the state to pay all operational costs for public elementary and secondary schools. Total operational costs for the coming year are about $260 million.

$5,000 Per Teacher

Another measure, signed by Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell, would direct the state to pay each school district $5,000 for every teacher in its system.

Maresh proposed a one cent a gallon increase in the state gasoline tax (to 9½ cents) to provide funding for cities and counties for road and street construction.

An accompanying state aid proposal from the Milligan senator was a constitutional amendment to allow the state to make short-term loans to municipalities for construction of sewage treatment facilities.

Stockpiling Ban Sought

The 1972 session's first floor debate erupted when Carpenter attempted to suspend the rules to get immediate action on LR5, his proposal to instruct the State Liquor Control Commission to prevent dealers from stockpiling beer and liquor in anticipation of a tax increase.

Carpenter said stockpiling could cost the state between $500,000 and $1 million in revenue if the Legislature subsequently enacts LB66, a holdover bill increasing excise taxes on beer and liquor.

His resolution would direct the commission to instruct wholesalers to restrict their orders from retailers to their weekly average from the preceding year.

"Now that we have alerted everyone, we've got to act today or there'll be so damn many orders by tomorrow, they'll run out of whiskey," Carpenter said.

Warnings Sounded

Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha objected to "restricting private enterprise," and DeCamp warned that the resolution would, in effect, be "restraining trade."

But Carpenter said the Legislature did the same thing in 1971 in order to prevent stockpiling of cigarettes prior to increasing the state excise tax on that product.

Carpenter's motion to suspend the rules and consider the resolution immediately failed on a 25-18 vote. It needed 30 supporting senators.

LR5 will come to the floor again Wednesday in the regular course of business.

MUSKIE RUNNING

THE CANDIDATE . . . Sen. Edmund Sixtus Muskie of Maine.

Asks 'New Beginning'

. . . TO CHANGE U.S.

By The Associated Press

Sen. S. Muskie performed the rite of presidential candidacy Tuesday night, declaring in a nationally televised speech that he seeks the White House to lead America in "A New Beginning."

He said President Nixos's administration has failed the nation in the past and "cannot take us to the future."

The front-running contender for the Democratic presidential nomination paid $30,000 to formally announce the obvious on prime-time television.

Announces In Maine

"I have come home to Maine to announce my decision to seek the office of president of the United States," Muskie said in a statement taped Monday at his chilly summer home in Kennebunk Beach.

Muskie's organization purchased from the Columbia Broadcasting System the last 10 minutes of "The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour" to broadcast the announcement. Production expenses brought the total cost to about $32,000.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, who was in New Hampshire, didn't claim he would beat Muskie in that state's presidential primary, but said the favored senator from Maine "is going to know he's been in a really tough fight in this state."

'To Change The Country'

Muskie, 56 and 12 years a senator, said he seeks the presidency "not merely to change presidents, but to change the country.

"I intend to lead — to ask you to make America what it was to Abraham Lincoln — 'the last hope of mankind.' "

"I intend to ask you to try — and to be willing to try again if we fail," Muskie said. "And I intend to ask every one of you to pay a fair share of the costs of a decent society."

Muskie did not mention his Democratic rivals, and said "it would be foolish to blame all the nation's ills on the present administration . . .

Says Nixon Devious

"But government can lead. It can be truthful. And if our present leadership had been candid with the country, if they had been straightforward, we could have done far more than we have.

We have been given 6% inflation, 6% We have been given a continuing war . . . We have bees given 6% inflation, 6% unemployment . . . We have been given rising crime . . .

"An administration that has so failed us in the past cannot take us to the future.

"So this is what I offer and ask of you . . . Not a promise to solve our problems overnight, but a commitment to make a new beginning.

"Ultimately, of course, what is at stake is your future. I am not telling you that I can guarantee the best of all possible worlds. All I am asking is that we pledge a new beginning."

'Not Good Enough'

Muskie said that for a generation, "What we have done has not been good enough . . ." to deal with problems of poverty, education, housing, the environment, health care, employment, crime.

"It is not good enough — indeed it is indefensible — that people are still dying, at our hands, in a war that is wrong, a war most Americans rejected long ago . . .

"Most of us feel the country is headed in the wrong direction. Many feel powerless to stop it.

"To them I say we can do simething about these problems . . . And in that effort, a president must lead."

Douglas Issues Opinion In County Hassle

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

In an opinion released Tuesday, Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas stated that it is illegal for a county official to sell and/or provide services for the county totaling more than $2,000 in any one year.

Douglas rendered the opinion in answer to a request by Commissioner William Grossman.

Grossman had accused fellow-commissioner Robert Colin last September of allowing his Electric Motor Service firm to furnish work and material for Lancaster County and then having the claims for the work filed by another electric firm.

In the opinion, Douglas said that according to state law when the official is "pecuniarily interested in or receiving the benefit of a contract executed by the county" if the pecuniary interest exceeds $2,000 in any one year he is in violation of the law.

Grossman had charged Colin with allegedly doing approximately $1,800 worth of business with the county between the time he became a commissioner in January, 1971, and September when the allegations were aired.

In response to Grossman's question if a county official who provides material and services to the county by providing the same to a third party when they know the services and/or material are for the county, is the official in violation of the law, Douglas said:

"The particular facts would have to be carefully considered, as I am sure that it would have to be shown that the county official in this situation had actual knowledge that material and/or service were intended for Lancaster County."

He further stated that the statute requires that the consideration going to the county official must be in the amount in excess of $2,000 in any one year before the contract is prohibited."

On the basis of an Attorney General's opinion of July 15, 1969, Douglas said, "it would seem . . . that it would have to be shown that this amount of consideration actually accrued to the county official."

In reference to Colin's alleged billing for the material and services through another contractor, Grossman further asked for an opinion on the following:

"When said county official is requested and does provide material and services to the county and bills same through another contractor of his choosing when the total sum in any one year exceeds $2,000 would the county official be in violation of the statute."

Douglas' response to this question was that if the facts are as set out in the question, "there can be little doubt that this conduct would be contrary to a section of the law since the statute refers to a direct or indirect interest."

The statute specifically states, according to the opinion that "no county officer or county surveyor shall in any manner, either directly or indirectly, be pecuniarily interested in or receive the benefit of any contracts executed by the county for the furnishing of supplies or any other purpose when the consideration of the same is in an amount in excess of $2,000 in any one year, and no contract may be divided for the purpose of evading the requirements of this section."

In response to the question if the other situations apply to a county official when he is a major owner and officer in a corporation which does the business, Douglas said:

"It appears that a section of the law specifically prohibits corporations from contracting with a county board in an amount in excess of $2,000 when a member of the county board is an agent, official or employe of such corporation."

Colin at the time the charges were made against him by Grossman said that any work which his firm did on county equipment was done by a legitimate contractor or dealer and that Colin Electric Motor Service "has not done any work directly for Lancaster Manor."

He said if these contractors who were doing work for the county "choose to come to me, then I see nothing wrong with it."

Price Commission To Study Lifting Some Price Controls

Washington (UPI) — Chairman C. Jackson Grayson disclosed Tuesday that the Price Commission will soon begin a study aimed at lifting some price controls and that it is relying on government agents — not shoppers — to report violations of price guidelines.

In a UPI Washington interview, Grayson said he expected some price controls would be lifted by spring and that "the bulk of the control effort will be done this year." But he said a curtailed form of government restraint on prices and wages would still be in force on April 30, 1973, the day the present control law expires.

Grayson said that President Nixon's Cost of Living Council already has begun a study into the possibility of lifting controls and that the Price Commission is about to start one of its own.

But right now, said Grayson, it would be premature to decide whether exemptions from control should be ordered by industry, by the size of the firms, or by product.

Spot Checks

Grayson said the commission was counting on spot checks by the Internal Revenue Service rather than consumer complaints to uncover violations of price guidelines.

He conceded it was unwieldy for consumers to note the price of an item and then walk across the store to check that price with the list of base prices which merchants were required to post Jan. 1.

But he said the commission rejected a dual price system — base and current prices marked on each item—as too costly for the merchant.

Although Grayson said the commision would depend on the IRS for enforcement, he siad it did "want customers to ask questions" if they had reason to believe a price might be excessive.

The major enforcement tool, he said, would be "the spot checks by IRS. And I have requested them to do this, to start a nationwide program to get agents to check prices and to do this systematically on schedule."

'Honor System'

Still, Grayson conceded, the price control program relied mostly on the "honor system"—the same as tax law enforcement.

"There aren't enough people around to monitor every tax return," he said, and "there aren't enough agents to monitor the stabilization program."

—Physicians were placed under more rigid fee increase formulas than other professionals or service people because "one of the most serious inflationary aspects in the economy has been the rise in health care and we recognize that doctors and physicians have had high increases as a share of the national income."

—Some rent increases permitted by the commission might be greater than rent rollbacks ordered by the commission on some properties, "but overall I don't think that is true."

Randolph Claims He 'Never Resisted Arrest'

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The Municipal Court trial of Cleveland Randolph, 18, on charges of resisting arrest in connection with an Oct. 24 city-county jail incident is expected to be concluded Wednesday.

Judge Donald R. Grant recessed the trial until 1:30 p.m. Wednesday for rebuttal testimony and final arguments by legal counsel following Tuesday's day-long session.

Randolph has pleaded innocent to resisting arrest charges and has alleged he was brutally beaten by three Lincoln police officers at the jail.

Incident Investigated

The City Human Rights Commission has investigated the alleged Oct. 24 incident, but public disclosure of its report is being withheld untill judicial proceedings are concluded.

Randolph testified Tuesday he "never resisted arrest" and gave the officers no provocation for the alleged beating.

However, the black youth conceded on cross-examination that his "only thought (during the incident) was not to go to jail."

Following His Arrest

Randolph was charged with resisting officers when they attempted to book him into jail following his arrest on two Municipal Court bench warrants in connection with July traffic citations for riding a bicycle at night without a headlight and with no registration.

He had been brought to police headquarters from Lincoln General Hospital after being released following five days of hospitalization in connection with a motorcycle accident.

Police Sgt. William Jernigan testified Randolph was taken to the jail area fir booking after being told he was under arrest in connection with two court warrants.

'No Way'

"He (Randolph) said he wasn't going to jail," related Jernigan, "and said there was no way we could put him there."

After Officer William Beave, a 288-pound jailor, attempted to lead Randolph into the booking area, Jernigan said Randolph twice "jerked away" and "swung at Beave."

Jernigan said he was pushed in the face by the defendant before Sgt. Leland Frakes got an "arm lock" around the neck of Randolph was was "yelling" and "was swinging his arms and kicking his feet."

Agreed To 'Calm Down'

Frakes testified he released his arm lock when Randolph agreed to "calm down" and enter the booking area in the jail.

Later, Randolph pushed on the chest of each of the three officers, Jernigan, Beave and Frakes — and said, "You're dead," according to their testimony.

Sgt. Kenneth Schacht, the jail booking officer on duty, testified he witnessed part of the scuffle and "saw Beave strike Randolph twice in the mid-section."

Insisted On Calls

The officer testified Randolph insisted on making two telephone calls, but was told he couldn't do so until he was booked in.

He said the defendant twice refused "with profanity" to give routine information for the jail record, but later complied. Randolph was then permitted to make two phone calls.

Randolph, who was booked into jail shortly after 2 p.m., testified he was later released about 8:30 p.m.

'Never Swung'

Is his version of the scuffle, Randolph testified he "never swung at Beave or Jernigan," but later said he "pushed Jernigan in the face after they put an arm lock on me."

He denied "swinging or kicking" at the officers, and said Beave "grabbed me by the right arm and hit me in the stomach several times."

Following his release, Randolph said he sought medical attention "about 1 a.m." for a bleeding nose.

'Scratch Marks'

Archie Martin, who was Randolph's roommate at 859 So. 22nd, testified the youth had "scratch marks" on his neck following release from jail. Randolph complained his arm hurt and had a cut over his left eye, his said.

Earlier testimony indicated Randolph's "badly-sprained left wrist," was still in a splint from the motorcycle accident and a cut over his left eye may have been partially reopened in the jail incident.

During Tuesday's testimony, Patrick Healey, a Lincoln attorney representing Randolph, objected to the introduction in evidence of the two court warrants against Randolph.

Warrants Said Defective

He contended one was "defective for lack of a signature" and the other document contained "extraneous notations."

City Prosecutor Jerry Nelson contended both warrants were valid and were "without any material (legal) defect."

Judge Grant reserved ruling on this issue until later.

FDA Is Studying Drugs

Washington — An over-all review of the safety and efficacy of non-prescription drugs was started by the Food and Drug Administration. Bevan, 2 Pals Accused Of Diverting $21 Million

World News

Philadelphia (AP) — The former finance chairman of the bankrupt Penn Central and two of his business associates were charged Tuesday in criminal warrants with illegally diverting more than $21 million from America's largest railroad.

Dist. Atty. Arlen Specter said David C. Bevan conspired with Wall Street broker Charles J. Hodge and retired Air Force Gen. Albert F. Lassiter and "substantially drained the resources of the Penn Central, contributing to its bankruptcy in June 1970."

The railroad now is undergoing reorganization under the supervision of the District Court. It reported Tuesday a net loss for the first 11 months of 1971 of nearly $248 million. The 1970 deficit was more than $320 million.

Bevan Denies All

Bevan denied any wrongdoing, calling the accusations "incredible" and "a grave mistake." He demanded an immediate trial "so that I can at least be vindicated."

"I have been the scapegoat long enough," Bevan said, referring to the Penn Central's collapse.

The 57-page complaint specifically accused the three men of joining together to cheat and defraud the railroad. It alleged two major schemes:

—A plan to invest more than $21 million in Executive Jet Aviation, Inc., a charter airline based in Columbus, Ohio, and then headed by Lassiter. Such an investment violated a Civil Aeronautics Board ruling that forbade a railroad from controlling an air carrier.

—"Manipulating over $85 million in Penn Central investments" to benefit Penphil, a private investment club formed by Bevan and Hodge, who was the railroad's chief investment adviser.

The complaint said that by the investment in EJA, the three men hoped to profit through a travel agency owned and controlled by them, their relatives and friends.

Penphil's $1.7 Million

The fraud warrant, signed by Common Pleas Judge Ethan Allen Doty, said Penphil made $1.7 million in profits by buying and selling stocks in which the railroad had interests.

Penn Central turstees now are considering a proposal that would wipe out its $21 million investment in EJA for less than $1 million.

The CAB in 1969 fined Penn Central $65,000, largest in its history, for its illegal control of EJA.

The complaint alleges stock manipulation occurred in the dual investment in Great Southwest Corp. by Penphil and the railroad.

Penphil first bought into Great Southwest, a Texas-based real estate developer, pouring in $165,000. Then Penn Central began buying huge blocks that forced up the price of the shares, and Penphil got out with a profit of $212,500, according to the complaint. Penn Central's investment totaled $80 million, and Great Southwest now is valued at less than $50 million.

The complaint also alleges that Lassiter got "dates" for Bevan and Hodge to continue the flow of railroad funds to EJA.

Girls Procured

"The steady flow of Penn Central money to Executive Jet was maintained by Lassiter's procuring of young women to accompany Bevan and Hodge on various junkets in the United States and Europe," the complaint said.

"These women were procured, in the words of one witness, to relieve the pressure that Bevan and Hodge were putting on Lassiter' . . . because of the poor monthly statements of EJA and Bevan and Hodge had to keep pouring money from the railroad every month into EJA to keep it going."

The Penn Central itself has accused Bevan, Hodge, and former railroad treasurer William R. Gerstnecker of an unlawful conspiracy that drove the giant transportation company into bankruptcy — less than two years after the merger of the Pennsylvania and New York Central.

The railroad's lawsuit was filed last April. It accused the defendants of conspiring for personal profit, gain and unjust enrichment" and said monetary damage was at least $66 million.

BELTING OUT SONG . . . Claire Chevalier keeps name in lights.

Singer Claire Chevalier, 27, Keeping The Name In Lights

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil (AP)—A long way from France, a vivacious young singer is keeping the Chevalier name in lights.

Straw hat in one hand, microphone in the other, Claire Chevalier, Maurice Chevalier's grandniece, belts out songs in a nightly show here in sock-it-to-em style.

"There are some things that get in people's blood and never go away. That's how I would describe my uncle's style and songs," Claire, 27, told an interviewer. "When I need a happy song I sing one of his. They're so 'simpatico,'" she said in French-accented Portuguese.

Traveling World

Born in Marseille, Miss Chevalier has been traveling all over the world and singing since she was 17. Maurice Chevalier, who died last week, was her grandfather's brother.

"My uncle helped my career. He gave me good advice. I'm a very nervous person. He showed me how to be calm on stage. He told me: 'Take it easy. Things will fall into place in their own good time,'" he said.

The pert, auburn-haired singer is winding up a three-month engagement at the Rincao Gaucho steak house, where her repertoire includes traditional French favorites, upbeat U.S. popular songs, done in English, and Brazilian hits, sung in Portuguese.

'Control' Needed

"A performer must be in control of the situation at all times," Claire said. "As an artist, you must adjust your performance according to the place you're playing in. Here at the restaurant people in the audience like to participate in the show, so you do numbers where everybody can clap and sing along with me.

"In a night club, though, I sing different song. Michel Legrand, Burt Bacharach — quieter, softer things."

"Do you always sing Maurice Chevalier numbers?" she was asked.

"No," Claire replied. "It depends on where I'm performing. If I think one of my uncle's happy, lively songs would create the wrong mood, then I don't sing it. But if people ask for one of his old favorites, well of course . . ."

Demos Say FCC Like 'Pavlov's Dog'

Washington (AP) — The Democratic party accused the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) Tuesday of constantly favoring the White House over the Democrats like "Pavlov's dog salivated whenever his master rang the bell."

The accusation was made in a 2½-page letter from Democratic National Committee (DNC) general counsel Joseph A. Califano Jr. to FCC Chairman Dean Burch, a former Republican national chairman.

There was no immediate response from Burch.

The letter was the latest round in a four-cornered dispute among the Democrats, Republicans, the White House and the major television networks which may end in the Supreme Court.

Califano, a former Johnson administration White House aide, chided Burch, a Nixon appointee, for what he called studied frustration of Democratic requests for television time under the FCC's fairness doctrine.

Refers To Requests

The letter referred to requests filed with the FCC Oct. 18 asking prime time for the Democratic Party to respond to broadcasts by President Nixon during August, September and October in support of his new economic programs.

"I am writing to protest the commission's failure to act upon that complaint," Califano said, "which involves a matter of urgent concern to the Democratic party and to the nation as a whole . . .

"Unfortunately, when the DNC asserts its rights under the fairness doctrine and the First Amendment, the action of the commission is as predictable as night following day — to delay and deny the DNC complaint, just as Pavlov's dog salivated whenever his master rang the bell."

Califano complained that the FCC has shown a "willingness to give expeditious consideration to complaints by the party in control of the White House while denying such consideration to the party out of power."

'Interference'

In a recent ruling reversing an FCC order giving the Republicans air time to answer a Democratic program answering Nixon, the U.S. Court of Appeals here, in a decision written by Judge Edward A. Tamm, declared "the commission has taken a political role of interference contrary to all of the teachings of administrative decision making."

Since Lawrence F. O'Brien took over as chairman of the Democratic National Committee in early 1970, the party has challenged most presidential TV appearances as being political and claimed a right to time for expressing opposition views.

On July 7, 1970, CBS gave the Democrats 30 minutes to answer a series of presidential broadcasts. The Republicans then asked for time to answer the Democrats and the FCC so ordered.

The appeals court overturned that order in the opinion written by Tamm. A decision is now being pondered, reputedly at White House level, on whether the government will appeal to the Supreme Court.

Nixon's Speech, Politics Coincide

The New York Times

By ROBERT B. SEMPLE JR.

San Diego — In his first public appearance of the new year, President Nixon announced a major shipbuilding contract before some 2,000 happy shipyard workers here Tuesday and, in the process, gave a vivid demonstration of how ordinary presidential business can be made to coincide with political purpose.

The $54.6 million contract, which Nixon announced while standing on a platform in the yard of the National Steel and Shipbuilding Co. here, will provide for federal subsidies to help construct three modern bulk carriers for the merchant marine.

The award is part of Nixon's two-year effort to make the merchant marine more competitive with foreign carriers, and brings the total value of the contracts negotiated between the Maritime Administration and west coast shipbuilders over the last 18 months to $200 million.

The west coast, and particularly California, which is crucial to Nixon's reelection plans, has been hard hit by unemployment, and administration officials believe that the $200 million in new contracts could well mean 15,000 new jobs in shipyard and supporting industries.

Nixon said on television Sunday night that he would make no "partisan" political appearances until after the Republican National Convention next summer. He did not break that rule in deed or word Tuesday, limiting his remarks to a tribute to the importance of trying to be "No. 1" as he put it, in world competition.

But the routine act of announcing a government contract nevertheless gave him — on the same day Sen. Edmund Muskie was announcing his candidacy — a good audience, plenty of free public exposure, a vehicle for portraying his concern for the unemployed in Southern California, and a chance to expound on some of his favorite themes.

"We don't have to be No. 1 in everything," he said.

"But we have to try to be, because whenever a nation or a person quits trying to be No. 1, he ceases, or that nation ceases, to be a great nation."

Companies Can Implement No-Fault Plans, Judge Says

Chicago (UPI) — Illinois Supreme Court Justice Thomas Kluczynski ruled Tuesday automobile insurance companies may implement no-fault insurance plans despite a lower court ruling that found the state's new no-fault law unconstitutional.

He said the full State Supreme Court would consider the constitutionality of the law on Jan. 28. Meanwhile, he said, insurance companies may implement no-fault provisions in their policies "on their own."

Kluczynski ruled on an appeal, filed by the state attorney general's office, of a ruling last week by a Cook County Circuit Court Judge Daniel A. Covelli. Covelli held the law unconstitutional and threatened to hold insurance companies in contempt if they put no-fault insurance into effect.

"I don't say the insurance companies cannot effect no-fault insurance if they want to do so on their own," Kluczynski said.

He said, however, his ruling does not require the companies to implement no-fault provisions.

Kluczynski refused to rule on a second motion by the attorney general's office to postpone an injunction by Covelli prohibiting state officials from spending tax dollars to implement the no-fault law.

He said the full Supreme Court should consider that matter, and Special Asst. Atty. Gen. Stephen A. Milwid withdrew the motion.

Thomas F. Reynolds, chairman of the Illinois Insurance Information Service, which represents some 250 insurance companies, said Kluczynski's ruling enables "insurance companies to honor their contracts under the Illinois modified no-fault law."

Cash-Shy Peace Corps Plans To Reduce Size

Washington (AP) — The money-short Peace Corps began shaping plans Tuesday to reduce its 8,000-member volunteer force by half and to cancel programs in as many as 15 countries.

Joseph H. Blatchford, director of the ACTION agency which oversees the Peace Corps, ordered a halt in signing up volunteers, at least until July 1. Applications will continue to be accepted.

Blatchford instructed Kevin O'Donnell, associate director of ACTION for international affairs, to prepare plans for termination of about 4,000 volunteers now on duty in 55 foreign countries.

Blatchford wants the plans implemented by mid-February so the volunteers can be returned to the United States by the end of March.

There now are about 7,100 volunteers on active assignments overseas and some 800 to 900 in training, most of them in host countries.

Half of Peak Size

The present corps force is slightly more than half of what it was during the peak years of the middle 1960s.

Blatchford took Tuesday's action, it is understood, because Congress not only refused to appropriate the $82 million requested by the Nixon administration but cut funds to a level that one agency source described as "just one step above putting us out of business altogether."

In the last hour before it adjourned Dec. 17, Congress passed a continuing resolution that would give the Peace Corps a budget of $72 million.

The resolution, which expires Feb. 22, was necessary because the Senate did not act on the appropriation bill passed by the House. Both houses passed an authorization bill to give the corps $77.2 million, but the House appropriated only $68 million.

The Peace Corps hopes that when Congress reconvenes in two weeks the Senate will approve the full $77.2 million, and that a conference committee will accept that figure.

Until that happens or unless some concrete assurances are given that the additional funds will be appropriated, the corps must take steps to reduce its personnel and close down programs, because, as one official said, "There is a point of no return when we must use the money we have to bring these people back to the United States."

The new instructions by Blatchford will not affect some 600 highly specialized volunteers who were signed on late last year.

The specialized volunteers include construction engineers and diesel mechanics who are to go to Africa for a road building project, a forestry specialist who also is to go to Africa, and public administrators slated for Latin America.

O'Donnell said he does not know yet which countries will lose entire Peace Corps programs, but added that volunteer forces may be reduced in all 55 countries.

Depending on what countries are affected, it is possible that some 100 to 200 staff personnel will lose their jobs, including both Americans and host nationals.

The corp reduced its staff by slightly more than 100 last fall.

Trial Of 'Harrisburg 8' Is Postponed

Harrisburg, Pa. (AP) — The trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and seven other antiwar activists has been moved back from Jan. 10 to at least Jan. 17 by U.S. District Judge R. Dixon Herman.

At a court hearing Tuesday, Herman said the postponement was due to a delay in assembling a jury pool and to a pending defense motion before the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for a pretrial hearing on electronic surveillance.

The so-called "Harrisburg Eight" defendants are charged with conspiring to kidnap presidential adviser Henry Kissinger, raiding East Coast draft boards, and conspiring to blow up heating tunnels in Washington, D.C.

William S. Lynch, deputy assistant attorney general, had pushed for the Jan. 10 opening date.

Former U.S. attorney general Ramsey Clark, one of the defense lawyers, agreed to an early trial date, but added: "The pretrial hearing is essential to the rights of the defendants."

Meanwhile, the defense agreed to drop motions for suppression of evidence resulting from two FBI searches of defendants' residences in 1970. The government agreed not to use any items seized as evidence or leads to evidence, and to meet with defense attorneys on return of the articles.

The government dropped a motion asking for handwriting samples of defendants, with Lynch indicating alternates were available.

Malta Barred To Navy

London (UPI) — Prime Minister Dom Mintoff of Malta has specifically barred use of his island's facilities by the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean, the Defense Ministry said Tuesday.

It said he also has refused use of the island base and airfield by other North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) forces.

Mintoff took this uncompromising stand, the ministry said, during negotiations over Britain's right to use the base.

The negotiations broke down in the last week of December when Mintoff served a "pay-up-or-get-out" ultimatum on Britain. He demanded payment of another $11 million as "rent" for military bases on the island in addition to $12.35 million already paid by Britain for six months up to March 31.

Deadline Extended

Mintoff at first set a Dec. 31 deadline for Britain to get out. Later, he extended this to Jan. 15.

The Defense Ministry said Mintoff's refusal to let the U.S. 6th Fleet and other NATO forces use the Malta base was not one of the reasons Britain rejected his ultimatum.

A spokesman said the sole reason was that the $46.8 million a year demanded by Mintoff was more than Britain and her NATO allies were prepared to pay.

The Defense Ministry announced that evacuation by air of about 5,000 wives and children of the 3,500 British troops and airmen stationed on the island will begin Saturday.

RAF Transports

They will be flown in Royal Air Force troop transports to Britain. The evacuation will be completed before Jan. 15, Mintoff's extended deadline, a Defense Ministry spokesman said.

New Top Marine Cites Two Problems

Washington (AP) — Gen. Robert E. Cushman Jr. said Tuesday his two biggest problems in ramrodding the Marine Corps for the next four years will be attracting enough qualified recruits and assuring that blacks are treated fairly.

Cushman said that while he had no plans to liberalize traditional Marine discipline, he hopes to make some reforms in the military justice system.

"There's always a problem with military justice — I hope to work on that," he said in his first news conference as the new commandant of the Marines.

"The black Marine often feels it's white justice and that he is not adequately represented."

But, Cushman added, "black Marines should know I have a personal interest in their problems and I care."

Better leadership is needed at the squad and company level and recruiting efforts will have to be stepped up to bring in more black officers, he said.

Figures supplied by the corps show that while 12.1% of the enlisted men are black only 1.25% of the officers are black.

Cushman, who served three years as deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency before he was tapped by President Nixon last month to become the Marines' 25th commandant, said he was confident the Marines would be able to attract enough men even after draft calls are ended. However, he said the problem will be maintaining the quality.

'We'll Get Numbers'

"We'll get the numbers, but getting quality is going to mean very vigorous recruiting," he said.

Cushman said he plans to stick with the Marines' current recruiting drive which is aimed at attracting "a few good men."

In a wide-ranging news conference, Cushman also said that the hard line taken by the Marines offers young men a challenge. "Younger people respond to this challenge and look for something tough to achieve."

Cushman also said he thought the U.S. policy in Vietnam has succeeded, but declined to answer when he was asked if he thought it was worth the price.

"I do believe the policy was correct of getting the Vietnamese country, both the political and military sides, in such shape" so that the South Vietnamese are now able to govern themselves and prevent a Communist takeover, he said.

Prime Rate Cut To 5%

New York (AP) — Basic interest charges dropped to their lowest level in nearly six years Tuesday as major banks across the country trimmed their prime lending rate by ¼% to 5%.

This brought their minimum lending charge to blue chip corporate customers to the level prevailing in March 1966.

The reductions reflected a sharp drop in short-term money rates in recent weeks. This made it cheaper for banks to obtain lendable funds but also provided corporations with a source of cheap funds outside regular bank channels.

Sluggish business loan demand was also a factor in the cuts, economists said.

Non-Prescription Drug Review Set

Washington (UPI) — Acknowledging it has failed to enforce laws regulating non-prescription drugs, the government announced a sweeping review Tuesday which could ban soome familiar home remedies, modify others and curb "indefensible" advertisements for even those that win approval.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) cited as "cause for concern" — and perhaps a harbinger of future findings — a study of 420 non-prescription drugs by the National Academy of Sciences — National Research Council. Only one fourth of them were rated effective, the FDA said.

"The FDA is concerned that many present formulations do not have the claimed effect, have inadequate instructions for effective use by the consumer, or are promoted in deceptive and indefensible ways," FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards said.

Laws Enacted

Laws requiring government clearance of drugs for safety and effectiveness were enacted in 1938 and 1962, but Edwards told a news conference that the FDA could not even count the number of non-prescription drugs on the market, much less certify their worth.

Edwards named Dr. John H. Moxley III to coordinate the new program, which he said would take about three years to complete.

Dean of the University of Maryland School of Medicine, Moxley said the lack of regulation of non-prescription drugs came as a surprise even to him.

'Taken Aback'

"I was, to say the least, taken aback to discover that no person or agency even knew the number of these drugs," Moxley said.

Edwards said the FDA was dividing the thousands of non-prescription medicines into 26 categories. An independent scientific panel, working through Moxley, will study each category and issue rules covering formulas and claims, he said.

Edwards said antiacids would be studied first, with "mood" drugs, cold medicines and anlygics (pain relievers) also high on the priority list.

CIA Leaves Top Base In Northeast Laos

(c) Washington Star

Vientiane, Laos — Long Tieng, the main base in northeast Laos for United States military and intelligence operations, has been downgraded to a forward base area for military operations, according to informed sources here.

The reason for this change is the continuing North Vietnamese pressure on and around the base, which over the weekend included a 500-shell artillery bombardment by Hanoi long-range artillery, probably 130 mm guns with a range of 27,000 yards.

"The CIA (Central Intelligence Agency) have gone elsewhere, all the exotic crypto equipment is out," the sources said. "Long Tieng is nothing more than a forward headquarters for military operations now."

Other sources confirmed a steady flow of equipment from Long Tieng to other places in the high forest-clad hills in northeast Laos.

Military sources said North Vietnamese artillery had done considerable damage to Long Tieng. The weekend bombardment blew up the main ammunition dump, destroyed an Air Force fighter-bomber ramp, damaged part of the airstrip and scored hits on the U.S. air operations center and the CIA compound.

Only one person, a Meo, was killed in the bombardment as most of Long Tieng's 25,000 Meo and Lao civilians fled early last week.

Long Tieng, 75 miles northeast of Vientiane, has been the U.S. military center in the area for many years.

The base was manned by a minimum of 33 Americans, whose number sometimes rose to 50. The CIA kept the United States contingent there engaged in monitoring Hanoi communications, supervising special military ground operations, which included U.S. personnel, and running logistics for day-to-day military operations in northeast Laos around the Plain of Jars and in the Lao provinces bordering North Vietnam. The U.S. Air Force used Long Tieng as a base for rescue helicopters for downed jets in the area. The Americans flew prop-driven dive bombers on missions from Long Tieng and the Air Force kept maintenance ground crews there.

Korea To Limit Textile Exports To U.S.

Washington (AP) — South Korea Tuesday signed an agreement with the United States to restrain its exports of woolen and man-made fiber textile products for five years beginning last Oct. 1 and ending Sept. 30, 1976.

It was the third restraint agreement signed here in as many days. Nationalist China and Japan had previously agreed to voluntary restraints and Hong Kong is scheduled to sign the fourth and last agreement in the crown colony Wednesday.

U.S. Ambassador David M. Kennedy, who signed for the United States, said the agreement establishes the basis for reasonable growth of Korea's textile exports to the United States and gives the U.S. industry time enough to look ahead to make its own arrangements.

He said the negotiation had been long and difficult but always accompanied by great understanding and respect.

Jets Raid In Laos, Cambodia

Saigon (AP) — U.S. warplanes raided enemy positions and supply lines in Laos and Cambodia on Tuesday.

Some of the raids hit northern Laos, where the U. S. Command belatedly reported an Air Force Phantom jet was downed last Friday. Word of the downing was held up for a search mission that failed to find the two planes.

The U. S. Command declined to give the Phantom's mission. But the downing of the speedy jet brought to 11 the number of U. S. planes lost in Laos and North Vietnam since Dec. 10. The command lists 15 crewmen missing and six rescued. North Vietnam claims two airmen killed and seven captured.

The U. S. Command now has reported 217 aircraft lost in the air war over Laos since March 1970. While most of the planes hit the Ho Chi Minh trail, others fly support for Laotion ground forces in northern Laos.

Peace Talks With Reds Will Resume

Paris (UPI) — The United States and South Vietnam agreed Tuesday to resume the Vietnam Peace Talks Thursday after four weeks of postponements by both sides had brought the conference to a standstill.

The Thursday meeting in the International Conference Hall on the Avenue Kleber would be the first since Dec. 9 and the U.S. air raids against North Vietnam during the Christmas holiday season.

The United States postponed the sessions of Dec. 16, 23 and 30 because the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegates were not negotiating "seriously," a U.S. spokesman said. The Dec. 30 meeting was boycotted by the Communists to protest the renewed U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

Fires In 1971 Killed 12,200

Boston (AP) — Some 12,200 persons died in fires in the United States in 1971, the same number as 1970, according to preliminary estimates released Tuesday by the National Fire Protection Association.

The association said property damage in 1971 totaled $2.845 billion, an increase of about $215 million over the previous year.

The worst loss-of-life fire occurred June 7 in East Haven, Conn. when 28 persons died in the fire following the crash of a Convair 580 airliner.

The worst property-loss fires of the year caused $10 million damage each to a ship under construction at Lorain, Ohio and to a nuclear power plant under construction at Indian Point, N.Y.

EVENTS
IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

In looking at the liquor policy, the City Council has opened an interesting can of worms. It is a situation in which the city is caught between two forces and in which it really cannot win.

On the one hand, the city has a limit of 133 Class C licenses, the kind that go for retailing of liquor and beer by the drink as opposed to package operations. The reason for this is simple. Too many licenses make for such a competitive situation that border-line operators might be tempted to wink at the law just to keep their establishment afloat.

With unlimited numbers, some places might tend to serve minors and drunks and to stretch on their operating hours. It would contribute to a generally loose kind of operation in which all sorts of unfavorable developments might take place.

To keep things under control and to encourage good operations, the City Council limits the number of licenses that can be issued. It is a fine theory, except for the fact that it fails to take into account the matter of the city's growth.

With a limited situation, there is little natural upgrading and expansion of establishments that serve alcoholic beverages. With a captive patronage, establishments have little incentive to improve and new operators are denied entry into the city.

Now, if you are a prohibitionist, that may be fine. It may mean nothing to you if you simply don't drink. But right or wrong, alcoholic consumption is a part of the society in which we live. It is especially a part of that society in terms of its eating establishments.

Again, whether right or wrong, you do not have the highclass eating establishments without liquor by the drink that you have with liquor by the drink. If Lincoln is to continue to grow and if its eating establishments are to improve the competitive situation needs to be strengthened.

Two new restaurant operations are scheduled soon for operation in Lincoln, both in east Lincoln. With the current limit of licenses, we don't see how either place will manage to obtain a liquor license.

There is current discussion regarding the rehabilitation of Lincoln's old wholesaling district in the vicinity of 8th and O, under the viaduct. This would include the establishment of retail shops and at least one eating establishment, again raising the question of license if we have a limited number.

What the council might do about all this is anybody's guess but it is obvious that there are no easy answers. The council this past week turned down a license applicant. It would not give the applicant first rights to any license opening that came about.

Councilman Bob Sikyta was right in saying that this makes the situation a game of chance. The applicant today faces a full quota of licenses and gets nothing. Tomorrow, someone else comes in and a license has become available, which he gets.

This does not seem to happen very often but it is the kind of thing that is perfectly possible and obviously an inequity. There isn't any question that a limit on licenses makes those licenses a pretty valuable piece of property.

A license can become available in two ways. If a license is revoked, it is thrown on the open market, so to speak. Anyone can go to the City Council and ask to be granted the available license.

Secondly, a license can be purchased through the purchase of an existing operator's business. It is apparent that there are injustices in both situations and that the overall condition does nothing at all for the average customer.

We would hesitate to say what the answer might be, largely because the elimination of the limit on the number of licenses appears to be the only solution. Ultimately, this may prove to be the only solution, despite the fact that it has its own set of liabilities.

'Any More Ideas?'

Credibility Gap Widens Again

President Nixon is widening the credibility gap between the White House and the people again on the prisoners of war issue. In his Sunday interview with CBS, Nixon said that communist negotiators had rejected proposals for the release of American prisoners of war in exchange for the setting of a deadline for withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Vietnam.

Two Democrats — one of whom is running for president — disagree with Nixon and say that the North Vietnamese are responsive to that kind of proposal but they have never been offered it directly by the U.S.

"Far from rejecting the trade," said Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., "the other side has explicitly offered to do it. They offered it to me in private on May 31 of last year and again at the official negotiating table on July 1. They've repeated the offer at the table more times than I can count." But, said Leggett, U.S. representatives have never asked the question.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., the first-announced candidate for Mr. Nixon's job, also accused the President of deception. "It is simply not true — and the President knows it is not true — that our negotiators in Paris have ever discussed with the North Vietnamese the question of total American withdrawal from Indochina in conjunction with the release of our prisoners," McGovern said Monday. If a definite withdrawal date were set, he added, "it would signal the end of support for the Saigon regime and our troops would be allowed to withdraw safely and our prisoners freed. The North Vietnamese did not reject this approach."

If memory functions correctly, McGovern and Leggett are closer to the truth. The North Vietnamese have publicly stated that an announced, definite withdrawal date for all U.S. troops would win a release of the prisoners. A change in the government in Saigon was not a condition to that proposal.

If the proposal was offered by the U.S. and discussed in Paris, as the President said, why doesn't he offer it again to clear the air? He probably won't, because he can't and still see the Thieu regime stay in power. A residual ground force in Vietnam and U.S. air support in Indochina is necessary to keep it there.

Bus Fares, Housing Appointment

A New York Times news service item out of Rome bears repeating in light of proposals offered in Lincoln and Omaha and other American cities concerning reduced-fare or no-fare bus service.

The eight-day no-fare experiment was begun last Thursday in the Italian capital as a dramatic effort to lure urbanites from their private autos and back to public transport.

According to the report, many Romans have rediscovered the bus as a means of traveling in their traffic-choked city. Officials think the results so far have been encouraging and are now considering suspension of the fare for another test period at a later time and perhaps abolishing it altogether eventually.

We think the fledgling Lincoln Transit System will have enough problems in acquiring its new equipment and building service back up to acceptable levels without having the immediate job of convincing the taxpayer that free public transportation is worthwhile. What may work in Rome may not work in Lincoln. But the no-fare or reduced-fare scheme does seem to bring people back to the buses. It is something that the system's advisory board and city government will be considering in the future.

In another topic related to local affairs, we commend Mayor Schwartzkopf for appointing Mrs. Carol Yoakum to the Lincoln Housing Authority. Mrs. Yoakum comes well-recommended by low-income groups in the city. Her experience as a welfare worker and as a tenant will give the board of housing commissioners a new perspective as well as low-income families their first real representation.

The fact that Mrs. Yoakum will not be able to vote on any action relating to Arnold Heights at the Lincoln Air Park — a housing project operated by the authority in which she lives — should not detract from her appointment and potential for valuable service.

Workers Not Ready For Much Idleness

NEW YORK — Having passed through two consecutive 3.5-day weekends of holiday "leisure," many an American is thoroughly exhausted.

Not physically exhausted. Just psychologically frayed at the edges. All that accumulated goofing off — all that massive rejoicing because nothing really must be done — can be debilitating.

"On the afternoon of Dec. 23, I felt like a freed slave," remarks a friend. "But by Jan. 2, I'll be climbing the walls." She says she has seen three movies, too much turkey in too many variations, a wild variety of kids, and enough clutter and liquor to last for months. "Going back to the office will be like visiting a resort hotel."

A secretary across the hall complains that she couldn't sleep well during the holiday weekends.

The answer to that comes in a philosophical statement by Dr. Karl Menninger of the Menninger Foundation who observed once: "It is difficult to rest — when there's no work to rest from."

It makes one wonder about the growing trend toward shorter work weeks, and longer leisure periods. Are most Americans ready for the change?

Judging from current experience, I'd say that vast numbers are not. As much as the frustrations of work tend to tingle our nerve ends, work is still the contribution to society that keeps up our self-respect. To people who enjoy this contributing to society, loafing probably never will add up to serene contentment.

The increase in three-day "holiday weekends" this year is a preparation for a lazier future for all of us. The day is coming, and shortly, when the average American will spend one-third of his life in retirement. His job, his career, his contribution finished — finished 20 to 25 years before his life is.

This seems an enormous waste. You grow up, you study to learn a craft, you perfect it, grow wise and understanding and competent; you are at the peak of your prowess and — abruptly — the calendar (and the boss and the union and sometimes the law) says it's time to lie down and quit.

If you don't feel like lying down, too bad. Those are the rules. Medical science makes people physically fine and mentally sizzling at 62 years and far beyond, but the social code is a century behind medicine. Society says "Make room for youth," and the only way you can make room is to get out and stay out. Between your savings and Social Security, you should be able to nourish your body. But what happens to your mind and spirit?

It is youth who really enjoy the many three-day weekends which have recently been added to our calendar business year. To them, work is not the essence of worthwhile living that it has become to the generations of us who are past 30.

To increasing numbers of young people, work is the be-all and end-all of life; work often represents making money—and materialism corrupts.

If this present attitude continues, is it feasible to hope that the rules may be changed, to permit us "squares" who genuinely like our work to continue to do our thing, for our own good, and the good of the economy.

Why should we "make room" for youth"—if our replacement would rather be out fishing?

Malta's Prime Minister Drives Hard Bargain; Holding Threat Of Russia As His Trump Card

PARIS—A new allied crisis over Malta—or, at any rate, another flare-up of the old one, can be regarded as probable. The strategically located island republic has not figured much in recent news—but only because it has been negotiating with Britain and NATO. These negotiations appear to have failed.

Dom Mintoff, the socialist prime minister elected this year, is a fiery and emotional man who has the praiseworthy idea of seeking to raise Maltese living standards and alter Malta's economy to such a degree that by 1977 the island will no longer need to rely on its naval base for support and jobs.

The trouble is that Britain, former colonial ruler and still Malta's source of military sustenance, sees no point in paying heavily to finance this goal simply in order to prepare her own perrmanent expulsion from Maltese facilities. And Britain's allies—particulary interested in the Mediterranean—share this view.

Mintoff, after early hints that he might turn to Moscow if he could not come to terms to the West, originally proposed that Britain and NATO pay 30 million pounds annual rent for continued use of facilities—a staggering increase from the previous fee of slightly over 5 million pounds.

The British, the North Atlantic allies and the Maltese have been consulting intermittently for months, seeking an acceptable compromise. They haven't succeeded. Mintoff reduced his original asking price to 18 million pounds a year. Britain and NATO came back by upping their original offer to 10 million—half British, half from the alliance.

Since Mintoff spurned this, London suggested he negotiate bilateral aid agreements with other NATO members on an individual basis. The Maltese have had little luck with this idea. The gap between what is being demanded and what is being offered remains apparently unbridgeable.

The British maintain Mintoff is being unrealistic by not taking into account expenditures—separate from and additional to rent payments but which result from use of the island's facilities by Britain and her allies.

London estimates such disbursements amount approximately to 13 million pounds a year and provide jobs for 7,000 of Malta's labor force of 100,000. It is notable that unemployed workers in Malta now total roughly 7,000.

In a sense, therefore, London feels it has a strong bargaining position because if a crunch were to come, Mintoff might be faced with double an already high unemployment rate. But the excitable prime minister also has trump cards in his hand. While he appears to have once held hopes that Libya might take up the financial burden if Britain were expelled, he now seems to mistrust the reliability of support from that wealthy oil-producing land.

Nor has Libya any navy that could conceivably require the services of Maltese shipyards; but this is by no means the case with the Soviet Union. Both Britain and NATO are acutely conscious of the danger to their Western Mediterranean position should the Russians sign a pact gaining access to Malta's facilities.

The island republic is not quintessentially important to allied navies — including the United States Sixth Fleet—but it is considered strategically vital that it be denied to Moscow's admirals. Were Malta open to Soviet vessels, the Soviet Union would be well on its way to penetration of the Western Mediterranean as it has already penetrated the Eastern Mediterranean.

Moreover, there is a lurking fear in West Europe that, in the latter case, the United States might thin out or pull back its Sixth Fleet rather than risk seeing it bottled up. Such a precaution would have strategic logic and would also be consonant with the present American mood for military retrenchment.

The Maltese problem—although no longer as flamboyant as when Mintoff first took power—represents a matter of urgent seriousness. The Russians have not recently been expanding in the Mediterranean. Indeed, their aircraft have been expelled from Algerian Mers-el-Kebir.

Nevertheless, Soviet strength in the inland sea is extensive and well backed up by a ring of bases to the east. Should Malta open its arms, Moscow is in a position to take immediate advantage of the break. Mintoff knows this and is going to bargain hard when the next round starts—quite possibly preceded by at least another mini-crisis.

ANTHONY LEWIS
American War Methods

"Sources said the bombing of the Plain of Jars was made easy by the fact that there were practically no civilians left in it." — Reuter dispatch from Vientiane

LONDON—Before 1967, more than 100,000 people lived in the Plain of Jars. They got in the way of American bombers operating over Laos, but this inconvenience was removed in a way reminiscent of Swift's "A Modest Proposal": the inhabitants were all either killed or forced out of their homes as refugees.

That is one example, not a particularly large one, of what the United States has done in Indochina in the name of democracy and self-determination. The figures are so huge, so horrendous, that they may no longer mean anything to the Americans who read them.

Prof. Arthur H. Westing of Windham College, Vermont, estimated the other day that there are "several hundred thousand" unexploded bombs and shells in Vietnam alone. (There are many more in Laos and Cambodia) What does that mean, unless one sees a photograph of a small Indo-Chinese boy who picked up what looked like a toy in a field and now has bandages over the stumps of his arms?

E. W. Pfeiffer, a University of Montana zoologist who has just finished an environmental study in Vietnam with Westing, tells us that American bombing has left 20 million craters. They range from 20 to 50 feet wide and 5 to 20 feet deep.

☆ ☆ ☆

Nor is bombing the only American technique of mass destruction. There is the defoliation that affected one-eighth of the acreage of South Vietnam, destroying food crops for 600,000 people and vast miles of valuable forest. There are the 150 bulldozers working every day to strip land of all cover—even more damaging ecologically than herbicides, according to Messrs. Westing and Pfeiffer. There is the "daisy cutter" bomb, which they estimate has so far killed every living thing in 116,000 acres of Indochina.

In a war, all sides commit acts of cruelty. But there is a qualitative difference, a moral difference, in the methods used by the U.S. in this war.

It is, increasingly, an automated war for the Americans. Killing is done at a distance, without the killers having to face the unpleasant reality of human beings mutilated or dead right there in front of them.

The world's most technologically developed country is using all its skill in destructive techniques against a peasant population. And against people who are not white—a fact that we may tell ourselves is happenstance but that much of the world considers no accident.

American officials so often show an astounding insensitivity to the consequences of our war methods. There was a remark the other day that must have set a record for official blindness. A Pentagon spokesman said that Hanoi's refusal to accept 900 gift packages for American prisoners was "inhuman and uncivilized" — that while American planes were carrying out 1,000 bombing sorties on North Vietnam.

There is a similar arrogance in some of the reasons given for the resumption of large-scale bombing. The North Vietnamese had attacked "unarmed U.S. reconnaissance planes," American officials said—an Orwellian lie since those reconnaissance planes are accompanied by armed fighters. And North Vietnam had been used "as a sanctuary," it was said, to attack American planes bombing Laos. What about American "sanctuaries" in Thailand or on carries standing off the North Vietnamese coast?

The official view is apparently that the U.S. has a divine right to fly and bomb at will over the entire Indo-Chinese peninsula without challenge by enemy aircraft or missiles. If the North Vietnamese dare to put up an air defense, we are entitled to punish them. It is a notion fitter for psychological than for political analysis.

It is against this background of American war methods and attitude that the decision to renew heavy bombing of the north must be judged.

Those five days of bombing — and how many more days in the future?—will cost dearly. The world has fresh reason to doubt what most people once took for granted: The fundamental decency of America. Worse yet, Americans will feel revived in themselves those terrible self-hatreds and doubts about the integrity of the political process that almost tore the country part in 1968.

Even those who think such moral costs are piffle should worry about the consequences for effective American influence in the world. For what we have done in Vietnam—and what we are now dramatically seen to be doing still—has crippled our ability to insist that other nations give diplomacy a chance and avoid the use of force.

That was clear in the India-Pakistan crisis. We simply could not be taken seriously when we said to India in effect: "The kind of interests we are pursuing in Vietnam justify resort to bloodshed, but yours do not."

The Unicameral

Lincoln, Neb.

It is to be hoped that the shorter session of the Nebraska Legislature will inspire the lawmakers to get down to business and skip the prolonged diddling around with endless and useless detail and debate.

The unnecessary bills introduced just for the sake of looking busy get so tiresome, and a visit to the capitol during one of their average work days is something short of inspiring.

If 25 of the 49 seats in the Unicameral can have possible new occupants through this year's election, perhaps we'd better make the complete change and see if we can't get something more by way of common sense to represent us.

The Drunken Driver

Lincoln, Neb.

I would like to ask Virgil Falloon and the writer of the editorial, "Focus on Drunken Driving," Dec. 31 Star, why they are so apologetic and considerate in their methods of controlling the drunken driver. Virgil Falloon says: "While scrupulously avoiding the word 'crack-down' regarding the drunken driver," and the editorial writer says: "Patrol cars will not be parked around the corner from bars at closing time."

When the highway death toll reached almost the 500-mark, the highest in the history of Nebraska, and over half of these deaths were alcohol-involved, it seems that "crack-down" would be a mild method to use.

Are we going to have a control program to justify the spending of $1.6 million of taxpayers' dollars or are we just going to play another game? The drunken driver is not considerate and neither is he apologetic to those he slaughters. If the police need to park around the corner from the bars at closing time to be effective, then they should park there. There is no area of the alchoholic beverage industry which deserves respect, for it has destroyed the respect of more people than any other product and has no value except to line the pockets of those who make and sell it.

The program is not going to be effective if, after the drunken driver is apprehended, the charge is reduced to "negligent driving" as appeared under the court cases twice in this same paper.

Because of one of these "considerate" judges in another state several years ago I watched a baby die in one of our local hospital emergency rooms after his parents' car had been hit by a drunken driver weaving his way through the Lincoln traffic. His jail sentence had been reduced in the other state, but if he had served his time there, the baby would probably be alive today. Since that experience, I have been a crusader against the drunken driver.

Classical Music

Lincoln, Neb.

Some will notice, even fewer will voice their objection to a change in Sunday evening radio programming in Lincoln. But for the few who enjoy classical music, it's the death of a friend. "Musical Masterworks," for several years a weekend reprieve from the mechanical music melange, disappeared after months of lack-of-sponsor starvation.

It was my pleasure to serve as the host of that program during its last weeks of life. The end marks a time for reflection by anyone who uses a radio in the Capital City area; for although such a program as "Musical Masterworks" serves only the taste of a select audience, individual musical desires are even more select.

There are those who prefer Puckett to Lindsay; Brubeck over Shearing; Como above Crosby. But for listeners who favor Barenboim over Bernstein and Handel over Honegger, there is now one fewer station to favor anything.

Many say that Lincoln should be more culturally oriented. Certainly the loss of one radio program will not spell the end of culture in our city. It is not the first time classical music has been cut from the air waves here, and it probably won't be the last; its demise serves only as a marking-stone for contemplation of Lincoln's entire fine arts spectrum in 1972.

Speaking Out

Lincoln, Neb.

Recently Robert MacLennan has been criticized for quoting at a public meeting the official position of the national board of the United Presbyterian Church. U.S.A. on the need to repeal abortion laws. That position states that women should not be subjected to the horrors and dangers of back-street abortionists and that a woman seeking an abortion is entitled to safe medical care.

Some have criticized Mr. MacLennan for quoting this position in public, saying that as a minister he has no right to speak out for abortion reform. Apparently these critics feel that ministers are excluded from freedom of speech as guaranteed by the United States Constitution.

Lincoln Chapter, National Organization for Women (N.O.W.), supports the stand taken by the Presbyterian Church and Mr. MacLennan's right to speak on the issue. We also praise him for the courage shown by speaking up on an important social issue, thus exposing himself to the disgusting and irrational hate mail that has appeared in the Lincoln newspapers.

County Attorney Answers Manor Contract Questions

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Various questions posed by Lancaster County Commissioner Robert Colin as to the legality of the agreement between the county and Colonial Homes for the operation of Lancaster Manor were answered in an opinion from County Attorney Paul Douglas released Tuesday.

In response to Colin's question if the agreement would automatically be cancelled if it were consummated at a meeting other than a county board meeting, Douglas quoted the law and the motion which was passed on Jan. 27, 1970, according to minutes of the meeting found in records of the office of the county clerk.

"In my opinion the quoted minutes are in compliance with the requirements of the law and in any litigation arising from attempted cancellation of the Lancaster Manor agreement, a presumption of regularity would attach to the proceedings described in said minutes," Douglas said.

In further answer to questions by Colin, Douglas said that the County Board, according to the statutes, was not required to solicit bids for the services encompassed in the Lancaster Manor agreement, nor was approval of the agreement by the county attorney a requisite of its validity.

Colin had asked if the following would be grounds for cancellation of the agreement:

—lack of approval of said agreement by the county attorney.

—failure of the county board to advertise for bids for the services called for in the agreement.

Colin had also asked Douglas for an opinion on whether the appearance of Commissioner William Grossman's law partner before the county board to urge the board to enter into the agreement would create a conflict of interest, and if so, whether such a conflict would be grounds for cancellation of the agreement.

Douglas said that it is his opinion that, under the law, in order to deem the agreement defective, it would be necessary to establish by a preponderance of evidence that the county officer had a pecuniary interest in or would receive benefit from the agreement or that one of the commissioners who approved the agreement was at that time an agent, official or employe of Colonial Homes, Inc.

Douglas said that Colin's question doesn't present "nor do I have evidence which would enable me to form an opinion as to whether in fact the appearance of Miles Johnston Sr. (Grossman's law partner) was in behalf of Colonial Homes, Inc.

"If, however, that proposition could be established by a preponderance of evidence, there would remain to be determined whether such appearance resulted in Commissioner Grossman having a pecuniary interest in or benefit from the contract, or status as an agent of Colonial Homes, Inc.," Douglas said.

In his letter containing the opinion, the county attorney stated that if the commissioners determine that the operation of Lancaster Manor under the present arrangement is unsatisfactory or detrimental to the county, notice of termination can be given.

"The probable result of termination would be litigation, and of course, the cost to the county of such litigation should be borne in mind," he warned.

He said the outcome of such litigation would depend upon "what evidence could be developed as to breach of contract, if any, by Colonial Homes."

"If the board feels that both continuation and termination of the agreement would be detrimental to the county, then the decision to be made, of course, is simply as to which is the lesser evil," Douglas added.

$55.5 Million Released For Ag Subsidies

Washington (UPI) — Under heavy pre-election prodding from congressional leaders in both parties, the administration Tuesday released $55.5 million in 1972 conservation subsidy funds previously "frozen" by White House budget officials.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said in a statement the money will be released for use in the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP). This will bring total planned 1972 REAP spending to $195.5 million, the full amount authorized by Congress.

REAP funds are paid to farmers to share the cost of carrying out approved conservation practices and environmental protection measures including pollution control and waste disposal improvements.

After Congress had approved $195.5 million for 1972, the White House Office of Management and Budget (OMB) ordered the Agriculture Department to announce on Oct. 8 that spending would be held to $140 million — the amount originally recommended by the administration. This step, which froze $55.5 million of the authorized funds, was hotly protested by many farm groups, lawmakers, and the National Limestone Institute.

Demands for restoration of the funds had come recently from GOP leaders including House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., and the GOP national chairman, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas. Similar pressure on the White House came from many Democrats including Sen. Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia, the chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Take-Home Pay May Drop Due To Withholding

Washington (AP) — In spite of the tax relief voted by Congress last month, millions of Americans will find their take-home pay reduced after Jan. 16 by a bigger income tax bite out of their checks.

Congress has increased sharply the withholding rate, to make the amount of tax withheld by employers come closer to matching the employe's actual tax liability for the year.

That will correct the underwithholding which, for many taxpayers, has been a nuisance for years. For 1972 and thereafter, fewer middle- and upper-income taxpayers will have to mail quarterly estimated tax payments or make large lump-sum payments when they file their income tax returns.

This was a particular problem in 1971 for married couples in which both husband and wife work. The old withholding tables were geared to give them one too many low-income allowances; many will have to pay several hundred dollars on April 15 to get right with the Internal Revenue Service.

To Correct Situation

The change in the withholding tables was designed to correct that situation for the new tax year — and to give the Treasury the current use of an estimated $1 billion which formerly has been underwithheld in the course of each year.

But in correcting the underwithholding of one large group of taxpayers, Congress has complicated the financial problems of another large group by causing overwithholding.

Million of taxpayers — particularly middle-income couples in which only the husband works, and those claiming large amounts of itemized deductions — will find the new withholding tables take too deep a bite.

The withholding increase is so large, in fact, that in many cases it will more than offset the paycheck benefits that Congress enacted last month in the form of higher personal exemptions and an increased standard deduction.

$50 A Month

Taxpayers at the income level of $20,000 to $25,000 who claim itemized deductions of $4,000 to $5,000—fairly ordinary at that income level — may find themselves paying the government upwards of $50 a month more than they owe.

For the relief of such taxpayers the IRS has prepared a new form to be distributed by employers, called "Employe's Withholding Exemption Certificate." By filling it out and returning it to his employer, he can adjust his year-long withholding to an amount roughly equivalent to his actual tax liability.

The new form carries a table showing how many "allowances" the taxpayer should claim—at $750 each, the new amount of the personal exemption — to insure that he is meeting his tax obligations throughout the year but not overpaying along the way.

He can base his allowances for 1972 on the amount of deductions he claimed in 1971 or on a reasonable estimate. If his salary or deductible expenses change during the year, he can file a new certificate increasing or decreasing the amount withheld.

Meeting Scheduled

The Governor's Committee on Mental Retardation will hold a meeting Wednesday at 9 a.m. in the governor's hearing room in the Capitol.

Ellsberg Plea Innocent

Los Angeles (AP) — Daniel Ellsberg pleaded innocent stemming from the Pentagon Papers case. His codefendant, Tuesday to new federal charges Anthony J. Russo, refused to enter a plea and a judge entered an innocent plea for him.

A joint trial was set for March 7 for the former Rand Corp. colleagues, but U.S. District Judge Matthew Byrne Jr. indicated it probably would be postponed.

Ellsberg, who has admitted leaking the documents on the origin of the Vietnam war to news media, entered innocent pleas on all counts of last week's new indictment against him. He is accused of stealing and distributing Defense Department documents and Russo is accused of receiving them. Both also are accused of conspiracy.

"Your honor, I am not guilty for any of the offenses charged," Ellsberg said, standing before the judge. He then answered "Not guilty" in response to 12 counts of a 15-count indictment, the other three counts which involve codefendant Russo.

Russos' attorney said he would file motions to have Russo removed from the case, claiming that a previous grant of immunity to Russo invalidates the indictment.

Scholarships To Honor Two Accident Victims

Students at Southeast High have started memorial scholarship funds for Gayle Whitney and alumnus Jerry Winkler, killed Friday in a car-pedestrian accident south of Lincoln.

Student council member Doc Chaves said donations will be divided evenly between the two funds unless otherwise specified.

Scheele Returns To Judge's Bench

The January term of Lancaster District Court got underway this week with all regular judges on the bench.

Lancaster District Judge Elmer Scheele who underwent jaw and leg surgery early in the fall, has returned to work full time, while Judge Bartlett Boyles who suffered a heart attack last summer has been back since October.

Requests For State Sewage Treatment Funds Are Top Priority

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

A backlog of $10.5 million in "firm" requests for state funds in the secondary sewage treatment program is on the top of Department of Environmental Control Director James Higgins' priority list for action in 1972.

Outlining his objectives for the coming year, the recently-appointed director said he hopes the current Unicameral will allow him to re-commit the state to the ongoing program.

"About 44 communities have put in firm requests since July 1 for matching state funds in the secondary sewage treatment program," Higgins said Tuesday.

Participation Reported

Currently, some 25 communties are participating in the program which was financed with $6.6 million in state monies, $15.5 million in federal funds and about $6 million in local support.

The total tab for federal, state and local participation, all 44 projects are approved, would come to $45 million. However, most likely the projects would be spread over a period of years, since the average project takes 2 years to complete.

No request was made during the last series of Appropriations Committee hearings since Gov. J. James Exon is considering an alternate way of funding the projects.

Measure Being Drafted

Reportedly, the governor is in the final stages of drafting the measure which would put the funding on a local bond issue basis. Under the bonding route, the local municipality would float a bond issue for both the state's and the city's share. After construction has reached a certain stage, the state would reimburse the city for the state's share.

The purpose of the alternative to lump appropriations is to prevent funds from setting idle until the cities are ready. Higgins pointed out that only $1 million of the $6.6 million in state funds would be used in fiscal 1972.

The sewage plants are not the only priorities of Higgins which are dependent on the Legislature's actions.

Higgins is asking for 5 more men in his department (bringing the total to 36) which will enable the DEC to increase surveillance and analysis of data so an "inventory" of pollution sources in Nebraska can be assembled.

Although his budget request for fiscal 1973 is less than the fiscal 1972 appropriation, the 1973 request represents a 6.03% increase over what was actually spent in fiscal 1972.

The department is asking for $415,638 compared to the $392,011 spent for fiscal 1972.

Recommend Action

Higgins explained that the inventory would survey all sources of municipal, industrial and agricultural pollution in the state, pinpoint the problem areas and indicate where action is needed.

"This is a real need," Higgins said.

"For instance, right now we have one man surveying 50 sampling points on rivers and streams. I would like to increase the manpower to three and the number of sampling locations.

'Isolate The Sources'

"Then we can begin to start measuring the impact of storm sewers and fertilizers on water conditions. First we must isolate the sources, though."

The added manpower, Higgins explained, would also allow more analysis of surveys and data.

"So far we haven't had enough opportunity to evaluate our findings."

In addition, Higgins said in 1972 there would be more work on solid waste management due to a $22,000 federal grant involving consolidation and coordination of dumps and landfills in Nebraska.

10 Churches Accused Of Complicity With Holders Of Military Contracts

©The New York Times

By DOUGLAS ROBINSON

New York — A unit of the National Council of Churches has accused 10 Protestant denominations of complicity through their stockholdings with the "irresponsible, immoral and socially injurious acts" of 29 corporations holding military contracts.

Among the churches with military stockholdings, according to a report on religious investment practices, are those that have been in the forefront of the criticism of the Vietnam war and of the growing militarism in the United States.

The report, prepared by the Corporate Information Center of the national council, is to be made public Friday. It shows that the 10 denominations, plus the national council itself have almost $203 million invested in companies that last year provided more than $10 billion worth of war materiel ranging from guns to missiles.

'Moral Aura'

Religious involvement in the military field, the report says, gives a "moral aura of legitimacy" to such investments and is a "factor of far greater significance than the actual dollar amounts invested."

Frank P. White, director of the Corporate Information Center, said under questioning that the report did not imply that churches were being "hypocritical" in their investment policies.

"Generally, the reason that investment ethics has not kept pace with policy is quite simple — no one has thought much about it," he said.

"Aside from the newness of the issue, there are some process questions involved," he said. "Most investment committeemen historically have been, and still are, top corporate and financial executives."

"To ask these people to begin to prescribe moral sanction against peers and competitors, or for that matter, their own companies, is troublesome to say the least," he said.

The 50-page report, entitled "church investments technological warfare and the military-industrial complex," urges clergymen and laymen to "ask how the moral and economic wealth of the churches and other institutions is used" and then to "assume a leadership role by providing an example of corporate social responsibility."

To date, the report says, "ethical and moral concerns have not been expressed through the investment policies and responsibilities of the church."

Sale May Result

White said the report did not recommend that churches sell their defense stocks, although he conceded that action "might be the end result.

"Selling stock obviously negates your right as a stockholder to speak to management about policies with which you disagree," he said. "Many churches can petition and interview management, and there are proxy proposals that can be submitted after further study."

"Our report only recommends that the churches begin to look seriously at their military holdings," he maintained. "They must decide for themselves what to do about the situation."

The churches examined in the report are the United Methodist Church, the Christian Church (Disciples), the United Presbyterian Church, the American Baptist Convention, the Lutheran Church in America, the Protestant Episcopal Church, the United Church of Christ, the Church of the Brethren, the Presbyterian Church in the United States and the Unitarian Universalist Association.

Among the 29 corporations named were the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), the Ford Motor Co., the United Aircraft Corp., Litton Industries, Inc., the General Electric Co. and the International Business Machines Corp.

Others were the Lockheed Aircraft Corp., the Westinghouse Electric Corp., Honeywell Inc., the General Motors Corp., TRW Inc., the RCA Corp. and Texas Instruments Inc.

White said that the 10 churches, on a national denominational basis, had investment portfolios totaling $1.5 billion.

He estimated that the nation's three major religions, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish, had about $22 billion invested in the stock market on a national, regional and local basis. The figure also includes religious agencies.

The study dealt with the top 60 military contractors, which account for about 65¾ of all such contracts. The churches had investments in 29 of these corporations.

The report shows that in 1970, a bad earnings year, income from these investments was more than $6.2 million and the total number of shares amounted to almost two million.

According to the report, the leading religious investor in military hardware was the United Methodist Church with market value investments totaling $59,751,899. The second highest was the United Presbyterian Church with $57,871,157.

Other major investors included the American Baptist Convention with $30,556,371; the Protestant Episcopal Church, $29,891,430; and the Christian Church (Disciples), $8,690,821.

The National Council of Churches, which along with several of the denominations mentioned in the report, finances the work of the Corporate Information Center, has a military investment of $332,831.

Pollution Act Also Includes The Dairyman

Beatrice — While much attention has been focused on beef feedlot operators complying with Nebraska's Water Pollution Act, dairymen are faced with the same deadline of Dec. 31, 1972, to meet runoff control regulations, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension dairyman Tuesday reminded those attending an NU-sponsored area dairy day, the first of eight scheduled around the state.

Philip H. Cole said that while all dairymen, regardless of size or type of operation, are expected to take the necessary steps to get in compliance, all dairy operations will not need elaborate waste disposal facilities. And some dairies, because of their size and location on the farm, (no runoff into streams or onto neighboring farms) will need no runoff facilities, Cole stated.

But he urged all dairymen to take the first and most important step — "seek technical assistance and find out what is needed for your dairy operation."

Girl In Peru Survivor Of Air Crash

Tournavista, Peru (UPI) — An injured teen-aged German girl walked nine days through the jungles or central Peru and said Tuesday she survived the crash of a Peruvian airliner that disappeared 11 days ago. She said another survivor was with the plane.

The girl, Juliana Koepeke, 17, told a farmer in this village near Pucallpa, 292 miles northeast of Lima, that the four-engine Electra turboprop with 92 persons aboard had been hit by lightning while on a Dec. 24 flight between Lima and Iquitos.

A ground search for the plane had been called off Sunday but an air search was continuing. A report from a radio ham operator in Dallas said one of the search planes had found the missing airliner with instrumentation but had not sighted it.

Five Americans also were aboard the plane.

Miss Koepeke, whose mother Maria was one of the 86 passengers aboard the Lineas Aereas Nacionalies (LANSA) airliner, said the plane had crashed into a mountain pass at Chulla, which is near Tournavista.

She was found by a farmer in Tournavista who relayed the information to an engineer who radioed authorities.

In Lima earlier Tuesday, Peru's military government canceled LANSA's flight license. The crashed aircraft was LANSA's only plane.

Astronaut Duke Gets Pneumonia

Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Charles M. Duke Jr., scheduled to fly on the Apollo 16 moon mission in March, was admitted to nearby Patrick Air Force Base Hospital on Tuesday for treatment of bacterial pneumonia.

The National Aeronautics and Space administration reported his condition was not serious.

It said his recuperative period would be 10 days to two weeks. The agency said this would not seriously affect training plans for the planned launching to the moon on March 17 and that Duke should be ready to carry out the mission.

Duke and Apollo 16 commander John W. Young flew to Cape Kennedy from Houston's Manned Spacecraft Center Monday night. During the day Tuesday, Duke had complained of a cold and a bad cough.

NASA physician Dr. John T. Teegan reported Duke was resting comfortably and that his condition was not serious. He said neither Young nor the third Apollo 16 crewman, Thomas K. Mattingly II, showed any signs of illness.

Demo Committee Special Meeting Is Slated Jan. 16

State Chairman Hess Dyas announced Tuesday a special meeting of the Nebraska Democratic Party Central Committee has been called for Jan. 16.

Dyas said the special meeting was called in order to act on the 1972 financial program based on a feasibility study presented at the Dec. 12 committee meeting in Omaha.

The meeting, he said, will be held at the Cornhusker Radisson beginning at 1 p.m. Also scheduled is a discussion on legislation pending before the Nebraska Unicameral.

Investments Near The $1 Billion Mark

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

As predicted, the total funds committed by the State Investment Council during calendar 1971 climbed close to the $1 billion mark.

The total for the year, State Investment Officer Fred Kuethe revealed Tuesday, was $984,109,501 — or roughly $450 million more than was invested during the Council's first year of operation in 1970.

The more important figure — the total actual earned income from the investments — will not be known until the council's meeting on Jan. 19, Kuethe reported. Last year's $528 million in investments earned the state $10,974,842 in revenue through some 549 transactions.

Services Utilized

The reason for the marked increase in investments, from 1970 to 1971, Kuethe said, is "more state agencies realize we exist this year than last and are using our services."

The council was created by the 1969 Unicameral and was charged with the job of putting idle state funds to work for the state.

How does the investment picture look for 1972?

Hard to Forecast

While emphasizing that the situation is hard to forecast, Kuethe said he does not expect an increase in the amount of investments because the majority of idle funds have been invested by the council.

"At this stage, I hope we can match what we invested in 1971; or maybe hit that $1 billion level," he said.

Original estimates for 1971 hovered in the $600 to $700 million range.

As the Investment Officer currently views the economic situation, he does not expect a higher yield rate on investments in 1972 (in fact, he said on long term investments the yield may be lower for a while.)

Kuethe explained this is due partially to Nixon's economic moves over the past year — the Aug. 15 freeze on wages and prices, the devaluation of the dollar and the trade agreements.

The breakdown on the 1971 investments is as follows:

Short-term idle fund investments (less than 1 year)	$940,404,000
Medium-term investments (over 1 year, less than 5)	$ 2,158,000
Long-term investments (over 5 years)	$ 41,027,000
Stocks	$ 520,501
Total	$984,109,501

Singer Bennett Secretly Weds Actress Grant

London (AP) — American singer Tony Bennett arrived in London with former actress Sandie Grant and told reporters Tuesday they had married secretly in New York last week. Their 22-month-old daughter Joanna was with them.

Bennett, 43, was divorced by his wife Patricia three months ago on grounds of desertion. Friends of the singer said she was awarded sizeable alimony, their home in New Jersey and custody of their two teen-age sons.

Bennett told newsmen he and his 31-year-old bride met in 1965 after his first marriage had broken down and they had been together ever since.

Two Motor Vehicle Supervisors Named

The appointment of two new area supervisors for the Motor Vehicle Inspection Division of the State Motor Vehicles Dept. was announced by Director John W. Kissack.

Marion Simmons, owner of the T & S Auto Clinic in Hastings, will move to Norfolk to become area supervisor replacing Ken Franke, who has reached the mandatory retirement age.

Jack Ritonya of Omaha, former owner of a service business, becomes an area supervisor in Omaha, teaming with Lou Kostka, who has had more than 425 stations to supervise in the Omaha area.

Kostka, former officer of the Omaha police force, will help train area supervisors in investigative techniques and case documentation against firms which do a poor or fraudulent job, Kissack said.

Kissack said the new appointments reflect efforts to improve the inspection program by hiring area men qualified to follow up complaints, perform spot checks and crack down on stations not performing inspections properly.

Butz To Speak

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz will speak here Feb. 11 at a luncheon at the National Farm Institute.

Opposition Expressed To Reclamation Project

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

The Mid-State Reclamation Project, which would provide surface-water irrigation for portions of south central Nebraska between Lexington and Grand Island by diverting the Platte River into two off-stream irrigation reservoirs, has found a new opponent in the federal Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

The bureau released a position statement warning that the project, if completed according to recent detailed planning by the Bureau of Reclamation, would constitute a danger to wildlife — especially the sandhill crane and whooping crane — despite its provision for a national wildlife refuge, a state wildlife management area and three state waterfowl areas along the dewatered Platte.

The Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife's study of the project was prompted by changes in the Bureau of Reclamation's planning, cutting the number of offstream irrigation reservoirs from 23 small ones to 2 large ones, the statement said.

After the study, the report read, ". . . it is our conviction, that if the Platte River is dewatered, there is no way the National refuge or other mitigation measures included in the Bureau (of Reclamation's) 1957 report could compensate for the wildlife and environmental losses which are now attributed to the Mid-State Division project.

"Contrary to conclusions reached in 1957," the report continued, "significant environmental losses would occur in the Platte River Valley from the proposed diversion dam near Lexington downstream to the confluence of the Elkhorn and Platte Rivers" if adequate flows are not maintained.

If the project is completed, the position paper said, "it is essential" that a minimum flow necessary for wildlife be allowed to bypass the diversion dam. The statement included minimum flow requirements for all months of the year.

"Preservation of the river is paramount," the paper said, "with efforts directed towards maintaining the natural environment of the stream and preventing degradation of adjacent habitat."

The Mid-State project, under discussion by the Mid-State Reclamation District for more than 30 years, has come under recent criticism from the National Audubon Society and an association of local farmers known as the Mid-State Irrigators.

The Mid-State Reclamation District has the power of taxation, but needs federal aid. Congress authorized the completion of the project by the Bureau of Reclamation in 1967, but the appropriation of funds depends on the signing of a minimum number of acres in irrigation contracts.

Man Charged In Robberies, Sexual Assaults

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A man who gave police Omaha and Chicago addresses is scheduled to appear in Municipal Court here for a preliminary hearing Jan. 17 after being charged Monday with three counts of robbery and single counts of rape, sodomy and kidnaping in connection with three incidents.

Held in Douglas County jail in lieu of bonds totaling $10,000 was Eugene Pratt, 21. Municipal Court Judge A. Q. Wolf set bond.

Pratt was arrested Friday in the doorway of the North Branch Library, police said. Officers said a security guard on duty in his car phoned police after he saw a man whom he said matched the description of one sought in connection with robbery and sexual assaults on several women.

Pratt was charged with kidnaping, robbery and sodomy in connection with an incident last Wednesday. A 25-year-old woman told officers a man forced her at knifepoint to drive her car from 31st and Taylor streets to an unknown location.

The man took $2, forced her to perform unnatural sex acts and attempted to rape her, she told officers.

Pratt also was charged with the robbery of a 22-year-old woman who told officers a man with a knife and a wooden club took $9 and tried to rape her on Dec. 15.

He also was charged with the robbery and rape of a woman Dec. 13. The woman, 34, told police she was robbed of $14 and a female friend, 40, of $6 by a man with a knife. The man forced the two into their car and raped the 34-year-old woman, she told officers.

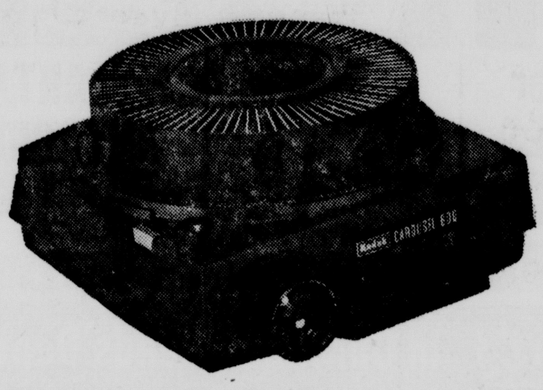

California City's 1st Law Forbids Chopping Trees

Irvine, Calif. (UPI) — This new city has its first municipal law. It requires woodsmen to spare that tree or else.

The 18,000 residents of Irvine voted three weeks ago to incorporate as a city, and the papers were filed with the secretary of state only a week ago.

The first major legislation passed by the City Council was a law forbidding the cutting of any tree with a trunk more than three and one half inches in diameter. It was designed primarily to safeguard the eucalyptus trees that surround the city.

Sunday Journal and Star

ACTION LINE

DIAL 477-2121

Or Write P.O. Box 81669, Lincoln, NE 68501

Want a question answered? Action on something? Phone or write ACTION LINE, Sunday Journal and Star, giving name, town, daily paper (Star, Journal or Sunday) plus your request. Calls or letters from unidentified persons are not used. A pen name or initial will be used with the town if requested and if the caller or writer also provides his correct name and address.

Could a game be arranged between the University of Nebraska Cornhuskers and, say, the Minnesota Vikings?
—G. R., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: It's doubtful. The Vikings may have seen the Huskers in the Orange Bowl and may not care to play them.

We pay our physician each time before we leave his office as per his policy. Now Medicare has paid the physician, so it appears he is being paid twice. Medicare investigated and said we would be reimbursed by the physician, but after two months, there has been no response.
—J. Kuska, Lomita, Calif.

ACTION LINE: The physician checked with his bookkeeper and says you paid for extensive work performed in his office after a fall and later you were admitted to the hospital where the bill came to $35. This was not paid. So when the Medicare check came in to be applied to your office visit bill, the bookkeeper applied it against the $85 hospital bill. This resulted in your being issued a $3.20 check for the difference between the Medicare payment of $88.20 and the hospital bill.

Another check with the Medicare office resulted in a thorough investigation ot the situation. Results: Medicare actually overpaid you on this series of bills by sending a partial check to you and a partial check to the physician for the $118 bill for office visits. You are being contacted personally about the matter and hopefully it will be corrected soon.

Is there a separate fishing license for ice fishing this winter? If not, what are the restrictions. —J.F., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: State Game and Parks Commission officials noted that the same license can be used with this restriction: up to 15 hooks can be in the water, whereas during other seasons only two lines with two hooks each can be in the water at the same time under one person's control.

Restrictions as to catch limit apply equally to ice fishing and regular season fishing.

Could I have the address of Jerry Tagge, John Rodgers and Jeff Kinney? —Lisa Bickert, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Best bet would be to write the University of Nebraska football stars at the NU Athletic Dept., NU Coliseum, Lincoln, Neb. 68501.

Why is the flag at the new Game and Parks Commission building on 33rd St. not illuminated at night as law requires? —John Newman, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: At the time the flagpole was installed, underground wiring was not installed to light the flag at night, says Game and Parks Commission Director Willard Barbee. And, he says: "I'm not prepared to go to the expense of putting in the wiring or mounting unsightly lights on the building . . . (so) we'll just stop flying the flag at night."

This would be in direct opposition to state law passed in 1969 requiring all public city and state buildings display the flag day and night (illuminated) until the end of the Vietnam conflict.

We are a group of 18-year-olds and want to know the age at which one can play bingo. —M.G., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: You have two years to wait.

State Statute 9-108; "No person under the age of 20 years . . ." shall play bingo.

A few months ago I read of a firm that paid several thousands of dollars for an old bottle of wine. I have a bottle of wine that is 130 years old. How can I find out if it is valuable? —Mrs. J. D., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: According to the owner of a newly-established wine shop in Lincoln, the value (as well as taste) depends on the vintage, estate and district of a foreign wine. Domestic wines would not be included. You could bring in the bottle to a wine shop of your choice for testing.

Carpenter Offers Bills To Provide Elderly Aid

A package of bills designed to provide financial assistance for the elderly was presented to the 1972 Unicameral Tuesday by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff.

LB1084 would provide a 50% property tax exemption for homesteads owned and occupied by persons 65 or older, not exceeding $250.

Carpenter's bill would wipe out homestead exemptions for other Nebraskans, except disabled veterans who would continue to enjoy a 90% exemption based on the actual value of their homesteads.

Other bills in the package include LB1082, granting a utility bill discount of at least 25% to customers of public service companies who are 65 or older, and LB1083, providing a one-half fare for persons 65 or older who ride the public buses in Lincoln and Omaha.

Among other new bills introduced was Sen. Richard Maresh's proposed constitutional amendment to grant a five-year state income tax exemption to any physician who locates in a town of 2,000 population or less.

The Milligan senator's plan was contained in LB1106.

Sen. Sam Klaver of Omaha produced LB1092, which would permit the sale of liquor at retail on college and university campuses.

Carpenter proposed establishment of a Commission on Drugs in LB1114, and his LB1081 would create a Commission on Mexican-Americans.

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh sponsored LB1115, providing a program for the treatment and rehabilitation of intoxicated persons and alcoholics, and abolishing the crime of public intoxification.

Photographs would be required on drivers licenses after Jan. 1, 1973 under terms of LB1087, signed by Sen. Gerald Stromer of Kearney.

Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell sponsored LB1090, which would extend Internal Revenue Service investment tax credits to Nebraska's state income tax system.

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln would provide state income tax exemptions for armed forces personnel serving their first enlistment or drafted into service. His proposal is LB1094.

A tax study package included bills changing the aircraft fuel and mobile home tax systems, and increasing the corporation income tax rate from 20% to 25% of the personal income tax rate.

Among rules changes presented to the Legislature was Barnett's surprise proposal to have the Unicameral devote the first 20 days of each session to meeting as a budget unit composed of eight subcommittees.

The senators would hold hearings, review budget requests and submit recommendations to the permanent Budget Committee.

Eight subcommittee representatives would then meet with the regular Budget Committee to prepare an appropriations bill for consideration by the Legislature.

Barnett's proposal was forwarded to the Rules Committee for its recommendation.

Youth Is Granted Restraining Order

. . . Against O'Neill School Board

An O'Neill High School student was granted a temporary restraining order against school officials Tuesday, ordering them to allow 16-year-old Michael E. Thomas to attend classes regardless of the length of his hair.

The suit, brought before U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom by the students mother, Marilyn Palmersheim, his legal guardian and a special education teacher at the school, and her attorney, Larry Langdale, cooperating attorney for the Nebraska Civil Liberties Union (NCLU), alleges Thomas was informed by O'Neill High School Principal Jerry Williams on Dec. 17 that the length of his hair constituted a violation of the dress code in effect at the school.

The suit alleges Thomas was suspended from classes and ordered to sit in the balcony of the school gymnasium until he got his hair cut. The student stayed in the balcony for three weeks until the school recessed for Christmas vacation, the suit alleges.

During that period of time, the suit claims, Thomas "was attacked by another student with a knife who attempted to forcibly cut his hair."

The suit asks a total of $35,000 in damages and names as defendants, Williams, school Superintendent Kenneth Anderson, C. Russel Foree, president of the O'Neill High School board of Education, and board members Gilbert Poese, Robert Waters, John Watson and Morgan Ward.

The suit asks $5,000 compensatory damages because Thomas' educational career was allegedly interrupted and jeopardized and may lead to failing a semester of school.

The suit alleges Thomas was a subject of public scorn and ridicule, suffered shame and humiliation and great mental anguish and emotional distress, for which $20,000 compensatory damages are sought.

The suit also alleges "enforcement of said policy and rule is inconsistent with established law" and "refusal to permit Thomas to attend classes constitutes a knowing and willful violation of his constitutional rights," for which $10,000 punitive damages are asked.

Along with the temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction granted by Judge Urbom, $50 damages and costs were awarded to the plaintiff.

A hearing date of Jan. 15 at 9 a.m. was set for the preliminary injunction by Urbom.

NCLU has won two similar cases in the federal courts, but this is the first suit asking damages. The NCLU board said damages are being sought because school officials are apparently continuing to ignore legal precedents.

Senators Open Debate On Change For Regents

The Legislature Tuesday launched into consideration of its holdover bills from the 1971 session, opening debate on a proposed constitutional amendment broadening the powers of the University of Nebraska Board of Regents.

Action on the measure, LB127, was pending when lawmakers adjourned for the day.

The bill proposes a constitutional amendment which would grant the Legislature authority to give the board governing power over other public educational, research or service institutions.

"This is the gradual approach to coordination of higher education," Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell said.

Whitney sponsored the proposal as chairman of the Nebraska Constitutional Revision Commission.

The commission, he said, recommended that the state colleges continue to be governed by their own board of trustees "until the Legislature decides otherwise."

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha suggested that while the Legislature was considering the proposal, "why not be consistent" and provide for statewide, rather than district, election of regents.

The 1971 Legislature killed Chambers' bill to provide for district election of school board members.

"Either it is proper to provide representation by districts or it is not," he said.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff thereupon offered an amendment to the bill, providing for statewide election of regents.

Chambers said he would support such an effort, even though he favors district representation. At least such a proposal would "bring the issue before the people," he said.

Carpenter's amendment was pending when the lawmakers adjourned.

Sen. Chambers Plans To Seek Re-Election

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said Tuesday he has decided to seek re-election to a full four-year term in the Legislature this year.

"Even though I have misgivings and my heart is not in it, I will run again," the 34-year-old lawmaker said.

Chambers was elected in 1970 to fill the last two years of the term of the late Sen. Edward Danner, who died Jan. 26, 1970.

In the 1970 general election, Chambers unseated Sen. George Althouse, who had been appointed to fill Danner's post until the election.

Chambers had considered bowing out of the Legislature after the 1972 elections and, at one point, mentioned the possibility of an independent petition campaign for the U.S. Senate as a means of raising issues with which he is concerned.

His decision to seek re-election was based on two major considerations, he said.

"I want to monitor prison reform activities to make sure they are carried out," Chambers said.

"And I want to be certain we have a strong voice in the Legislature which will continuously articulate our problems and recommend solutions."

Chambers represents the 11th District, which includes Omaha's predominantly black Near North Side.

County Board Pay Hike OKd; Colin Opposes $2,000 Boost

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County Commissioners Tuesday approved a $2,000 annual pay raise for commissioners beginning in 1973.

However, Commissioner Robert Colin Sr. opposed the hike from $8,000 to $10,000 annually on grounds that the office is a part-time position and "I feel it should be paid a part-time salary."

The present salary of $8,000 paid to the commissioners, Colin said, is equivalent to a $16,000 per year job which in many cases, exceeds the salary now paid to other elected officials "who are required not only to devote full time to their jobs but assume much more responsibility."

The newest commissioner on the board said he feels paying high salaries to elected part-time officials is not in the best interest of the taxpayers and high salaries "would encourage citizens to run for a part-time office for the money and not because they have a desire to serve the community."

Bringing personalities into the pay hike question, Colin stated that he did not feel the members of the Lancaster County Board deserve an increase in salary for the following reasons:

—Lack of desire and ability to cooperate and work together in the best interest of taxpayers.

—Decisions made by the majority of the board that were not in the best interest of taxpayers.

—Decisions made by the majority of the board during closed door meetings.

—Decisions made by the majority of the board without the knowledge of the entire board.

—Lack of desire on the part of the majority of the board to make changes in procedures that would create efficiency.

—Regular open public meetings being recessed and then closed at a later time or date unknown to the public or the entire board.

Commissioner William Grossman said he felt that the $10,000 annual salary for the commissioner post is "reasonable" and that the board should go along with the recommendation of the Nebraska Association of County Officials which had recommended a maximum of $10,000 for commissioners in counties the size of Lancaster.

He said the position has a great deal of responsibility and he had kept account of the hours he personally spends on county business which totaled about 30 hours per week.

"It costs me a substantial amount to be on this board," he said, noting that he is willing to sacrifice that much time from his regular profession as an attorney "because I'm interested in government and have a desire to do the best I know how for the county."

County Board Chairman Kenneth Bourne, who chaired the state committee which made the recommendations for salary increases for commissioners beginning with the 1973 term, said that Douglas County had exceeded the $10,000 recommendation and had set the salary at $12,000 because of the added work load and time involved.

Newly-appointed Lancaster Office for Mental Retardation (LOMR) director John Luebs spoke out in behalf of the increase in annual salary for the commissioners.

He said that a great deal of responsibility goes with the position and that it warrants "at least $12,000 to $15,000" per year.

County Commissioners Defer Action On Retroactive Salary Increases

Lancaster County Commissioners Tuesday deferred action for a week on retroactive pay increases for county employes back to when the President's wage freeze went into effect but approved the 11 holidays for 1972 urged by county officials.

The commissioners all indicated mixed emotions in granting pay increases for county employes retroactive to Aug. 23 when they would have gone into effect had it not been for the freeze.

Commissioner Robert Colin Sr. said he wasn't sure which way the board should go.

"I think we should consider what the President was trying to do with the freeze but I don't want to deprive the county employes of anything."

(AP)ay Increases Legal

County Attorney Paul Douglas, who had informed the board last week that it is legal to grant the back pay increases in a lump sum, told the commissioners Tuesday that it is a board decision and that it may do as it chooses in granting or not granting the back pay.

Commissioner William Grossman said that with everyone now seemingly getting the wage increases the "freeze doesn't mean very much."

"However, I hate to see the county employes penalized when everybody else is getting theirs," he said.

He and the other two commissioners indicated they would like to study the matter more before making a decision. decision.

11 Holidays Approved

In other business, the board unanimously approved after considerable discussion the 11 holidays for 1972 urged by county officials after a meeting last week.

The officials unanimously agreed last week to back the county's observance of the 11 holidays set out in state law and followed by the state offices.

County Board Chairman Kenneth Bourne at last week's board meeting had indicated that he had visited with Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf and expected agreement between the city and county on the same eight holidays observed by the two governmental bodies in 1971.

He said Tuesday he had received word from the mayor that the city would observe the same eight holidays.

However, County Assessor Fritz Meyer told the commissioners that there was no need for the city and county to "go together on holidays any more" since many of the functions formerly performed by the city and county are now performed only by the county.

He said rarely does an individual coming to the County-City Building have business with both the city and county.

"The City and County are independent from each other and should be," he said, "But all of a sudden the city moves in and we do what they tell us."

Colin said he didn't think it was necessary for the county "to follow" the city but thought there should be some agreement for the taxpayers' convenience that the building be either opened or closed.

Grossman said that he felt that the holiday problem would be greatly simplified if all public offices were closed the same days and moved that the county go along with the state holidays and ask the city and municipal court to do the same.

Holidays approved for 1972 are: New Year's Day; Lincoln's Birthday; Washington's Birthday; Arbor Day; Memorial Day; Independence Day; Labor Day; Columbus Day; Veterans' Day; Thanksgiving, and Christmas.

Farmer Signup Date Postponed

Washington (AP) — The Agriculture Department has decided to postpone the start of farmer signups for 1972 crop programs for wheat, feed grains and cotton, a spokesman said Tuesday.

The signup was originally scheduled to begin Jan. 17 and continue through Feb. 25. The new dates are Feb. 3 to March 10.

One official said the additional time would give the department an opportunity to look over a special survey report on farmers' planting intentions for 1972 crops. That report is scheduled for Jan. 27.

At a 7:30 o'clock ceremony, which was solemnized on Thursday evening, Dec. 23, the marriage of Miss Janet Susan Fricke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Fricke of Rising City, to Milton Bemis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bemis, also of Rising City, took place at the First Lutheran Church in Rising City. The Rev. Milan E. Swasko read the lines of the service.

Mrs. Wayne Vanek, sister of the bride, served as the matron of honor; and the other attendants included the bridesmaid, Miss Lisa Fricke of Rising City, sister of the bride; and Mrs. Delmer Rathje of Shelby.

Michael Struebing served Mr. Bemis as best man. Allan Kuzma and Dave Struebing of Rising City were groomsmen; and Gary Bemis of Surprise, and Ralph Glock of Blair seated the guests.

For her wedding, the bride chose a gown fasioned of peau de soie and antique peau d'angel lace. The Empire bodice featured a high neckline and a wide panel applique of the lace; and the lace was repeated on the deeply-cuffed Bishop sleeves. Wide scallops of the lace on either side of the A-line skirt created a redingote effect; and French pleats added back fullness to the gown. Her train-length, lace-edged mantilla veil was held in place with a coif fashioned of the lace.

The bride is a graduate of Platte College in Columbus, where she is a member of Phi Theta Kappa honorary. Mr. Bemis is a former student at Nebraska Wesleyan University, and he is affiliated with Phi Kappa Tau fraternity.

Opening lead—king of clubs

This hand occurred in the Gold Cup, Great Britain's premier team of four event, in the match between a London and a Yorkshire team.

At the first table, with London North-South, the bidding went as shown. Something obviously went wrong with the bidding when the London pair failed to reach even a small slam—with seven spades, seven hearts and seven notrump all ice cold.

North was chiefly at fault. He failed to realize that he had not represented his strength in full by bidding first three diamonds and then three notrump.

He should have become unalterably slam-minded from the moment South opened two notrump, and West's intervention in clubs should have whetted his appetite all the more. He bowed out much too soon with three notrump.

North presumably would have bid three diamonds had the ace been simply the deuce, and he should have recognized this during the bidding. South easily made all the tricks for a score of 720 points.

At the second table, with a Yorkshire pair now North-South, the bidding, after two passes, started in this colorful fashion:

South: "Two cloobs."

West (imitating South): "Dooble."

After a few more rounds of bidding, the Yorkshire North-South pair got to six spades, at which point West, the Londoner, said: "Seven Cloobs. You can dooble me if you like."

North did, and West went down 1,300 doobled!

Down seven would have registered a clear profit for the East-West pair had their teammates at the first table bid six spades (1,460 points) or seven spades (2,210 points), but the way things actually went, the London team lost 580 points on the deal

New Project Discourages House, Bicycle Thefts

Chicago (NFS) — A new program for discouraging household and bicycle thefts is being made available to communities throughout the nation.

Called "Project Theftguard," the program is centered around the use of electric engravers. A sponsoring organization loans the engraver for three or four days to participating families, who engrave a driver's license number on all valuables.

They then make an inventory of these valuables indicating where the number was engraved. Finally, they display a "Project Theftguard" sticker on the back and front doors and where other entry would be most likely.

A SPECIAL "Project Theftguard" sticker is available for bicycles.

According to Dremel Manufacturing Co., Racine, Wis., makers of electric engravers, programs similar to "Project Theftguard" have been operating since 1963, when one was first initiated in Monterey Park, Calif.

Dining with Wine

Since time immemorial, Italy has been known as: "The Land of Wine"; and is today, the world's largest producer with an annual production of approximately two billion gallons of both red and white wines.

The Italians are the most natural wine drinkers in the world and consume an enormous quantity of both good and bad wines each year. Since the supply is plentiful and the prices are low the pleasures afforded by this most healthful of all foods do not tax the Italian's budget and he enjoys his "vino" unstintingly.

Unlike most grape-growing countries which have but a small portion of their soil suitable for grape growing, Italy is one vast vineyard, with each province or district producing wine with its own characteristics. From the toe of Italy's boot which produces the rich Marsala to the slopes of the Alps in the north, the Piedmont region, from which come the sturdy and full-bodied Barolos and Barberesco wines, every area produces wine which is suitable for export. Italy has thus become one of the world's largest exporters of wine, and the excellence of its many types of wine has made them famous and in demand throughout the world.

Grape growing and wine making is a very important segment of the Italian economy. About 25 to 30 per cent of its agricultural force is engaged in this industry and the value of the wine crop represents about 10 per cent of the entire agriculture revenue. Almost ten per cent of the Italian agricultural acreage is devoted to grape growing.

Until recently, the Italian wines have not offered the buyer the consistency of quality enjoyed when purchasing French or German wines. The Italian wine industry was, largely, uncontrolled and the purchase of a bottle of Italian wine was a rather risky venture since the purchaser could not be assured that the wine described on the label was the same as that in the bottle. The shopper had to be a knowledgeable wine expert being able to identify the offerings of a reliable wine producer or had to rely on a dependable wine merchant who offered only the wines of the best Italian exporters. However, Italy has in the past few years adopted wine control laws patterned after the French "Appellation Controlee" laws, and today the buyer of a bottle of Italian wine bearing the control seal is assured of both quality and positive identification of the bottle he is buying.

Most Americans ask for Chianti, the very popular wine from the province of Tuscany — easily recognized by the straw covered "fiaschi" in which it is bottled. But Italy offers a vast range of fine wines. Some of the better known varieties are the Barbera, Dolcetta, Grignolino and Nebbiolo by the Villa Doria; the Lambrusco and Trebbiano of Alberti and the Valpolicella and Bardolino by Sanzeno.

Italy also makes millions of gallons of sparkling wines known as Asti-Spumanti and Nebbiolo and LaCrima Cristi or "Tears of Christ". These are very low in alcoholic content and are sweeter than the sparkling wines of France or the German Sekt. One of the best of these delightful wines is that offered by Marchesini Della Rovere. It may be served with any food and at any time — from appetizer to dessert.

A CHILD'S WORLD

BY PHYLLIS WOOLEN

DEAR Mrs. Woollen:

Our oldest child has been sick with a chronic illness for a number of years now. However, in spite of this medical problem he seems to be getting along fairly well.

Our problem is that our other children are beginning to see this son as being favored, and we are realizing that the constant attention that has been shown to him is creating a problem. It is becoming evident that our son is demanding attention regardless of whether has to do with his illness or not.

We are somewhat puzzled with what our course of behavior should be at this point, and whether or not it is too late to reverse a bad situation that we have created.

We would appreciate your advice on this matter.

PUZZLED

In a situation such as this, it is a human tendency to capitalize on the gains it will bring in the form of sympathy. We often see adults who use the same method to gain from a physical or mental disadvantage.

It becomes a natural development of a child who has to have special attention for a while to continue to make demands when they are no longer necessary, and even to expect special privileges and attentions. The child discovers that it is to his advantage to play up his illness.

There is, in fact, no good way to heal or help a child initially without expressing concern and thereby developing the potential for this problem. The most effective way to deal with it, however, is to be matter of fact about the illness or disability, and he can learn that everyone in the course of his life will suffer with illness or perhaps some kind of disability. The parents must relate: (1) that they will respond to a genuine illness and need to the best of their ability; and (2) that no one is deservant of extra sympathy because he must learn to accept the problem since all people, in one way or another, must learn to cope with special situations in their lives.

It is important to make as many demands on the chronically ill child, within his limitations and abilities, as it is to make on the normal child. This might seem harsh to outsiders, but it will relieve both parents and child of magnified problems later.

When such demands are placed on the ill child, he may well react strongly emotionally. This in turn creates guilt feelings on the part of the parents. The parents should not feel guilty, because they do their child no favor by allowing him to capitalize on his illness. A well adjusted adult, especially one with a chronic illness, or handicap, is one who has learned not to dwell on his disability. He must learn, through his parents, to respond to situations not in terms of his illness, but to the best of his individual ability.

ABBY

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to the secretary whose boss received pornographic mail was, in my opinion, shortsighted. The secretary's job is to assist her boss in his business duties, not to be forced to participate in his voyeurism.

Having had the same experience myself, I threw away the literature and photographs — choosing to believe that it was unsolicited mail rather than believe that the man I was expected to show respect for had thoughtlessly (or intentionally) subjected me to the trash that came in the mail addressed to him.

One day he asked me if that was all the mail there was because he had been expecting something else. It was then that I learned that he had actually sent for this pornography I promptly admitted that some had come, but I had been throwing it away. He seemed shocked.

Then I asked him why he didn't have that stuff delivered to his home, and he replied, "My wife would be offended — she doesn't share my interest in voyeurism." I told him that I didn't either, and that I felt that I deserved no less consideration and respect than his wife.

This opened the door, conversationally, for him to tell me about his dreams and fantasies which involved me. It was apparent that he felt he was sharing with me an imagined experience which he thought I would find flattering. People who get their kicks "watching," also enjoy talking about it.)

I quit my job, but the problem of what to tell prospective employers about why I left a top-paying job as secretary to the president of a well-known company plagued me, so once again, it is the woman who pays. Nuts to you, Abby!

MONEY MATTERS

BY LINDA OLIG

Moving should be no spur-of-the-moment process — you should obtain estimates and make your reservations well ahead of time. And there are many other suggestions that will save you time, money, and confusion, as well as hearrbreak if some of your belongings are damaged in the process.

When you have a representative come to your home to prepare an estimate of how long it will take them to pack and move your items and how much it will cost you. be sure to show them everything, including that old trunk of your grandfather's that has been collecting dust in the attic for years—if you are going to take it with you, that is. Not showing certain items will not save you any money, for the estimate is simply an estimate—in fact, it may cost you more in the long run if the move takes much longer than anticipated. You may then be required to pay overtime or for an extra trip.

Another thought is that you may want to be rid of several items—through a garage sale or donations to your charity—in order to avoid moving some items that are useless.

The time you choose to move may also have an impact on the cost. Avoid, if possible, moving during the summer months even though that may be easier on the children and yourself. More than two-thirds of the moves made annually take place during the summer—therefore, the prices are often higher and it may take you longer to recieve your household goods at the final destination. Also, most major moving firms offer reduced, seasonal rates during the less hectic winter months.

Many families who are contemplating a move volunteer to pack their own dishes and so forth—thinking they will save a few cents here and there. However, if you do this yourself, you, not the movers, will be liable for any damage, to packed items.—When you let the movers pack all of your possessions, they are liable for anything that is damaged including things they have packed.

Speaking of damages, the movers will make every effort to protect your furniture while it is in their truck. Should any damage occur, be sure to bring it to their attention and file a claim with the local agent who is responsible for repairing or replacing the damaged item. Therefore, it is quite important to be there when your household goods are being loaded on the van and also when they are being unloaded. For long distance moves, the professionals will prepare an inventory of your belongings at the origin point—be sure to keep a watchful eye on that inventory, for they will be recording any present damage to each item. This is for the movers' protection. If you have any objections to those notations, be sure to make the professionals aware of that.

When making reservations for your move, be sure to give yourself a few days' leeway at both ends to avoid extra charges — if the van is late arriving to pick up your furhishings, you may have to pay another month's rent: and if the truck arrives at the destination ahead of schedule and ahead of you, you may have to pay storage charges.

Luncheon

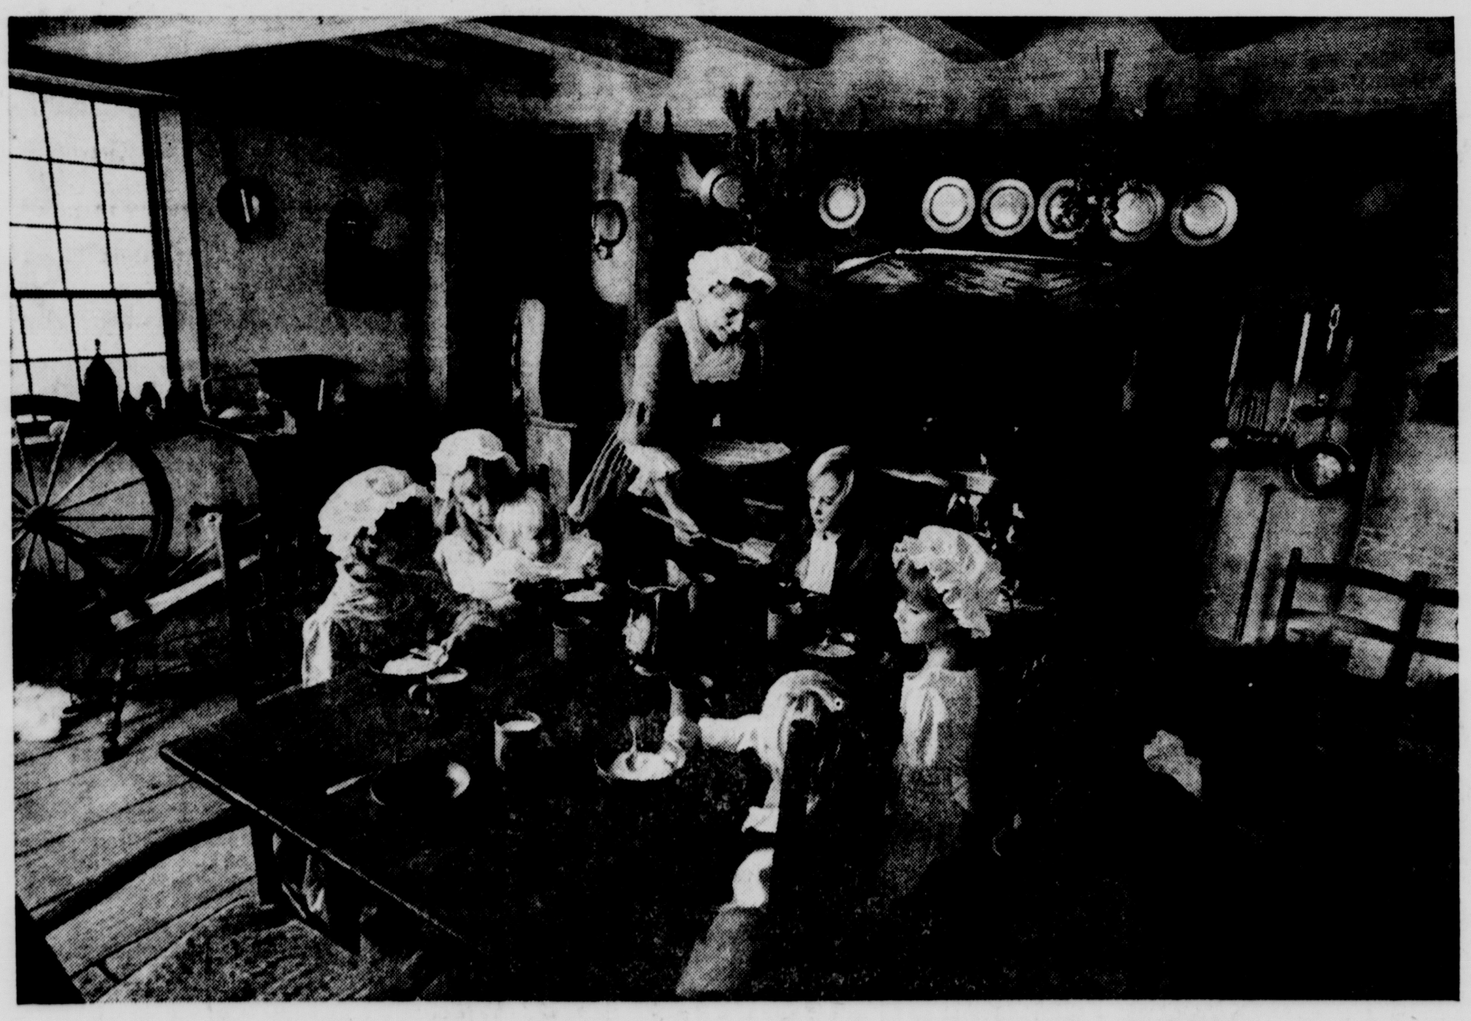

A luncheon meeting is on the agenda Friday afternoon, Jan. 7, for the members of Deborah Avery Chapter, DAR. The 12:30 o'clock event will be held at Hotel Radisson-Cornhusker.

In the 1770's, Virginians were eating 'flummery' for dessert — a kind of pudding with fruit.

Now, we're introducing some of our own.

Creamy pudding with bits of apricot, pudding with peaches, pudding with pineapple.

They're altogether new tasting kinds of desserts that come in single-serving, easy-open cans.

And they come only from us. Del Monte.

School Tax System Challenge Planned

Papillion (AP) — There may be a Nebraska version of the now famour Serrano school tax decision in California.

The Papillion School Board has decided to go ahead with a court challenge of the present property tax system for financing public schools.

However, the case probably will be a taxpayer's suit and several Papillion district families have indicated they will become plaintiffs, John P. Kelly, school board attorney, said.

The district then probably would join the suit as a plaintiff. Kelly said the case will be filed in U.S. District Court in Omaha.

In the Serrano decision, the California Supreme Court ruled the local school property tax uncons titutional because wealthier districts could provide better educations, sometimes at a lower tax rate, than poor ones.

The state court returned the case to the lower trial court for further proceedings and orders for an "orderly transition" to a new system.

Similar rulings have since been handed down by federal district courts in Texas and Minnesota, Kelly said.

Henry Jelinek Dies; Founder Of Wilber Bank

Crete (AP) — Henry V. Jelinek, founder of the Wilber State Bank and a former vice president of the American Bankers Assn. for Nebraska, died in a Crete hospital Monday at the age of 89.

Mr. Jelinek formed the Wilber State Bank in 1916 and remained active in the banking business for 60 years. About 10 years ago the Wilber State Bank merged with the Saline State Bank of Wilber.

He is survived by his wife, a son, Howard, Manchester, N.H., and a daughter, Mrs. Joan Riebow, Oxnard, Calif.

Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. Friday in the First Evangelical Lutheran Church of Wilber.

Air Pollution Workshop, Hearing Slated

Omaha (AP) — A free public workshop Jan. 10 and public hearings in Lincoln Jan. 20, offer Nebraskans their final chances to determine the cleanliness of the air they breathe, a leading environmentalist said Tuesday.

Curt Abdouch, chief naturalist at the Fontenelle Forest Nature Center, said air pollution authorities from four states will present the workshop to be held at the Prom Town House at 7 p.m. Jan. 10 at which the proposed Nebraska Air Quality Plan will be discussed.

Public hearings will be held at the State Capitol Jan 20 by the State Environmental Control Council after which a state plan and regulations for curbing air pollution will be adopted.

Abdouch said the Jan. 10 workshop is the only one in the state and at this time the 350-page state plan will be discussed. He said without attending the workshop people "probably won't have the information to testify effectively at the Lincoln hearings."

Copies of the proposed state plan are available for inspection at these locations:

Health Department, North Platte; city hall, South Sioux City; Permits and Inspection Office, Omaha City Hall; Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Department air pollution office, Lincoln; State Department of Environmental Control office, Lincoln.

Groom Is Late

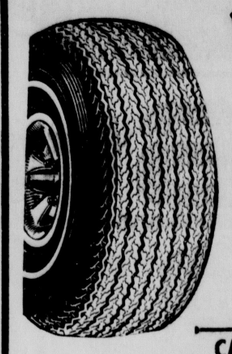

Turin, Italy (UPI) — Francesco Gallina, 20, was a few hours late for his wedding to Rosa Tragotti. He had to thank police for letting him get married at all. A police patrol car caught him stealing gas from a parked car early in the morning. They let him go when he explained he had to rush to his hometown of Alba to get his wedding suit and all the gasoline stations were closed.

Umbrellas Lost

Moscow (UPI) — Muscovites lost more women's umbrellas during 1971 than any other item, according to the man in charge of the lost luggage office at the Kursky Terminal. Gloves ran a close second followed by men's portfolios and women's handbags.

Tavern Closing Was Necessary

Belleville, Ill. (UPI) — The owner of the Coal Bin Tavern said he had to close the place after pressure from county officials forced him to put tops on his topless waitresses. Edward Becker said it was embarrassing to let passerbys see his tavern was open but nearly empty.

Rehearing Overruled In Suit Against Ford Motor Co.

By United Press International

The Nebraska Supreme Court has overruled a motion for rehearing in a decision upholding a $325,000 damage claim against Ford Motor Co., clearing the way for an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court clerk's office reported the action was handed down without comment.

Ford had asked the court to reconsider a November ruling on a suit filed against it by a Chadron woman who was injured in an accident 12 years ago.

Janet Kohler contended the cause of the accident, which involved a 1960 Ford Falcon and which killed the driver and left her confined to a wheelchair, was a faulty steering mechanism.

The Supreme Court upheld the District Court's ruling in favor of Miss Kohler in its November decision. It also upheld the doctrine of "strict liability" of a manufacturer for its products.

In asking the court to reconsider its decision in the case and grant a rehearing before the bench, Ford contended the evidence was insufficient.

The company, represented by the Omaha legal firm of Cassem, Tierney, Adams and Henatsch, said there was no "direct" evidence that a broken tooth in the steering gear locked, causing the accident.

Manual Lists Services State Can Provide

By Associated Press

A 260-page looseleaf manual designed to tell Nebraskans what services state government can provide was placed in circulation Tuesday by Gov. J. J. Exon.

The manual is titled "Guide to State Social and Economic Services." It was prepared jointly by the State Office of Planning and Programming, the Department of Economic Development and the State Technical Assistant Agency.

The manual will be distributed initially to the 629 units of local government within the state.

First of its kind in Nebraska, the manual reflects an attempt to make the resources and services offered by state government more readily available to Nebraskans who conduct the affairs of local government.

The book contains information on 260 programs which are administered by and available through state agencies.

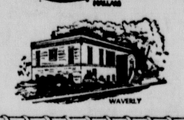

Not included are services offered by the University of Nebraska or state colleges. Later updated versions of the manual will include these programs as well.

Remember us and tell others. Thank you.

Misty, moisty days around our scatter-by-the-bay. Hardly a place to find shelter except under an occasional dry martini. We make them in the kitchen.

Do you realize, citizens, that most people eat and drink in the kitchen? It is one of the wonders of our wonderful times. The dining room is like man's appendix — it's there, but you hardly know it until it gives you trouble.

☆ ☆ ☆

This was revealed by the furniture people. Furniture people study these trends and then "reveal" them through newspapers. This is a revealing business.

Anyway, they made a study and found nearly everybody eats in the kitchen.

A whole lot of people do a little social drinking alongside the sink, too.

You know, the couple you invited for dinner drop in. The lady of the manor says: "What would you like to drink? Will you make it, Joe?"

Joe drifts to the kitchen. His male guest trails, saying:

"Anything I can do to help?"

They shake up a pair of blockbusters on the cutting board. And away they go for the evening.

☆ ☆ ☆

"It may be," says the furniture study group, "That this trend to the kitchen is subtly encouraged by the woman of the house. It saves housework. Prevents glass rings on the good furniture. And the modern kitchen, with counters and recessed ovens, is quite an attractive and cozy room."

My own kitchen is pretty cozy at that.

I keep the cloves (for hot buttered rum) just behind the sugar. So when I am juggling a hot glass and reaching for the cloves, I usually spill sugar all over the floor.

There is nothing sweeter than a floor covered with sugar. It makes a cozy, crunching sound underfoot.

So what else is new in the house? An intelligent question and we have a daffy answer. (Not mine. I simply reveal.)

"The American housewife would like a bathtub that can be raised and lowered. Housewives complain that it is hard to get in and out of low tubs. They also say they have to get down on hands and knees to bathe the baby."

They want somebody to put an Otis on the bathtubs. Going Up! Step back in the tub, please.

We bathed our babies in the sink. A masterful piece of efficiency combined hygiene and our social life. But apparently many housewives mop off their moppets in the tub. Not only a back-breaker, but dangerous.

What else do our housewives want, bless their hearts? They want to eat in the kitchen. But they would like to have a formal dining room — "to teach the children better manners."

(It seems to me, children bathed in the sink while the guests are socializing, have a great opportunity to learn manners.)

If you interview ladies of the households, you will find that they deny they want to eat in the kitchen. They will scream to high heavens that they want to eat in all the formal manners of the most formal dining rooms.

However, visiting friends where there are formal dining rooms, I seldom find anybody in them. The housewife says brightly: "I just thought we'd have a light buffet tonight. It seems so much more cozy."

The dining room was there, and they were glad to have it. It fulfilled a large need. But it doesn't function. It just sits there.

☆ ☆ ☆

Surveys of mine are inconclusive because when I ask typical American homemakers, they swear that they are using the formal dining room practically all the time.

And when you get one of these things started in the typical American home, you wish you hadn't.

Storm Makes Life Miserable

By United Press International

A wide ranging arctic-storm made life miserable for millions of persons Tuesday from the Canadian border to deep in Texas. Wild winds thrashed Southern California.

Snow, sleet and freezing rain turned streets and highways into treacherous ribbons of ice. Motorists battled traffic snarls in cities from Chicago to San Antonio and El Paso, Tex.

Thirteen persons were injured — none seriously — when a Chicago-bound Greyhound bus carrying 30 persons flipped onto its side on an icy curve on U.S. 77 north of Hillsboro, Tex.

School Bus Skids

A school bus carrying seven junior high school students skidded off an icy road, hit a power pole and came to rest teetering on a ledge over the ice-clogged South Plate River in Denver. The children scrambled to safety out windows and a rear door, and only one required hospital treatment.

A motorist in San Antonio, blinded by sleet and rain and the glare of headlights, struck and killed a woman. Kansas counted two traffic fatalities and Illinois and Indiana one each blamed on the weather.

A bus bound for Little Rock from Kansas City went off icy U.S. 71, injuring at least four persons near Nevada, Mo.

Four persons died and five others were injured in a wind-fanned fire that burned through a 22-unit apartment building in Springfield, Ill., in snow and 14-degree temperatures.

In Amarillo, Tex., where the mercury fell to 1 above zero, a 2-year-old was asphyxiated by gas fumes and six members of his family were overcome.

Fierce, cold winds swept through Southern California mountain passes. They triggered power blackouts in sections of four counties, downed trees and utility lines, smashed windows and overturned several trailers and camper trucks. Such vehicles were banned on some highways.

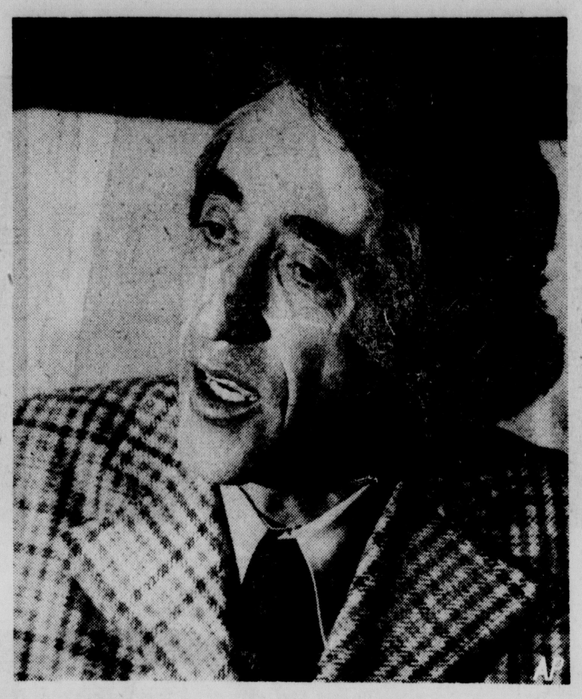

Wind gusts were reported at up to 90 miles per hour. The San Fernando Valley was particularly hard hit.

Snowdrifts piled so high on the plains of northwest Texas that cattle roamed from one ranch to another. "One rancher told me that when he went out to check his herd this morning he had '25 extra cattle," said Bill Loyd, a Muleshoe banker. "The snowdrifts were covering up the fences and it let the cattle move wherever they wanted to."

Dozens of schools closed throughout central Texas. The Midland-Odessa airport was shut down. Bitter cold threatened tender vegetables in the Rio Grande Valley.

"People don't even drink coffee in this weather," said Mrs. Claudette Ferguson, whose restaurant at Tulia, Tex., was almost empty. "Farmers just stay home."

Harsh cold gripped the northern Rockies and upper Midwest. It was 36 below zero at Laramie, Wyo., and 29 below at Bozeman, Mont., and Detroit Lakes, Minn. Denver had a record low of 16 below for the date.

DON'T LAUGH; HE'LL RUN

Comedian Pat Paulsen launched his campaign for president, again, in Manchester, N. H., at a news conference Tuesday. This time he says he's serious even though he drew too few votes to be counted in the official records in 1968. He took to the streets to get signatures on a petition he must present by Thursday afternoon in order to get on the ballot. He said he considers the main issues to be war, pollution and poverty.

Catholic Charities Conference Plans To Lobby

©The New York Times

Washington — In a major shift of policy, leaders of the National Conference of Catholic Charities said Tuesday that the organization planned to supplement its traditional social services with a new focus on political activism.

The change in emphasis will still have to be approved by the organization's national membership, but a spokesman said approval was almost certain.

Msgr. Lawrence J. Corcoran, secretary, acknowledged that the move would probably result eventually in a dispute over its tax-exempt status.

"We intend to strongly resist this," Msgr. Corcoran said. "There should be the opportunity for nonprofit organizations to lobby."

A spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service declined to comment on the case, but he said the law authorized tax exemptions to organizations only if "no substantial part of (their) activities is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation."

Argues Neutrality

Corcoran said he did not expect the policy change to result in a substantial increase in the group's lobbying in the near future, but argued that political neutrality should not be a requirement for tax exemption.

"One of the very unfortunate things that is happening today is the squeeze being put on nonprofit organizations in their religious dealings with Congress and the federal government," he said.

"If they are squeezed out of trying to make their contribution in the arena of public social policy, then the arena is left open only to the business establishment, and perhaps to the labor movement."

He contended that lobbying designed to improve society was "a religious activity" that should not be regulated by the government.

The Roman Catholic organization, which was established in 1910, was described by Corcoran as the nation's largest private social welfare agency. Among its member institutions are orphanages, homes for the aged, homes for unwed mothers and day care centers.

Corcoran and other officials of the organization have scheduled meetings with the leaders of many of its 500 agencies and branch offices in the nation's 159 dioceses.

Example

As an example of the kind of changes likely to occur, the monsignor pointed to the financial assistance provided the National Welfare Rights Organization by the Brooklyn Catholic Charities office.

He said the policy switch represented an implementation of the social theology of the Second Vatican Council, which concluded in December 1965.

"There has been much renewal in such areas as liturgy, preaching and the sacraments," Corcoran said, "but there has not been the same kind of progress in social work."

He said the focus on organizing the poor was rooted in a perception of the church as community, rather than as hierarchy.

He also said, "It is a question of coming to grips with the question of a materialistic and hedonistic society which is in conflict with Christian values."

Births Decline

Singapore (UPI) — Singapore's birth rate fell for the third consecutive year in 1971, registering 17 births for every 1,000 persons. The Straits Times newspaper said the country's annual birth rate was nearly 29 per thousand when a family planning campaign started 12 years ago.

Decision Is Expected On Releasing Report On Alleged Police Brutaltiy

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said Tuesday that a statement will be forthcoming on his decision to release the report of the Human Rights Commission's investigation into alleged police brutality.

The mayor said that copies of the confidential report — compiling over 38 hours of testimony — are being sent to City Council members. However, before the report is issued publically the mayor must give his approval.

Schwartzkopf pointed out that release of the report will be held until the completion of the trial of Cleveland Randolph, who has been charged with resisting arrest. Testimony in the case was heard Tuesday and will continue Wednesday in Municipal Court.

The mayor indicated that he felt the report should not be made public.

"This is what bothers me," the mayor said. "I have given my word and the Chief of Police has given his that this matter would be kept strictly confidential."

He added that he had told witnesses testifying before the Human Rights Commission that their statements would remain confidential.

The matter of alleged police brutality against minority groups was first brought to the City Council's attention Nov. 1st, at which time the matter was referred to the Human Rights Commission for investigation.

The incident in question occurred Oct. 24th, when Randolph, who is black, alleged he was assaulted after being taken to the City-County Jail.

The commission's report on the incident and on over-all police-community relations originally was due in November. However, the commission sought and received several time extensions from the Council to complete their investigations.

Martial Law Ended In Greece

Athens (AP) — Martial law officially ended for most Greeks on Jan. 1 except those in the Athens, Piraeus and Salonika areas, according to a decree published Tuesday in the government gazette.

A third of Greece's almost nine million residents live in the three regions, considered by the army-backed Greek government to be the centers of antigovernment activity.

Arson Remains Possibility In Bus Blaze Investigation

The fire Dec. 20 at the Lincoln Transportation System building which destroyed two buses and extensively damaged a third is still being listed as "undetermined" in origin, according to fire inspector, Fred Soflin, but the possibility of arson has not been ruled out.

"We weren't able to find a normal cause for the fire," Soflin said, adding that all possibilities are still being investigated.

The inspector said they have ruled out the possibility of a passenger leaving a lighted cigarette on one of the seats because of the time element involved. He said they had thought the blaze may have been caused by an electrical short, but in going over the circuit breakers, all were found in working order and none indicated that there had been a short.

Soflin said, one of the problems they face is the amount of fire that developed in a relatively short time. He said a driver returned a chartered bus to the building at 10:30 p.m. Dec. 19 and did not notice any indications of a fire, but approximately an hour and a half later two buses were completely engulfed in flames.

Many people have been interviewed including past and present employes, Soflin said, "we are at a stand still at this point in the investigation."

He said that there were a lot of people around at the time of the fire and one of them may come up with a picture or information that would give them something new to work on.

Full Support Of Education Said Solution To Problems

State Education Commissioner Cecil Stanley said Tuesday that most of Nebraska's school reorganization problems and inequalities in educational opportunities would disappear with "full" support of education.

Speaking before the Lincoln Rotary Club luncheon, Stanley said several bills for state school aid changes are expected to come before the 1972 Legislature.

"Full state funding of education," he said, "would eliminate the 'property tax advantaged' school districts and generally equalize educational opportunities for all school children in the state."

However, Stanley cautioned full state funding of education could lead to state control of schools.

He said he favors "local control over schools" and expressed hope any state funding method would maintain local control.

Stanley said the recent California case attacking inequities in educational opportunities because of the unequal tax support of schools carries implications for Nebraska and most other states.

Rae Viewing Minneapolis Bus Offer

Lincoln Transportation System (LTS) manager Jerald Rae traveled to Minneapolis Tuesday to inspect buses which may be purchased to replace the three that were destroyed in a Dec. 20th fire.

Rae reported to the City Council Monday that the buses which were destroyed by the early morning fire which swept through the LTS garage could be replaced by used buses at a price under $1,000 each.

Finance Director James Mallon said that the loss was fully covered by insurance.

Infants Killed

Budapest, Hungary (UPI) — Eva Jakab, 21, was confessed that she strangled her two illegitimate children because she was "ashamed" of them, police said.

Fire Damage At Residence 'Considerable

A fire at the Roger Kitsmiller residence at 813 West A, Tuesday afternoon resulted in "considerable" damage to a bedroom and furnishings and extensive smoke damage to the rest of the house, according to fire inspector, Fred Soflin.

Soflin said that the two Kitsmiller children, Daniel, 5, and Joseph, 4, had been playing with their mother's hair dryer in the bedroom and then went upstairs and left it running on the bed. The hair dryer overheated and set the bedding and bed on fire.

The children's mother, Collette Kitsmiller, smelled smoke and went to investigate, Soflin said. When she got to the bedroom she found the bed totally engulfed in flames. She then took the children to the neighbors and called in the alarm.

The State Liquor Commission will hold a hearing 9 a.m. Wednesday on suspending or revoking the Morocco Lounge's liquor license.

Havelock Businessmen Establish 1972 Program

The board of directors of the Havelock Business Association has established a program for the coming year and designated committee assignments.

Five basic committees were established and a general program was approved for each committee, according to the association president, James Studnicka.

Studnicka said each committee would be co-chaired by two members of the board of directors and that members would be asked to volunteer for committee work.

He said the committee and co-chairman are:

—Retail promotion: Glenn Statler and Bill Kaiser.

—Public relations and intra-city liaison: Wayne Matthes and Don Wenzl.

—Membership: Mark Kipper and Bill Nueksch.

—Community relations: Robel Gustafson and Jeannette Rockenbach.

—Budget: Dick Harner and Niles Jobst.

"This is the first time our association has started out with a formal, written program of work," Studnicka said.

"Although the goals of each committee are general in their listings," he added, "we are counting on individual committees to work out the details for accomplishment of the overall goals."

He said the concept will enable the association to chart a definite course of action and assess progress.

The first general meeting will be held Tuesday, January 18 at 7:00 p.m. in the meeting room of the new Victor E. Anderson Library, he said.

REPORTS

Holding a year-end news conference Tuesday was Housing Secretary George W. Romney to report accomplishments of his department. Romney said last year marked a three-year effort to organize HUD along functional lines and to decentralize its operations to provide more effective service to local communities.

Thompson Elected Head Of Housing Authority

Former City Councilman Carroll Thompson was elected chairman Tuesday of the Lincoln Housing Authority (LHA) even though Thompson accepted the post on the condition that he would resign in February if he is not reappointed to LHA.

Thompson's present term on the Authority expired last June 30 and he has not yet been reappointed or replaced by Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf.

A nine-year veteran of the LHA, Thompson succeeds Kenneth King whose resignation from the Authority became effective Dec. 31, 1971.

Thompson said, "I will serve as chairman until February and if — by that time I'm not reappointed — I will resign."

He added that he did not think he could serve as chairman not knowing from "one week to the next" if he would be replaced.

Originally appointed to the LHA by Mayor D. L. Tyrrell in February, 1963, he was reappointed by Mayor Dean Petersen in July, 1966.

Thompson, 44, in addition to serving on the City Council has served as chairman of the Mayor's committee on Human Relations, has been a member of the Mayor's Committee on Housing, active in the Republican Party and is an executive in a Lincoln public relations firm.

Change Favored

San Mateo, Calif. (UPI) — Apparently a large majority, 88%, of independent businessmen favor a change in automobile insurance to some kind of no fault system, the National Federation of Independent Business said.

Extended Benefits Are Available For Some Unemployed Persons

Nebraskans who have exhausted their unemployment insurance benefits during the last half year may be eligible for extended benefits, State Labor Commissioner Gerald E. Chizek announced.

Chizek said the state is participating in the federal-state extended unemployment compensation program that goes in effect when the unemployment rate climbs to 4.5% on the national level. Chizek said the program makes extensions possible as the purpose of the program is to help unemployed workers who have no further benefits available from regular unemployment claims.

Chizek said the Division of Employment is making an all-out effort to inform individuals whose claims are exhausted that they may be eligible for extended benefits under the new program.

Chizek asked all unemployed persons whose claims were recently exhausted to come into the nearest Division of Employment Area Claims Center during the first week in January.

Outbreak Of Influenza-Like Illness Apparently Still Far From Epidemic

What health officials are terming "sporadic outbreaks" of an influenza-like illness continued in the state Tuesday, although the disease was apparently still far from epidemic.

Ten Lincoln schools reported absenteeism due to illness at 10% or more, while two more area health facilities announced they were restricting visitations.

The health facilities are Madonna Home and the Lincoln Veterans Administration Hospital. At the VA Hospital, officials said visits would be suspended except for immediate families of seriously ill patients.

Russell Murray, director of the State Health Department's communicable disease control division, said he had received word of an unusually high incidence of the influenza-like illness in Central City.

Murray noted that Lincoln schools continued to be affected, but he said a check with several local industries turned up no unusual rates of absenteeism due to illness.

Murray said the health department is collecting samples for a test to determine the nature of the illness, but he said it would probably be mid-month before any results are received.

He said such a disease is not considered epidemic unless 25% to 30% of a population is affected.

On Tuesday, about one-fourth of the Lincoln Public Schools reported absentee rates of 10% or higher.

The schools and their absentee rates included: Belmont, 11%; Clinton, 15%; Elliott, 17%; Everett Junior High, 13%; Hartley, 10%; Havelock, 10%; Lincoln High, 12.5%; McPhee, 11%; West Lincoln, 10%, and Whittier Junior High, 14%.

School officials said some of those figures appeared to be inflated by incidences of parents keeping healthy children home in hopes they might not contract the virus.

Tax Information Booklets Offered At Post Offices

A 160-page booklet giving information on how to fill out this year's federal tax returns will go on sale this month at 15,000 post offices across the country, the Postal Service announced.

"Your Federal Income Tax" was written by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) and contains examples illustrating how the tax law applies to actual situations.

The Postal Service cooperated with the IRS in making the booklets available and it will be found in first and second class post offices.

Another IRS publication, "Tax Guide for Small Business," will also be made available at a limited number of first class stations.

Both booklets sell for 75 cents a copy.

Regents Receive Nominations For Chancellorships

University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner said Tuesday the NU Board of Regents has received lists of candidates for chancellorships on the NU Omaha and Medical Center campuses. However, Varner said he expects the regents to take no action on either appointment at Saturday's board meeting.

An NU-Omaha search committee submitted a list of six candidates last month, Varner said, and he turned the list over to the regents.

Of the six names on the list, only one is a Nebraskan, Varner said.

A list of candidates for the medical center chancellorship was given the board last month.

Recreation Dept. Slates Classes

The Lincoln Recreation Department said the following classes will begin the first week of January at the center at 1225 F:

Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 5 and 6: Creative play for children ages 3½ to 5 years either 9:15 to 11:15 a.m. or 1:15 to 3:15 p.m. on Wednesday or 9:15 to 11:15 a.m. on Thursday for 10 weeks; $3.50 fee.

Saturday, Jan. 8: Baton for children ages 5 to 12 years, 10:00 to 10:45 a.m. for 10 weeks; $2.00 fee. Tap, for children ages 5 to 12 years, 11:00 to 12:00 a.m. for 10 weeks; $3.00 fee. Acrobatics and tumbling, for children ages 5 to 7 years, 2:00 to 2:45 p.m. and for children 8 to 12 years, 3:00 to 3:45 p.m., for 10 weeks, $3.50 fee.

Navy Grounds H46 Helicopters After 3 Crashes

Washington (AP) — The Navy has grounded all H46 helicopters pending investigation of three crashes which killed 14 Marines in the Far East, it said Tuesday.

Two of the Marine helicopters crashed at sea while operating off the helicopter carrier Tripoli in the Indian Ocean. Seven Marines lost their lives in these two crashes.

The Tripoli was sent into the Indian Ocean, along with nine other U.S. Naval vessels, during the brief India-Pakistan War.

The naval task force never approached closer than several hundred miles to the war zone and is now off Ceylon.

The third helicopter crash involved a craft at the Air Force Base in Yokota, Japan in which seven Marines were killed.

Senator's Aide Sentenced To Prison, Fine

New York (UPI) — Robert T. Carson, former administrative assistant to U.S. Sen. Hiram Fong of Hawaii, was sentenced Tuesday to 18 months in federal prison and fined $5,000 for participating in a bribery scheme to quash several stock-fraud indictments.

Carson was convicted in November of conspiracy to misuse the office of Fong and perjury involving a bribe of $25,000 to try to quash a federal prosecution in a stock fraud case. He was continued free on bail pending appeal.

Lie Detector Tests For Fire, Police Candidates Backed

Omaha (AP) — Initial successes probably mean that candidates for both fire and police department jobs will be given lie detector tests, Public Safety Director Al Pattavina said Tuesday.

"This doesn't mean that the candidates for jobs are bad people," he said. "But the polgraph tests reveal information that would not be known in other types of examination."

He said there are some personality traits which were found in testing police candidates that would make a person ineligible for either police or fire work.

Tests given candidates for recruit training have shown for instance, that one candidate disclosed he had been turned down for employment at an Omaha business because of back trouble. Another was found to have been wearing contact lenses for eye tests given by the city.

In other cases some behavior problems were found which did not appear on city of Omaha records, Pattavina said.

No More Challengers

Miami, Fla. — Through the first 10 weeks of their season Nebraska footballers kept hearing it and kept reading it — that they hadn't played a worthy foe yet.

Through the first few weeks of the season even their coach, Bob Devaney, was saying he didn't know how good they were because he didn't know how good the opponents had been.

They kept making opponents look bad in beating them by 34-7, 35-7, 34-7, etc., and critics derisively were adding those beaten teams to what they were calling "Nebraska's Bum of The Month Club."

But it became increasingly apparent that one reason the Husker foes were looking so bad was that the Huskers were quite simply a very good football team.

Then came Oklahoma, ranked No. 2 and that's like a heavyweight champion fighting his top-ranked challenger. The Huskers won that one.

The heavyweight champion was then matched with a team that moved up into the top challenging position, Alabama, and in the Orange Bowl here Saturday night, they made Alabama look like a member of that Bum of The Month Club.

Bums, Contenders All Alike

Whether they be a member of the Bum of The Month Club or a top challenger the Huskers treated them all alike, save for Oklahoma.

The offense scored five touchdowns; the defense allowed one.

They may not have played all the challengers to their throne, but they played everyone that showed up to challenge them and it likely was the first team ever to play two games in one season against a No. 2-ranked team as the Huskers did in Oklahoma.

They ducked no one and even after whipping Alabama were offering to put their championship claim on the line against any takers.

That confident philosophy started here a year ago when Notre Dame's Ara Parseghian was making noises in an effort to get his Notre Dame team the final Associated Press No. 1 ranking and Nebraska was snowbound in Miami — because of snow in Lincoln, not in Miami.

"Tell Ara if he wants to play to come on down, we're just lying around down here," Devaney offered.

Saturday night as Devaney accepted the MacArthur Bowl, symbolic of the National Football Foundation's championship, he remarked, "If we have to play another game to win it, we will."

His reference was to the foundation's decision to break precedent and wait until after the Orange Bowl to award the trophy to the winner.

And Willie Harper wanted to give the only other unbeaten team in collegiate football a shot at the Huskers. " Maybe we ought to just take his bus to Toledo and settle things with them," Harper allowed as the Huskers bussed back to their Miami Beach hotel after the Orange Bowl triumph.

No One Else To Convince

But if there was anyone else who needed convincing, you can't find him in Miami and it's doubtful that you can find him anywhere if he had a TV set and had it turned on to the proper channel Saturday night.

One press box wit observed at halftime when the Huskers held a 28-0 lead. "They ought to keep Nebraska around for another week and let them play the winner of the Miami Dolphins-Baltimore Colts game."

No one would seriously put the Huskers in that class, but most are putting them in a class by themselves as far as the collegiate football world is concerned.

Commenting on a tongue-in-cheek remark made to an Orange Bowl committee member as to how the bowl could foist such a farce off on the people, Miami Herald sports editor Edwin Pope observed:

"It wasn't the Orange Bowl's fault. The committee came up with the ratings catch on the bowl season. It was just that nobody realized how stupefyingly strong Nebraska really was."

And commenting on the Alabama effort to play ball with the powerful Huskers, Pope wrote, "It was like trying to make a case stick against Perry Mason. No way."

Hull Having More Fun Playing Hockey

By CHIP MAGNUS
(C) 1972, Chicago Sun-Times

Chicago — Turning 33, Bobby Hull describes himself as "having more fun playing hockey than ever, probably no smarter than I was last year and weighing less than I have since I was 13."

"I keep hearing that I'm a smarter player than ever, but I don't feel any smarter than a year ago or a year before that. I am lighter, though, about 183 and I don't know why," Hull said as his Chicago Black Hawks' teammates helped him celebrate his birthday Monday.

It wasn't, of course, Bobby's lightest point since his youth. Three years ago, when he suffered a broken jaw and had his mouth wired, the weight plumeted from 194 to about 175. This time, he says he feels fine, not at all weak, but just has been losing weight.

"Maybe it's a good thing," he said. "They say you should take off some weight as the years go by, and it's not as if I felt weak or anything. All those birthday cakes they've brought me should come in handy to put back a few pounds."

On the eve of his birthday, fans deluged him with cards and cakes, so many that he could easily eat his cake and have it, too.

As for the fun in hockey, Bobby is finding that on the line with Pit Martin and Chico Maki, a line that has produced 25 goals and 62 scoring points in the 12 games since it was formed. Actually, Martin has centered the line before, the year Bobby came up with his high of 58 goals.

"We just work together so well," Bobby said, "and the other two guys work so hard that they make it easy, a real pleasure to play hockey."

Maki, of course, has been on a line with Bobby for years and regards his left wing simply as the greatest hockey player in history. Of Martin, he said, "As smart as they come, a hard worker and a really fast skater. He is a tremendous playmaker."

Martin, who was switched back to the line after injuries forced coach Billy Reay to do some juggling of the forwards, has found himself capable of more than he'd ever thought possible. "The way Bobby and Chico move up right with the play," he said, "I find can hold the puck and set up plays. Frankly, I never thought I could do it consistently.

"It's funny," he continued, "but we usually look awful in practice. Maybe we know what we can do and aren't working that hard to change things. I don't know. But when the game starts, we have the timing just right.

"That's the key to it, the timing. You know where your linemates are going to be, and it gets that you can even pull off a blind pass once in a while. Then, another big thing is that somebody is always ready to drop back and cover on defense, so we aren't hesitant about driving in, afraid that we might get caught up ice.

"Another important point is being able ti hang onto the puck. I find I can do it now, because the defense can't concentrate on any one of us. And the way Bobby and Chico skate, if I can hold onto the puck long enough, one of them is sure to be open for a good shot."

NCAA SET TO SWITCH?

Exec Council Seeks Changes

. . . IN CLASSIFYING SCHOOLS

Hollywood, Fla. (UPI) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association's Executive Council voted Tuesday to recommend that the NCAA revise its system of classifying its schools.

The recommendation of the Executive Committee would be considered at a meeting of the full NCAA tentatively set for next summer to consider a cutback in financial aid to athletes.

The re-organization could divide the NCAA, now split into college and university divisions, into as many as three or four categories of colleges and universities, based primarily on the size and scope of the schools.

An NCAA spokesman said the council decided that the re-organization should come before, or at least at the same time, as the proposed drastic cuts in scholarships.

The key proposal in the debated financial aid package would be to award aid on the basis of need only. The matter will first come before the association membership for discussion Thursday when the 66th annual NCAA Convention opens.

The scholarship proposal cannot come up for a vote, however, except in a special convention.

Both the financial aid measures and a group of proposals on recruiting are intended to save money for financially struggling college athletic departments across the nation.

The recruiting proposals, which will be up for a vote at the convention here, would tighten restrictions on recruiting high school athletes.

It would limit to five the number of institutions an athlete could visit in trying to decide on a college, allow only one visit to any one college, and limit recruiting visits to an athletic prospect to one.

The Council also voted Tuesday to allow college basketball teams to begin their seasons as much as one week earlier in the year.

Council endorsement of a proposal usually assures its passage. The council is meeting here prior to the opening on Thursday of the NCAA's 66th annual convention.

Formal discussion of financial aid proposals, cutting back on athletic expenditures to alleviate "tight money" situations in athletic departments, were not due until Thursday.

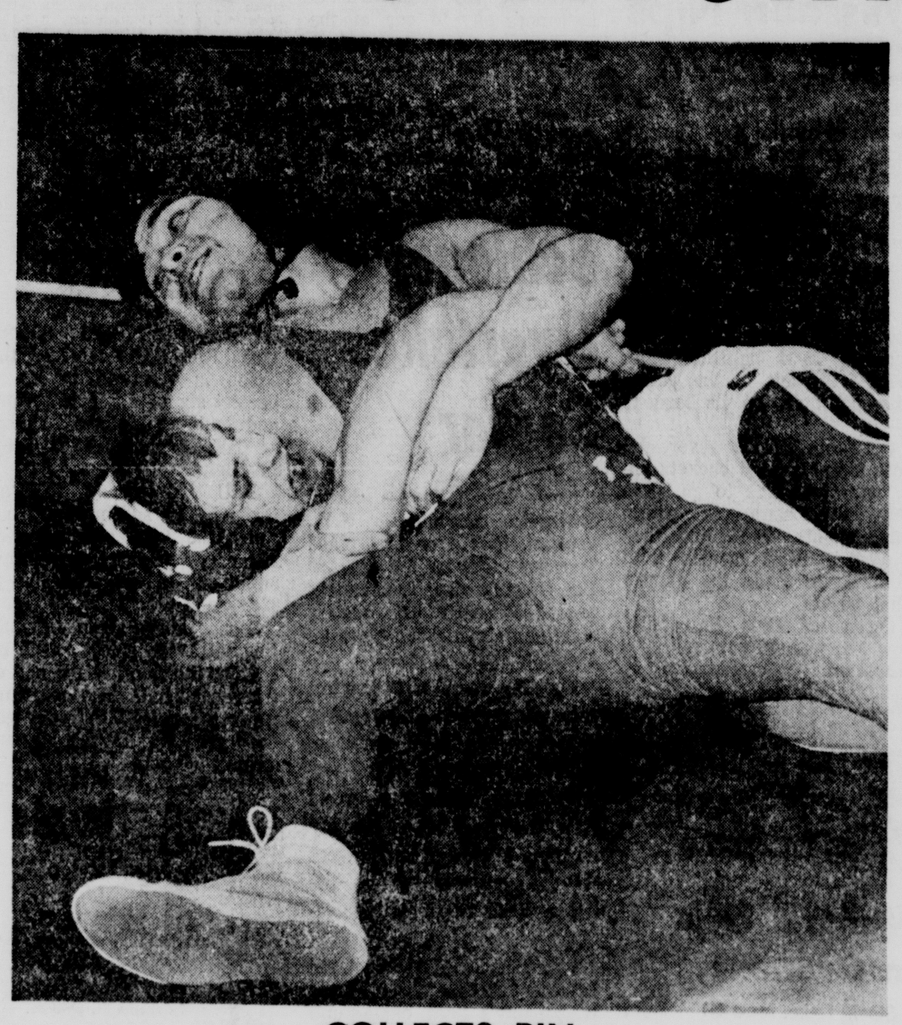

The basketball season proposal would allow the schools to play their first game the last Friday in November instead of Dec. 1. That could come as early as Nov. 24.

A proposal by the National Association of Basketball Coaches that two scrimmages be allowed in addition to the maximum schedule of 26 games was not endorsed, but will come up before the convention.

Also meeting prior to the NCAA convention was the Executive Committee of the American Association of College Baseball Coaches. Tom Chandler, president of the Association and Texas A&M Baseball coach, said the group is trying to convince major league baseball to draft only in June, instead of January and June.

Chandler, noting that college relations with professional baseball are the best ever, said the elimination of the January draft would mean pro baseball would not be able to draft 21-year-olds with a season of college eligibility remaining as is current practice in many instances.

Chuck Brayton, coach at Washington State and head of the NCAA's baseball rules committee, said the Southern Conference has been given an automatic qualification for the NCAA district baseball tournament.

Wesleyan Gets Started Right By Whipping Friends, 73-65

. . . PLAINSMEN ADVANCE TO 4-6 RECORD

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska Wesleyan started the year off right by grabbing a 73-65 win over Friends University at the Ira J. Taylor Gym Tuesday night.

Friends, now 6-2, finished with a 23-4 record last year and came within one victory of earning a berth in the NAIA national tournament in Kansas City.

The Plainsmen who moved to 4-6, will host the W-Club Invitational Friday and Saturday.

The game started, as if Friends was in for an easy night. The Falcons raced to 10-0 lead before Wesleyan scored.

In that stretch, the Kansans made five oof six shots from the field while NWU was in a zone defense.

Coach Irv Peterson had his Plainsmen change into a tight man-for-man and NWU started rallying by reeling off six straight points.

Friends held the lead for the last time with 13:58 left in the first quarter. John Strain connected on two consecutive fielders to put Wesleyan up to 18-15 with 11:56 remaining.

The Plainsmen then steadily built on their advantage with most scoring coming off a well-executed fast break.

By battling the taller Falcons evenly on the boards NWU was able to run and set up many scoring opportunities. Both teams finished with 48 rebounds.

Wesleyan led, 39-29, at the half and played a more cautious game in the last half.

Friends tried to press but the Plainsmen were able to break it most of the time. The Falcons tried a zone defense briefly but came out of it, when NWU went into a ball-control game.

Every time Friends would draw within seven points the Plainsmen would make free throws, after being fouled trying to stall and up the margin. Peterson termed the win a "good team effort."

Only eight players saw action for Wesleyan with six scoring."

Reidell Lintz and John Strain each had 17 points for NWU while Lyle Hiatt had 16, Dick French 12 and Mike Renken nine. Renken was the game's leading rebounder with 21.

"We blocked out well and were able to fight through the screens on defense," Peterson said.

"We didn't switch men and played them real tight. It was a good win over a good team," he noted.

Peterson pointed out Renken in particular as "doing a tremendous job." Renken was married in Imperial on Monday and returned to Lincoln about noon Tuesday.

UCLA Still Holds First In Ratings

Compiled From News Wires

UCLA and Marquette continued their domination of the wire service polls Monday, taking first and second respectively in both the Associated Press and United Press International ratings.

A nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters picked the Bruins as the top team for the AP, while for UPI, a board of coaches chooses the leaders.

Both polls have North Carolina in the No. 3 spot and neighboring South Carolina as No. 4. Indiana rounded out the top five in both polls after emerging as kingpins of the Old Dominion Classic during the tournament-happy holiday week.

The AP has Penn, winner of the Kodac Classic last week, in the No. 6 spot and Louisville in No. 7. Long Beach State held down No. 8 after winning the International City Classic; Virginia was No. 9 after taking the Palmetto Classic and Ohio State dropped to No. 10 after being beaten by UCLA.

The UPI has Louisville in the No. 6 position in the top ten, with Penn No. 7. Long Beach State, Ohio State and Maryland complete the group.

The only Big Eight team to make either rating was Missouri, ranked 19th by the UPI.

How Other Writers Viewed The Huskers

Miami, Fla. — How the nation's sports writers have seen Nebraska's 38-6 victory over Alabama for the national championship in the Orange Bowl here:

Bob Elliott
Miami Herald

Richard Nixon could have saved himself an awful lot of time Saturday night if he had placed a telephone call to Nebraska coach Bob Devaney at the end of the first half of the 38th annual Orange Bowl classic in the OB stadium.

For when the first two periods of the collegiate Super Bowl were finished, Devaney's gang of marauders held a 28-0 lead over Paul (Bear) Bryant's demoralized Crimson Tide, proud champions of the Southeastern Conference.

It all wound up with a 38-6 Nebraska victory, one of the biggest shockers of recent years.

Jack Griffin
Chicago Sun-Times

Merlin, the wizard of ancient times, couldn't have coached a ball club past Nebraska. This may be, as Bryant suggested, one of the finest college teams ever planted in a stadium.

Certainly, the Cornhuskers proved it in the Orange Bowl. But it wasn't just the one game. They've been proving it all season. The only challenges they had really came from within their own lodge, Oklahoma and Colorado.

Some of the Alabama patriots mumbled about the fumbles and interceptions that the Cornhuskers dug out of their darlings. And they hinted darkly but weakly that the war might have been different if the ball had bounced a little their way.

Don't you believe it. If the Cornhuskers hadn't minted victory out of Alabama errors, they would have found some other way to do it. Anyway, the name of the game is to make the other guy spit up the football.

Richard Dozer
Chicago Tribune

The powerful Nebraska Cornhuskers pulverized a pretender from the Deep South here, routing Alabama 38-6 in an Orange Bowl Classic to settle which team was first and which was second in college football.

Striking early on Alabama mistakes and Johnny Rodgers' dazzling 77-yard run to the end zone with a punt return, the mighty man from the Midlands left no doubt about No. 1.

But they whipped the Crimson Tide so soundly on the way to their 23rd consecutive victory that they cast considerable doubt over any claim Alabama might have had to a No. 2 ranking.

Devaney Honored

Oklahoma City (UPI)—Bob Devaney of Nebraska has been elected the nation's "Coach of the Year" for 1971 by the Football Writers Association of America, president Volney Meece of Oklahoma City announced Tuesday.

Meece said Devaney edged Alabama's Paul (Bear) Bryant and Iowa State's Johnny Majors in voting by more than 1,300 sportswriters. Others who placed high were Bob Blackman of Illinois, Chuck Fairbanks of Oklahoma and Bo Schembechler of Michigan.

Northwestern's Alex Agase was the 1970 winner.

Parkhouse Out For Senior Bowl

Mobile, Ala. (AP) — Two more new players made the Senior Bowl scene Tuesday as replacements for the 23rd annual all-star game in Mobile Saturday.

Tight end John Hulecki of Massachusetts was named to replace Penn State's Bob Parsons on the North squad and John Mendenhall of Grambling was brought in to replace Alabama defensive lineman Robin Parkhouse.

Parsons suffered a shoulder inqury in a dummy drill Monday. Parkhouse's ankle injury suffered in the Orange Bowl failed to respond to treatment. Both departed for home Tuesday.

Howe To Quit Job With Red Wings?

Detroit (AP) — A Detroit sportcaster said Tuesday that Gordie Howe, vice president of the Detroit Red Wings and former Wings' superstar for 25 years, is quitting the organization.

Dave Diles of radio and television station WXYZ broadcast that Howe "is disenchanted with the way things are run at Olympia Stadium," where Detroit plays its home National Hockey League games.

Brockington AP Top Rookie

New York (AP) — John Brockington of the Green Bay Packers, who shattered the National Football League rushing record for first-year running backs by grinding out 1,105 yards, was named Tuesday the NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year by The Associated Press.

The 6-foot-1, 225-pounder from Ohio State, who became only the fourth rookie in pro football history to gain 1,000 yards, was the overwhelming selection, amassing 43½ of the 60 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sportscasters.

Quarterback Jim Plunkett of the New England Patriots, the top vote-getter in the American Conference, was runner-up with 14½ while running backs Vic Washington of the San Francisco 49ers and John Riggins of the New York Jets picked up one vote apiece.

Nelsen-Griffin Bout Slated Wednesday

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Randy Nelsen has got his wish . . . Dan Griffin of Fairbury will fight him if the match can be made at the Lincoln Boxing Smoker Wednesday.

"He's (Griffin) been training pretty hard," says Murvel "Mumbles" Fentress, Fairbury boxing coach. "He trains about 2½ hours a night after he gets off work.

"His wind and stamina are better than Nelsen's so I think he can beat him."

Nelsen, the Lincoln Saylor fighting-coach, shrugs off any reference to his condition and says that he intends to fight his kind of fight and avoid mixing it up in close quarters with Griffin.

"That's how he's been winning," Nelsen explains. "He gets his opponents to fight his kind of fight then he hits them in the back of the head when they bend down.

"I don't go in that close so I think I'm going to win by staying away and boxing him."

Fentress says Griffin has been working on short jabs and hooks and plans to use this as an attack against Nelsen and his peek-a-boo defense.

"That's good," replies Nelsen. "I hope he fights that way because I'm not going to. I'm going to box him. That's my kind of fight."

Nelsen said he was glad that Fentress would agree to a Dave Underhill-Bruce Pearson rematch as "Pearson got robbed in his last fight."

Other fighters making the trip from Fairbury are Dave Truba, who Nelsen says he would like to match against Ron Stutzman, and Dan Peppercorn, who may fight Lincoln Saylor's Chip Williams.

"As a matter-of-fact," Nelsen says frankly, "Fentress can have just about any match he wants. I've got fighters who will fight anyone he wants to bring along."

The Lincoln Boxing Smoker will get underway at 8 p.m. at Pershing Auditorium with weigh-ins slated for 6 p.m.

Legislation Prepared To Prevent Colts' Move

. . . RUMORS INFLUENCED DECISION

Baltimore (UPI) — Rep. Edward Garmatz, D-Md., said Tuesday he will introduce legislation later this month subjecting professional football asd baseball to anti-trust laws preventing the Colts from leaving Baltimore.

Garmatz said he was motivated by rumors that Baltimore's pro football team may be sold or moved.

"Baltimore fans have supported the Colts with enthusiasm and loyalty," he said. "Baltimore city and the entire state of Maryland are proud of this fiotball team and any attempt to reward that kind of loyalty by selling the team would be a disgrace and an outrage."

Garmatz said his legislation would not only prevent fraschises from being moved at will, but would also prevent "such nefarious owner practices as blacklisting and throttling player negotiations, charging excessively high prices to fans and blacking out TV."

"It is a shame that national sports must be disciplined and governed," Garmatz said, "but in light of the brash attitude and oppressive business practices of the owners of pro athletic teams, I believe it is high time that these businesses be subject to the anti-trust laws."

Owner Carroll Rosenbloom was quoted Monday as saying he had no firm offer for the Colts and indicated he really wasn't interested in selling. His son Steve, President of the Colts, said nothing had been decided about a possible move to Tampa, Fla., or using that city for summer practice site.

The city of Baltimore began countering the rumors this week with a pro-colt campaign.

One began a series outlining the history of the franchise. The article pointed out that the Colt franchise was awarded to Baltimore in 1953, at least partially as a settlement by the National Football League of a court suit initiated by a group of Baltimore fans.

Tuesday, the Greater Baltimore Committee, a group of the area's 100 largest busisesses and corporations, proposed a $50 to $100 million downtown sports complex to serve both the Colts and the baseball Orioles.

Both teams are unhappy with antiquated Memorial Stadium and the Colts have said they will not renew their lease when it expires at the end of next season.

Rosenbloom has also talked of moving the team out of Baltimore city to one of the surrounding suburban counties. The rumors aof a possible move to Tampa are not taken seriously by many who believe Rosenbloom can't get the 20 votes from other teams needed to move a team.

Missouri Nips Ohio, 78-76

Athens, Ohio (UPI) — Missouri led all the way Tuesday night and shot 73.2 per cent from the line to record a 78-76 victory over Ohio University and its eleventh win against one loss this season.

Led by John Brown and Greg Flaker, both with 20 points, Missouri broke open the game in the second half after a 35-34 halftime lead. With 11:04 left in the game, Missouri built up its lead to 59-43.

OU came back, however, and both teams traded buckets until with just 1:52 to go, Ohio University came to within three points, 74-71 and then stayed at that margin until Tom Corde made the game's final basket.

Corde led Ohio University, now 3-6, with 23 points.

Colorado Slips By Tulane

New Orleans (AP) — Colorado put on a strong comeback in the final 90 seconds of regulation play, then kept things in control in an overtime Tuesday night to score a 75-74 victory over Tulane.

Tulane held a 64-58 lead with 90 seconds left in regulation play, but costly turnovers and cold shooting allowed the Buffaloes to knot it up in the final seconds.

Colorado led during most of the five-minute overtime and allowed Tulane's Ricky Miller to drive in for a layup to cut the winning margin to one point as the clock ran out.

Sooner guard John Gorman tied SMU with a layup with no time on the clock at the end of the second half. The overtime was close until SMU finally got a hot hand at the charity stripe.

Nicklaus Laughs Off Report Of Attempted Colt Purchase

LOST TREE VILLAGE, Fla (AP) — Jack Nicklaus got a chuckle over being rumored as head of a syndicate trying to buy the Baltimore Colts for $23 million.

"Twenty-three million?" Nicklaus asked. "They must think I'm Arnold Palmer."

The report came out of Baltimore that Colt owner Carroll Rosenbloom was negotiating to peddle the National Football League team to a group including Nicklaus and the Chase Manhattan Bank.

"Hmm, $23 million, that's a lot of birdies," the 31-year-old golfing great said in a strong denial. "If somebody offered me a team for $23 million, I'd begin to choke. I'm still trying to get my first million . . . to keep anyway."

The Golden Bear was among the 78,000 persons who witnessed the Colts' 21-0 playoff loss Sunday to the Miami Dolphins. "I was a little divided," he said.

"I am a big Miami fan, but have a lot of friends in the Colt organization."

Nicklaus, however, admitted at his lakeside home that he had been—and still is—interested in the possibility of being a pro football owner.

"We have been thinking more about a possible expansion team," he said. "Our price was about $13 million less than the figure mentioned in the erroneous Colt rumor."

Nicklaus and furniture king Harry Manguarian are "still doing our homework" on possible NFL ownership. "Most of the talk has centered around Tampa, a good place for a pro team."

The double Grand Slam winner is a confessed football nut. He follows NFL news closely and can usually name off the entire starting lineup of his alma mater, Ohio State University.

"As far as being an owner," he said, "it's like climbing a tree. I'd love to climb the tree, but first I want to see how tall it is and how strong the branches are."

Majors Acknowledges Rice Interview For Head Coach

. . . 'A BEAUTIFUL POSITION'

Ames, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State football Coach Johnny Majors confirmed to The Associated Press Tuesday night that he has interviewed for the dual position of head football coach and athletic director at Rice University in Houston, Tex.

Majors stressed that Rice officials had instituted the action and had contacted him first.

"I am not an applicant for the job, and I am not pursuing the job because I am extremely pleased with the progress being made at Iowa State," Majors said.

Majors acknowledged he was in Houston Monday for the interview.

"It's a beautiful position — athletic director and head coach — and an individual owes it to his family and to himself to look into it when a position such as this is available," he said.

Majors is reportedly one of three top choices for the Rice post, where officials are seeking a successor to Bill Peterson, now head coach of the Houston Oilers who resigned at Rice in December.

"There may be some applicants for the job — in fact they have a lot of applicants," Majors said.

The other two top choices, reportedly, are Homer Rice, former head coach at Cincinnati and now athletic director at North Carolina, and Barry Switzer, an assistant coach at Oklahoma.

"They contacted me, and I've talked with them," Majors said. "It's a great school and tremendous people, but so are the people in Iowa.

"My people knew I was going to interview but I've never looked for a place to go since I've been at Iowa State. I've had several chances to leave, and I've never had any desire to leave unless it's a very fine opportunity.

"Whether it's an opportunity for me or not at Rice I haven't determined.

"I think I have a good opportunity at Iowa State. I'm pleased to be associated with them. I've had chances before to go back South and I didn't go. So I don't think it's ethical for people to use that against me when I'm recruiting."

Majors feels the Iowa State football program has great potential.

"I'm in a position where I'm interested in getting to where we can compete for the Big Eight championship."

In this week's Associated Press football poll, three Big Eight teams, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Colorado finished one-two-three respectively in national rankings.

Majors has been at Iowa State four years. Last season the Cyclones had one of their best records in the school's history.

They finished 8-4 and played in their first bowl game. Majors was voted the Big Eight Conference Coach of the Year in 1971.

Houston television station KHDU reported Tuesday that Majors was Rice's first choice for the positions, but turned down the school's offer.

Majors, however, denied that report.

"This is not true," Majors stressed. "Rice is a great school and they are such a fine institution that if they had offered me the job I would not shame them by saying if I had turned it down."

St. Louis (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals signed Jim Maloney, former California Angeles and Cincinnati pitcher for the 1972 season Tuesday.

The 31-year-old righthander was given his unconditional release by the Angels Monday.

Hampered by hamstring injuries last season, Maloney had an 0-3 record in 13 Angel games and recorded a 5.10 ERA. The Cardinals said reports indicate Maloney's arm is sound.

Maloney played for Cincinnati from 1962-69. He won 23 games in 1963 and 20 in 1965.

Base Stealers Get Top Player Award

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — Centerfielder Amos Otis and shortstop Fred Patek, the base-stealing duo that sparked Kansas City to its best season, have been named co-winners of the first annual Royals Player of the Year award, it was announced Tuesday.

The two, whose 101 stolen bases was the highest output in the American League since 1917, were chosen to share the award by sports writers and broadcasters who covered the Royals in 1971.

Stocks Finish Higher

New York (AP) — Stock market prices closed around their highs for the day Tuesday after recovering from an early decline.

The closing Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 2.93 to 892.23. At one point it was down more than two points.

Analysts attributed the early market slide to profit taking, which they said was only to be expected after the six-week post-Thanksgiving rally in the last part of 1971.

"The action of the market today showed a persistent movement toward the 900 level on the Dow average," said Monte Gordon, an analyst at Bache & Co. "Its ability to recover from its early drop was a sign of this."

In the news background, many major banks lowered their prime lending rate to 5% from 5¼%, its lowest level in almost six years. Analysts said this further indication of the trend toward lower interest rates helped the market to advance.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks gained 21 to 56.44.

Big Board volume was 15.19 million shares, compared with 12.57 million shares Monday.

There were 837 advances and 590 declines out of 1,732 issues traded on the Big Board. The market had 28 new yearly highs and 4 new lows.

The Associated Press 60-stock average advanced 1.2 to 327.6, with industrials up 2.1, rails up .1, and utilities up .8.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index climbed .42 to 102.09.

There were 123 big blocks of 10,000 shares or more traded on the Big Board, compared with 88 Monday. The biggest was 200,000 shares of United Aircraft at 29¾, up ½.

Rails, chemicals, rubber issues and farm implements were mixed. All other stock categories were higher.

Volume leader on the Big Board was United Aircraft, up 1¾ at 31.

American Stock Exchange prices also climbed. The Amex price change index gained .08 to 25.69. Volume was 4.52 million shares compared with 3.79 million shares Monday. There were 556 advances and 367 declines out of 1,174 issues traded.

Corporate bonds, and governments were mixed.

Soybeans Ease More Than 2c

Deferred wheat options attracted buyers and, with short-covering, closed 2 cents higher. Corn and Oats eased around ½ cent.

At the close, soybeans were 1½ to 2⅜ cents a bushel lower, January 3.04⅜; wheat was ⅛ lower to 2 cents higher, March 1.61¾; corn was ⅛ to ⅜ lower, March 1.22¼; and oats were ¼ to ⅜ lower, March 73⅜ cents.

Jersey Standard Signs With Algeria

©The New York Times

New York — The Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) has signed a $400 million agreement with Algeria for crude oil deliveries starting in 1972, the company confirmed Tuesday.

The agreement is the second huge oil contract signed by Algeria and an American company in the last four weeks. The first was an $800 million deal with the Commonwealth Oil Refining Co. for crude oil and products deliveries over a 25-year period.

The Commonwealth deal caused arched eyebrows in the executive suites of the oil industry; the Jersey Standard contract is expected to raise them even higher.

Algeria is considered to be one of the more militant Arab nations. In recent years Algeria has nationalized both French and American companies, although paying compensation in all cases.

The Commonwealth contract was viewed as resulting from the request of a company desperately short of crude oil looking for a long-term source of supply from any source. Jersey Standard, however, is the world's largest oil company and the pinnacle of the international oil industry establishment.

One astute oil industry observer commented, "Jersey's willingness to deal with the Algerians, who have nationalized both French and American oil interests, must be seen as a seal of acquiescence if not approval of the actions of Algeria."

He added: "The difference between Commonwealth's doing business with the Algerians and Jersey's is as big or bigger than the difference between Commonealth's $18.1 million earnings last year and Jersey's $1.3 billion."

The way was legally opened for both contracts on Dec. 15 when the national oil companies of France and Algeria signed an agreement ending a bitter dispute set off in February with the nationalization of French oil and gas interests in the North African country.

The nationalization measures had resulted in a boycott of Algerian oil by the French, cutting Algeria's production to about half the one-million-barrel-a-day level of 1970. Non-French companies were unwilling to touch the disputed oil because of the possibilities of legal action.

Under the final agreement between France and Algeria, hte French received official compensation for the nationalized properties, but the amount was canceled out by back taxes and the French may have to pay money to Algeria. The French companies will continue to operate in Algeria but under control of the government.

The Jersey Standard deal will involve an average of more than 100,000 barrels a day over a four-year period beginning in 1972 and increasing through 1975.

Non-Residents Blamed For Many Drug Woes

Omaha (AP) — Persons who come to Nebraska to traffic in drugs are causing headaches for law enforcement officials and endangering resident youngsters they recruit to help them, the head of the State Patrol's drug control division said Tuesday.

Lt. Wayne Rowe said 1,804 persons were arrested in Nebraska in 1971 for drug offenses and at least 425 were non-residents.

That figure does not show the number of those who were residing in the state, but were here only to traffic in drugs — that would probably increase the arrests of out-of-state residents to one-fourth of the total, Rowe estimated.

When someone involved in illicit drug trade comes to the state, Rowe said, he recruits local youths to help them, thus making the problem more serious.

Rowe also reported such drug merchants have a "beautiful scheme" for leaving the local person holding the bag.

After an accomplice in Nebraska has harvested and prepared marijuana, for example, the out-of-state connection has a local youth drive him to an unannounced destination in another state. The hitch: if the car is stopped by authorities, the out-of-stater says he was only hitching a ride.

The local youth is stuck, even if he wants to help the authorities, because he doesn't know where he was going, only following directions.

Rowe said part of the problem is out-of-staters who believe, mistakenly, that the state law making marijuana possession a misdemeanor applies to all drug convictions. It does not.

The patrol would support legislation categorizing marijuana with LSD, diet pills and other drugs where penalties are concerned.

Last year, the average age of males arrested in drug cases was 19, females 18.

The state confiscated 8,590 pounds of marijuana in 1971; 515 grams of hashish; 26,057 doses of hallucinogens; 110,524 millgrams of cocaine and 664,011 milligrams of heroin, enough for about 8,300 doses.

Suit Charges Bayer Aspirin Is Not Superior

Detroit (UPI) — A $1.5 million lawsuit has been filed in U.S. District Court charging the makers of Bayer aspirin with conspiring to deceive the public in claiming its aspirin is superior to other brands.

The suit, filed by Atty. John M. Toomey of Ann Arbor on behalf of his wife and all aspirin users, names as defendants Sterling Drugs Inc., maker of Bayer aspirin; the American Medical Association (AMA); the American Broadcasting Co.; Detroit Television Station WXYZ, and an unidentified advertising agency.

The suit charges that the AMA published false claims that Bayer aspirin is superior to other, less expensive brands of aspirin. The drug company, advertising agency and broadcasters are charged with publicizing the AMA claim "knowing them to be untrue."

Lobster Tails, Black Cod Have Most Mercury

(c) Washington Star

Washington — Among seafoods now on the market, large lobster tails — in the three-and four-pound range — and black cod are the most likely to contain mercury contamination, according to a survey of seafood.

In a study by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), large lobster tails, which usually are available only in restaurants and hotels, were found to contain up to 0.68 parts per million of mercury.

The Food and Drug Administration has not set any level formally but uses 0.5 ppm as a "safe" working guideline.

NOAA's survey also shows that in 72 samples, 8% of black cod, a fish found off the West Coast, exceeded the guideline. Its mercury count went up to 0.8 ppm. As a result, all black cod over five pounds should be tested prior to sale.

Soviets Report Major Advance In N-Program

©The New York Times

Moscow — The Soviet Union announced Tuesday a major advance in its nuclear energy program with the end of construction of the world's first large commercial fast-breeder reactor.

Installations of this type, producing more nuclear fuel than they consume, are expected to be the mainstay of atomic power generation by the year 2000.

In announcing the completion of the fast breeder, Izvestia, the government newspaper, quoted D. Yurchenko, director of the power station, as having said:

"The completion of construction and installation of the station marks an important stage of this industrial experiment."

The 350,000-kilowatt-hour power plant, situated in the new town of Shevchenko on the desert coast of the Caspian Sea, will produce both commercial electricity and the energy needed to convert 30 million gallons of salt water from the Caspian Sea into fresh water.

SOLONS OFFER 83 NEW BILLS . . .

1972 Legislature Opens At Unprecedented Pace

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The 1972 Legislature burst from its starting blocks Tuesday plunging into an opening day of unprecedented activity.

Lawmakers introduced 83 new bills, including more than a score of major legislative proposals, engaged in a contentious debate over a resolution and even dipped into the stack of 123 holdover bills from the 1971 session.

But the latter effort proved futile when senators bumped into a significant constitutional amendment which could point the way toward single board control over institutions of higher education.

Faced With Decision

Faced with a major decision over a proposed amendment to provide for statewide, rather than district, election of members of the University of Nebraska Board of Regents, the Legislature decided to adjourn for the day.

The fast-paced opening day meeting of the second session of the 82nd Legislature lasted one minute short of two hours. Senators will convene Wednesday at 10 a.m.

After seating its single new member, Sen. LeRoy Pfister of South Sioux City, and reaffirming its present rules, the Unicameral's first official act was to approve a resolution congratulating NU Football Coach Bob Devaney, his staff and the Husker team for their Orange Bowl victory and successful defense of the national championship.

Go Big Red

"Big Red has done it again," proclaimed LR1, signed by Sen. E. Thome Johnson of Fremont.

It was approved on a 43-0 vote.

Among the major new bills included in the seven dozen proposals accepted for introduction were measures to initiate a state lottery system, grant personal property tax exemptions, provide for state support of the public school system and increase the state gasoline tax.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff produced a package of bills designed to financially assist the elderly with increased homestead exemptions and discounts for public bus fares and public utility bills.

Penal Reform Bills

The Judiciary Committee tossed in a number of its penal reform proposals, including the bill providing for implementation of a comprehensive reform program by 1974 and a proposed constitutional amendment to authorize bond financing of correctional facilities.

Sen. Gerald Stromer of Kearney sponsored a measure to reduce the age of majority from 20 to 18.

The personal property tax exemption plan (30% in 1973, gradually rising to 90% by 1978) was included in the tax reform package prepared by the legislative tax study committee.

Sen. Calvin Carsten of Avoca urged designation of the green ash as Nebraska's state tree, and establishment of an Arbor Day Centennial Commission funded with $10,000.

Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan produced a bill to establish a Trees for Nebraska program financed during the next fiscal year by a $100,000 appropriation.

The state lottery plan came from Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh, who estimated that the weekly drawings of 50-cent tickets would produce at least $6 million in revenue for the state during its first year.

Carpenter introduced the constitutional amendment proposal directing the state to pay all operational costs for public elementary and secondary schools. Total operational costs for the coming year are about $260 million.

$5,000 Per Teacher

Another measure, signed by Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell, would direct the state to pay each school district $5,000 for every teacher in its system.

Maresh proposed a one cent a gallon increase in the state gasoline tax (to 9½ cents) to provide funding for cities and counties for road and street construction.

An accompanying state aid proposal from the Milligan senator was a constitutional amendment to allow the state to make short-term loans to municipalities for construction of sewage treatment facilities.

Stockpiling Ban Sought

The 1972 session's first floor debate erupted when Carpenter attempted to suspend the rules to get immediate action on LR5, his proposal to instruct the State Liquor Control Commission to prevent dealers from stockpiling beer and liquor in anticipation of a tax increase.

Carpenter said stockpiling could cost the state between $500,000 and $1 million in revenue if the Legislature subsequently enacts LB66, a holdover bill increasing excise taxes on beer and liquor.

His resolution would direct the commission to instruct wholesalers to restrict their orders from retailers to their weekly average from the preceding year.

"Now that we have alerted everyone, we've got to act today or there'll be so damn many orders by tomorrow, they'll run out of whiskey," Carpenter said.

Warnings Sounded

Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha objected to "restricting private enterprise," and DeCamp warned that the resolution would, in effect, be "restraining trade."

But Carpenter said the Legislature did the same thing in 1971 in order to prevent stockpiling of cigarettes prior to increasing the state excise tax on that product.

Carpenter's motion to suspend the rules and consider the resolution immediately failed on a 25-18 vote. It needed 30 supporting senators.

LR5 will come to the floor again Wednesday in the regular course of business.

MUSKIE RUNNING

THE CANDIDATE . . . Sen. Edmund Sixtus Muskie of Maine.

Asks 'New Beginning' . . . TO CHANGE U.S.

By The Associated Press

Sen. S. Muskie performed the rite of presidential candidacy Tuesday night, declaring in a nationally televised speech that he seeks the White House to lead America in "A New Beginning."

He said President Nixon's administration has failed the nation in the past and "cannot take us to the future."

The front-running contender for the Democratic presidential nomination paid $30,000 to formally announce the obvious on prime-time television.

Announces In Maine

"I have come home to Maine to announce my decision to seek the office of president of the United States," Muskie said in a statement taped Monday at his chilly summer home in Kennebunk Beach.

Muskie's organization purchased from the Columbia Broadcasting System the last 10 minutes of "The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour" to broadcast the announcement. Production expenses brought the total cost to about $32,000.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, who was in New Hampshire, didn't claim he would beat Muskie in that state's presidential primary, but said the favored senator from Maine "is going to know he's been in a really tough fight in this state."

'To Change The Country'

Muskie, 56 and 12 years a senator, said he seeks the presidency "not merely to change presidents, but to change the country.

"I intend to lead — to ask you to make America what it was to Abraham Lincoln — 'the last hope of mankind.'"

"I intend to ask you to try — and to be willing to try again if we fail," Muskie said. "And I intend to ask every one of you to pay a fair share of the costs of a decent society."

Muskie did not mention his Democratic rivals, and said "it would be foolish to blame all the nation's ills on the present administration . . .

Says Nixon Devious

"But government can lead. It can be truthful. And if our present leadership had been candid with the country, if they had been straightforward, we could have done far more than we have.

We have been given 6% inflation, 6% We have been given a continuing war . . . We have bees given 6% inflation, 6% unemployment . . . We have been given rising crime . . .

"An administration that has so failed us in the past cannot take us to the future.

"So this is what I offer and ask of you . . . Not a promise to solve our problems overnight, but a commitment to make a new beginning.

"Ultimately, of course, what is at stake is your future. I am not telling you that I can guarantee the best of all possible worlds. All I am asking is that we pledge a new beginning."

'Not Good Enough'

Muskie said that for a generation, "What we have done has not been good enough . . ." to deal with problems of poverty, education, housing, the environment, health care, employment, crime.

"It is not good enough — indeed it is indefensible — that people are still dying, at our hands, in a war that is wrong, a war most Americans rejected long ago . .

"Most of us feel the country is headed in the wrong direction. Many feel powerless to stop it.

"To them I say we can do something about these problems . . . And in that effort, a president must lead."

Douglas Issues Opinion In County Hassle

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

In an opinion released Tuesday, Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas stated that it is illegal for a county official to sell and/or provide services for the county totaling more than $2,000 in any one year.

Douglas rendered the opinion in answer to a request by Commissioner William Grossman.

Grossman had accused fellow-commissioner Robert Colin last September of allowing his Electric Motor Service firm to furnish work and material for Lancaster County and then having the claims for the work filed by another electric firm.

In the opinion, Douglas said that according to state law when the official is "pecuniarily interested in or receiving the benefit of a contract executed by the county" if the pecuniary interest exceeds $2,000 in any one year he is in violation of the law.

Grossman had charged Colin with allegedly doing approximately $1,800 worth of business with the county between the time he became a commissioner in January, 1971, and September when the allegations were aired.

In response to Grossman's question if a county official who provides material and services to the county by providing the same to a third party when they know the services and/or material are for the county, is the official in violation of the law, Douglas said:

"The particular facts would have to be carefully considered, as I am sure that it would have to be shown that the county official in this situation had actual knowledge that material and/or service were intended for Lancaster County."

He further stated that the statute requires that the consideration going to the county official must be in the amount in excess of $2,000 in any one year before the contract is prohibited."

On the basis of an Attorney General's opinion of July 15, 1969, Douglas said, "it would seem . . . that it would have to be shown that this amount of consideration actually accrued to the county official."

In reference to Colin's alleged billing for the material and services through another contractor, Grossman further asked for an opinion on the following:

"When said county official is requested and does provide material and services to the county and bills same through another contractor of his choosing when the total sum in any one year exceeds $2,000 would the county official be in violation of the statute."

Douglas' response to this question was that if the facts are as set out in the question, "there can be little doubt that this conduct would be contrary to a section of the law since the statute refers to a direct or indirect interest."

The statute specifically states, according to the opinion, that "no county officer or county surveyor shall in any manner, either directly or indirectly, be pecuniarily interested in or receive the benefit of any contracts executed by the county for the furnishing of supplies or any other purpose when the consideration of the same is in an amount in excess of $2,000 in any one year, and no contract may be divided for the purpose of evading the requirements of this section."

In response to the question if the other situations apply to a county official when he is a major owner and officer in a corporation which does the business, Douglas said:

"It appears that a section of the law specifically prohibits corporations from contracting with a county board in an amount in excess of $2,000 when a member of the county board is an agent, official or employe of such corporation."

Colin at the time the charges were made against him by Grossman said that any work which his firm did on county equipment was done by a legitimate contractor or dealer and that Colin Electric Motor Service "has not done any work directly for Lancaster Manor."

He said if these contractors who were doing work for the county "choose to come to me, then I see nothing wrong with it."

Price Commission To Study Lifting Some Price Controls

Washington (UPI) — Chairman C. Jackson Grayson disclosed Tuesday that the Price Commission will soon begin a study aimed at lifting some price controls and that it is relying on government agents — not shoppers — to report violations of price guidelines.

In a UPI Washington interview, Grayson said he expected some price controls would be lifted by spring and that "the bulk of the control effort will be done this year." But he said a curtailed form of government restraint on prices and wages would still be in force on April 30, 1973, the day the present control law expires.

Grayson said that President Nixon's Cost of Living Council already has begun a study into the possibility of lifting controls and that the Price Commission is about to start one of its own.

But right now, said Grayson, it would be premature to decide whether exemptions from control should be ordered by industry, by the size of the firms, or by product.

Spot Checks

Grayson said the commission was counting on spot checks by the Internal Revenue Service rather than consumer complaints to uncover violations of price guidelines.

He conceded it was unwieldy for consumers to note the price of an item and then walk across the store to check that price with the list of base prices which merchants were required to post Jan. 1.

But he said the commission rejected a dual price system — base and current prices marked on each item—as too costly for the merchant.

Although Grayson said the commision would depend on the IRS for enforcement, he siad it did "want customers to ask questions" if they had reason to believe a price might be excessive.

The major enforcement tool, he said, would be "the spot checks by IRS. And I have requested them to do this, to start a nationwide program to get agents to check prices and to do this systematically on schedule."

'Honor System'

Still, Grayson conceded, the price control program relied mostly on the "honor system"—the same as tax law enforcement.

"There aren't enough people around to monitor every tax return," he said, and "there aren't enough agents to monitor the stabilization program."

—Physicians were placed under more rigid fee increase formulas than other professionals or service people because "one of the most serious inflationary aspects in the economy has been the rise in health care and we recognize that doctors and physicians have had high increases as a share of the national income."

—Some rent increases permitted by the commission might be greater than rent rollbacks ordered by the commission on some properties, "but overall I don't think that is true."

Randolph Claims He 'Never Resisted Arrest'

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The Municipal Court trial of Cleveland Randolph, 18, on charges of resisting arrest in connection with an Oct. 24 city-county jail incident is expected to be concluded Wednesday.

Judge Donald R. Grant recessed the trial until 1:30 p.m. Wednesday for rebuttal testimony and final arguments by legal counsel following Tuesday's day-long session.

Randolph has pleaded innocent to resisting arrest charges and has alleged he was brutally beaten by three Lincoln police officers at the jail.

Incident Investigated

The City Human Rights Commission has investigated the alleged Oct. 24 incident, but public disclosure of its report is being withheld until judicial proceedings are concluded.

Randolph testified Tuesday he "never resisted arrest" and gave the officers no provocation for the alleged beating.

However, the black youth conceded on cross-examination that his "only thought (during the incident) was not to go to jail."

Following His Arrest

Randolph was charged with resisting officers when they attempted to book him into jail following his arrest on two Municipal Court bench warrants in connection with July traffic citations for riding a bicycle at night without a headlight and with no registration.

He had been brought to police headquarters from Lincoln General Hospital after being released following five days of hospitalization in connection with a motorcycle accident.

Police Sgt. William Jernigan testified Randolph was taken to the jail area fir booking after being told he was under arrest in connection with two court warrants.

'No Way'

"He (Randolph) said he wasn't going to jail," related Jernigan, "and said there was no way we could put him there."

After Officer William Beave, a 288-pound jailor, attempted to lead Randolph into the booking area, Jernigan said Randolph twice "jerked away" and "swung at Beave."

Jernigan said he was pushed in the face by the defendant before Sgt. Leland Frakes got an "arm lock" around the neck of Randolph was was "yelling" and "was swinging his arms and kicking his feet."

Agreed To 'Calm Down'

Frakes testified he released his arm lock when Randolph agreed to "calm down" and enter the booking area in the jail.

Later, Randolph pushed on the chest of each of the three officers, Jernigan, Beave and Frakes — and said, "You're dead," according to their testimony.

Sgt. Kenneth Schacht, the jail booking officer on duty, testified he witnessed part of the scuffle and "saw Beave strike Randolph twice in the mid-section."

Insisted On Calls

The officer testified Randolph insisted on making two telephone calls, but was told he couldn't do so until he was booked in.

He said the defendant twice refused "with profanity" to give routine information for the jail record, but later complied. Randolph was then permitted to make two phone calls.

Randolph, who was booked into jail shortly after 2 p.m., testified he was later released about 8:30 p.m.

'Never Swung'

In his version of the scuffle, Randolph testified he "never swung at Beave or Jernigan," but later said he "pushed Jernigan in the face after they put an arm lock on me."

He denied "swinging or kicking" at the officers, and said Beave "grabbed me by the right arm and hit me in the stomach several times."

Following his release, Randolph said he sought medical attention "about 1 a.m." for a bleeding nose.

'Scratch Marks'

Archie Martin, who was Randolph's roommate at 859 So. 22nd, testified the youth had "scratch marks" on his neck following release from jail. Randolph complained his arm hurt and had a cut over his left eye, his said.

Earlier testimony indicated Randolph's "badly-sprained left wrist," was still in a splint from the motorcycle accident and a cut over his left eye may have been partially reopened in the jail incident.

During Tuesday's testimony, Patrick Healey, a Lincoln attorney representing Randolph, objected to the introduction in evidence of the two court warrants against Randolph.

Warrants Said Defective

He contended one was "defective for lack of a signature" and the other document contained "extraneous notations."

City Prosecutor Jerry Nelson contended both warrants were valid and were "without any material (legal) defect."

Judge Grant reserved ruling on this issue until later.

Cash-Shy Peace Corps Plans To Reduce Size

Washington (AP) — The money-short Peace Corps began shaping plans Tuesday to reduce its 8,000-member volunteer force by half and to cancel programs in as many as 15 countries.

Joseph H. Blatchford, director of the ACTION agency which oversees the Peace Corps, ordered a halt in signing up volunteers, at least until July 1. Applications will continue to be accepted.

Blatchford instructed Kevin O'Donnell, associate director of ACTION for international affairs, to prepare plans for termination of about 4,000 volunteers now on duty in 55 foreign countries.

Blatchford wants the plans implemented by mid-February so the volunteers can be returned to the United States by the end of March.

There now are about 7,100 volunteers on active assignments overseas and some 800 to 900 in training, most of them in host countries.

Half of Peak Size

The present corps force is slightly more than half of what it was during the peak years of the middle 1960s.

Blatchford took Tuesday's action, it is understood, because Congress not only refused to appropriate the $82 million requested by the Nixon administration but cut funds to a level that one agency source described as "just one step above putting us out of business altogether."

In the last hour before it adjourned Dec. 17, Congress passed a continuing resolution that would give the Peace Corps a budget of $72 million.

The resolution, which expires Feb. 22, was necessary because the Senate did not act on the appropriation bill passed by the House. Both houses passed an authorization bill to give the corps $77.2 million, but the House appropriated only $68 million.

The Peace Corps hopes that when Congress reconvenes in two weeks the Senate will approve the full $77.2 million, and that a conference committee will accept that figure.

Until that happens or unless some concrete assurances are given that the additional funds will be appropriated, the corps must take steps to reduce its personnel and close down programs, because, as one official said, "There is a point of no return when we must use the money we have to bring these people back to the United States."

The new instructions by Blatchford will not affect some 600 highly specialized volunteers who were signed on late last year.

The specialized volunteers include construction engineers and diesel mechanics who are to go to Africa for a road building project, a forestry specialist who also is to go to Africa, and public administrators slated for Latin America.

O'Donnell said he does not know yet which countries will lose entire Peace Corps programs, but added that volunteer forces may be reduced in all 55 countries.

Depending on what countries are affected, it is possible that some 100 to 200 staff personnel will lose their jobs, including both Americans and host nationals.

The corp reduced its staff by slightly more than 100 last fall.

Trial Of 'Harrisburg 8' Is Postponed

Harrisburg, Pa. (AP) — The trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and seven other antiwar activists has been moved back from Jan. 10 to at least Jan. 17 by U.S. District Judge R. Dixon Herman.

At a court hearing Tuesday, Herman said the postponement was due to a delay in assembling a jury pool and to a pending defense motion before the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for a pretrial hearing on electronic surveillance.

The so-called "Harrisburg Eight" defendants are charged with conspiring to kidnap presidential adviser Henry Kissinger, raiding East Coast draft boards, and conspiring to blow up heating tunnels in Washington, D.C.

William S. Lynch, deputy assistant attorney general, had pushed for the Jan. 10 opening date.

Former U.S. attorney general Ramsey Clark, one of the defense lawyers, agreed to an early trial date, but added: "The pretrial hearing is essential to the rights of the defendants."

Meanwhile, the defense agreed to drop motions for suppression of evidence resulting from two FBI searches of defendants' residences in 1970. The government agreed not to use any items seized as evidence or leads to evidence, and to meet with defense attorneys on return of the articles.

The government dropped a motion asking for handwriting samples of defendants, with Lynch indicating alternates were available.

Handwritten letters allegedly exchanged by Berrigan and another defendant, Sister Elizabeth McAlister, containing threats to kidnap Kissinger were introduced by the government last April.

Malta Barred To Navy

London (UPI) — Prime Minister Dom Mintoff of Malta has specifically barred use of his island's facilities by the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean, the Defense Ministry said Tuesday.

It said he also has refused use of the island base and airfield by other North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) forces.

Mintoff took this uncompromising stand, the ministry said, during negotiations over Britain's right to use the base.

The negotiations broke down in the last week of December when Mintoff served a "pay-up-or-get-out" ultimatum on Britain. He demanded payment of another $11 million as "rent" for military bases on the island in addition to $12.35 million already paid by Britain for six months up to March 31.

Deadline Extended

Mintoff at first set a Dec. 31 deadline for Britain to get out. Later, he extended this to Jan. 15.

The Defense Ministry said Mintoff's refusal to let the U.S. 6th Fleet and other NATO forces use the Malta base was not one of the reasons Britain rejected his ultimatum.

A spokesman said the sole reason was that the $46.3 million a year demanded by Mintoff was more than Britain and her NATO allies were prepared to pay.

The Defense Ministry announced that evacuation by air of about 5,000 wives and children of the 3,500 British troops and airmen stationed on the island will begin Saturday.

RAF Transports

They will be flown in Royal Air Force troop transports to Britain. The evacuation will be completed before Jan. 15, Mintoff's extended deadline, a Defense Ministry spokesman said.

New Top Marine Cites Two Problems

Washington (AP) — Gen. Robert E. Cushman Jr. said Tuesday his two biggest problems in ramrodding the Marine Corps for the next four years will be attracting enough qualified recruits and assuring that blacks are treated fairly.

Cushman said that while he had no plans to liberalize traditional Marine discipline, he hopes to make some reforms in the military justice system.

"There's always a problem with military justice — I hope to work on that," he said in his first news conference as the new commandant of the Marines.

"The black Marine often feels it's white justice and that he is not adequately represented."

But, Cushman added, "black Marines should know I have a personal interest in their problems and I care."

Better leadership is needed at the squad and company level and recruiting efforts will have to be stepped up to bring in more black officers, he said.

Figures supplied by the corps show that while 12.1% of the enlisted men are black only 1.25% of the officers are black.

Cushman, who served three years as deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency before he was tapped by President Nixon last month to become the Marines' 25th commandant, said he was confident the Marines would be able to attract enough men even after draft calls are ended. However, he said the problem will be maintaining the quality.

'We'll Get Numbers'

"We'll get the numbers, but getting quality is going to mean very vigorous recruiting," he said.

Cushman said he plans to stick with the Marines' current recruiting drive which is aimed at attracting "a few good men."

In a wide-ranging news conference, Cushman also said that the hard line taken by the Marines offers young men a challenge. "Younger people respond to this challenge and look for something tough to achieve."

Cushman also said he thought the U.S. policy in Vietnam has succeeded, but declined to answer when he was asked if he thought it was worth the price.

"I do believe the policy was correct of getting the Vietnamese country, both the political and military sides, in such shape" so that the South Vietnamese are now able to govern themselves and prevent a Communist takeover, he said.

Non-Prescription Drug Review Set

Washington (UPI) — Acknowledging it has failed to enforce laws regulating non-prescription drugs, the government announced a sweeping review Tuesday which could ban soome familiar home remedies, modify others and curb "indefensible" advertisements for even those that win approval.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) cited as "cause for concern" — and perhaps a harbinger of future findings — a study of 420 non-prescription drugs by the National Academy of Sciences — National Research Council. Only one fourth of them were rated effective, the FDA said.

"The FDA is concerned that many present formulations do not have the claimed effect, have inadequate instructions for effective use by the consumer, or are promoted in deceptive and indefensible ways," FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards said.

Laws Enacted

Laws requiring government clearance of drugs for safety and effectiveness were enacted in 1938 and 1962, but Edwards told a news conference that the FDA could not even count the number of non-prescription drugs on the market, much less certify their worth.

Edwards named Dr. John H. Moxley III to coordinate the new program, which he said would take about three years to complete.

Dean of the University of Maryland School of Medicine, Moxley said the lack of regulation of non-prescription drugs came as a surprise even to him.

'Taken Aback'

"I was, to say the least, taken aback to discover that no person or agency even knew the number of these drugs," Moxley said.

Edwards said the FDA was dividing the thousands of non-prescription medicines into 26 categories. An independent scientific panel, working through Moxley, will study each category and issue rules covering formulas and claims, he said.

Edwards said antiacids would be studied first, with "mood" drugs, cold medicines and anlygics (pain relievers) also high on the priority list.

Prime Rate Cut To 5%

New York (UPI) — Basic interest charges dropped to their lowest level in nearly six years Tuesday as major banks across the country trimmed their prime lending rate by ¼% to 5%.

This brought their minimum lending charge to blue chip corporate customers to the level prevailing in March 1966.

The reductions reflected a sharp drop in short-term money rates in recent weeks. This made it cheaper for banks to obtain lendable funds but also provided corporations with a source of cheap funds outside regular bank channels.

Sluggish business loan demand was also a factor in the cuts, economists said.

CIA Leaves Top Base In Northeast Laos

(c) Washington Star

Vientiane, Laos — Long Tieng, the main base in northeast Laos for United States military and intelligence operations, has been downgraded to a forward base area for military operations, according to informed sources here.

The reason for this change is the continuing North Vietnamese pressure on and around the base, which over the weekend included a 500-shell artillery bombardment by Hanoi long-range artillery, probably 130 mm guns with a range of 27,000 yards.

"The CIA (Central Intelligence Agency) have gone elsewhere, all the exotic crypto equipment is out," the sources said. "Long Tieng is nothing more than a forward headquarters for military operations now."

Other sources confirmed a steady flow of equipment from Long Tieng to other places in the high forest-clad hills in northeast Laos.

Military sources said North Vietnamese artillery had done considerable damage to Long Tieng. The weekend bombardment blew up the main ammunition dump, destroyed an Air Force fighter-bomber ramp, damaged part of the airstrip and scored hits on the U.S. air operations center and the CIA compound.

Only one person, a Meo, was killed in the bombardment as most of Long Tieng's 25,000 Meo and Lao civilians fled early last week.

Long Tieng, 75 miles northeast of Vientiane, has been the U.S. military center in the area for many years.

The base was manned by a minimum of 33 Americans, whose number sometimes rose to 50. The CIA kept the United States contingent there engaged in monitoring Hanoi communications, supervising special military ground operations, which included U.S. personnel, and running logistics for day-to-day military operations in northeast Laos around the Plain of Jars and in the Lao provinces bordering North Vietnam. The U.S. Air Force used Long Tieng as a base for rescue helicopters for downed jets in the area. The Americans flew prop-driven dive bombers on missions from Long Tieng and the Air Force kept maintenance ground crews there.

Korea To Limit Textile Exports To U.S.

Washington (AP) — South Korea Tuesday signed an agreement with the United States to restrain its exports of woolen and man-made fiber textile products for five years beginning last Oct. 1 and ending Sept. 30, 1976.

It was the third restraint agreement signed here in as many days. Nationalist China and Japan had previously agreed to voluntary restraints and Hong Kong is scheduled to sign the fourth and last agreement in the crown colony Wednesday.

U.S. Ambassador David M. Kennedy, who signed for the United States, said the agreement establishes the basis for reasonable growth of Korea's textile exports to the United States and gives the U.S. industry time enough to look ahead to make its own arrangements.

He said the negotiation had been long and difficult but always accompanied by great understanding and respect.

Jets Raid In Laos, Cambodia

Saigon (AP) — U.S. warplanes raided enemy positions and supply lines in Laos and Cambodia on Tuesday.

Some of the raids hit northern Laos, where the U. S. Command belatedly reported an Air Force Phantom jet was downed last Friday. Word of the downing was held up for a search mission that failed to find the two planes.

The U. S. Command declined to give the Phantom's mission. But the downing of the speedy jet brought to 11 the number of U. S. planes lost in Laos and North Vietnam since Dec. 10. The command lists 15 crewmen missing and six rescued. North Vietnam claims two airmen killed and seven captured.

The U. S. Command now has reported 217 aircraft lost in the air war over Laos since March 1970. While most of the planes hit the Ho Chi Minh trail, others fly support for Laotion ground forces in northern Laos.

Peace Talks With Reds Will Resume

Paris (UPI) — The United States and South Vietnam agreed Tuesday to resume the Vietnam Peace Talks Thursday after four weeks of postponements by both sides had brought the conference to a standstill.

The Thursday meeting in the International Conference Hall on the Avenue Kleber would be the first since Dec. 9 and the U.S. air raids against North Vietnam during the Christmas holiday season.

The United States postponed the sessions of Dec. 16, 23 and 30 because the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegates were not negotiating "seriously," a U.S. spokesman said. The Dec. 30 meeting was boycotted by the Communists to protest the renewed U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

Fires In 1971 Killed 12,200

Boston (AP) — Some 12,200 persons died in fires in the United States in 1971, the same number as 1970, according to preliminary estimates released Tuesday by the National Fire Protection Association.

The association said property damage in 1971 totaled $2.845 billion, an increase of about $215 million over the previous year.

The worst loss-of-life fire occurred June 7 in East Haven, Conn. when 28 persons died in the fire following the crash of a Convair 580 airliner.

The worst property-loss fires of the year caused $10 million damage each to a ship under construction at Lorain, Ohio and to a nuclear power plant under construction at Indian Point, N.Y.

New York Times News Summary

Officials Say Firm Pullout Date Never Proposed

(c) New York Times News Service

Washington—Officials in Washington said Tuesday the United States never officially proposed a firm withdrawal date from Vietnam in exchange for the release of American prisoners at the Paris talks, but the negotiators there are convinced that the North Vietnamese would reject such a formula.

FDA Is Studying Drugs

Washington — An over-all review of the safety and efficacy of non-prescription drugs was started by the Food and Drug Administration. The aim of the review, the first ever attempted, according to a spokesman for the FDA, was to give the consumer assurance that the products he uses really do what the label says they will. (More on Page 3.)

Pay Board Delays Again

Washington — The Pay Board failed again to act on the wage settlements in the aerospace industry, which have been under consideration since last month. Business and public members of the board have been divided on how much the board should roll back the settlement, while the labor members have questioned the boards' right to make any rollback.

Muskie Seeks Presidency

Washington — Sen. Edward S. Muskie formally announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination on nationwide television. Charging that most politicians and President Nixon particularly had failed America's citizens, Muskie said he wanted to change the country. (More on Page 1.)

Wallace To Run

Atlanta — Gov. George C. Wallace's campaign director said the Alabama governor would enter the Florida democratic primary and perhaps several other primary contests.

Catholic Group To Lobby

Washington — The National Conference of Catholic Charities announced that it planned to supplement its traditional social service work with a new focus on political organizing. Msgr. Lawrence J. Corcoran, the organization's secretary, acknowledged that such a move could jeopardize the council's tax-exempt status, but he said non-profit groups should be allowed to to lobby. (More on Page 25.)

10 Denominations Accused

New York — Ten Protestant denominations were accused by a unit of the National Council of Churches of "complicity" through their stockholdings with the "irresponsible, immoral and socially injurious acts" of 29 corporations that hold defense contracts. Among the denominations were those that have been leaders of the criticism of the war and American militarism. (More on Page 8.)

Bevan, 2 Pals Accused Of Diverting $21 Million

Philadelphia (AP) — The former finance chairman of the bankrupt Penn Central and two of his business associates were charged Tuesday in criminal warrants with illegally diverting more than $21 million from America's largest railroad.

Dist. Atty. Arlen Specter said David C. Bevan conspired with Wall Street broker Charles J. Hodge and retired Air Force Gen. Albert F. Lassiter and "substantially drained the resources of the Penn Central, contributing to its bankruptcy in June 1970."

The railroad now is undergoing reorganization under the supervision of the District Court. It reported Tuesday a net loss for the first 11 months of 1971 of nearly $248 million. The 1970 deficit was more than $320 million.

Bevan Denies All

Bevan denied any wrongdoing, calling the accusations "incredible" and "a grave mistake." He demanded an immediate trial "so that I can at least be vindicated."

"I have been the scapegoat long enough," Bevan said, referring to the Penn Central's collapse.

The 57-page complaint specifically accused the three men of joining together to cheat and defraud the railroad. It alleged two major schemes:

—A plan to invest more than $21 million in Executive Jet Aviation, Inc., a charter airline based in Columbus, Ohio, and then headed by Lassiter. Such an investment violated a Civil Aeronautics Board ruling that forbade a railroad from controlling an air carrier.

—"Manipulating over $85 million in Penn Central investments" to benefit Penphil, a private investment club formed by Bevan and Hodge, who was the railroad's chief investment adviser.

The complaint said that by the investment in EJA, the three men hoped to profit through a travel agency owned and controlled by them, their relatives and friends.

Penphil's $1.7 Million

The fraud warrant, signed by Common Pleas Judge Ethan Allen Doty, said Penphil made $1.7 million in profits by buying and selling stocks in which the railroad had interests.

Penn Central turstees now are considering a proposal that would wipe out its $21 million investment in EJA for less than $1 million.

The CAB in 1969 fined Penn Central $65,000, largest in its history, for its illegal control of EJA.

The complaint alleges stock maripulation occurred in the dual investment in Great Southwest Corp. by Penphil and the railroad.

Penphil first bought into Great Southwest, a Texas-based real estate developer, pouring in $165,000. Then Penn Central began buying huge blocks that forced up the price of the shares, and Penphil got out with a profit of $212,500, according to the complaint. Penn Central's investment totaled $80 million, and Great Southwest now is valued at less than $50 million.

The complaint also alleges that Lassiter got "dates" for Bevan and Hodge to continue the flow of railroad funds to EJA.

Girls Procured

"The steady flow of Penn Central money to Executive Jet was maintained by Lassiter's procuring of young women to accompany Bevan and Hodge on various junkets in the United States and Europe," the complaint said.

"These women were procured, in the words of one witness, to relieve the pressure that Bevan and Hodge were putting on Lassiter" . . . because of the poor monthly statements of EJA and Bevan and Hodge had to keep pouring money from the railroad every month into EJA to keep it going."

The Penn Central itself has accused Bevan, Hodge, and former railroad treasurer William R. Gerstnecker of an unlawful conspiracy that drove the giant transportation company into bankruptcy — less than two years after the merger of the Pennsylvania and New York Central.

The railroad's lawsuit was filed last April. It accused the defendants of conspiring for personal profit, gain and unjust enrichment" and said monetary damage was at least $66 million.

BELTING OUT SONG . . . Claire Chevalier keeps name in lights.

Singer Claire Chevalier, 27, Keeping The Name In Lights

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil (AP) — A long way from France, a vivacious young singer is keeping the Chevalier name in lights.

Straw hat in one hand, microphone in the other, Claire Chevalier, Maurice Chevalier's grandniece, belts out songs in a nightly show here in sock-it-to-em style.

"There are some things that get in people's blood and never go away. That's how I would describe my uncle's style and songs," Claire, 27, told an interviewer. "When I need a happy song I sing one of his. They're so 'simpatico,'" she said in French-accented Portuguese.

Traveling World

Born in Marseille, Miss Chevalier has been traveling all over the world and singing since she was 17. Maurice Chevalier, who died last week, was her grandfather's brother.

"My uncle helped my career. He gave me good advice. I'm a very nervous person. He showed me how to be calm on stage. He told me: 'Take it easy. Things will fall into place in their own good time,'" he said.

The pert, auburn-haired singer is winding up a three-month engagement at the Rincao Gaucho steak house, where her repertoire includes traditional French favorites, upbeat U.S. popular songs, done in English, and Brazilian hits, sung in Portuguese.

'Control' Needed

"A performer must be in control of the situation at all times," Claire said. "As an artist, you must adjust your performance according to the place you're playing in. Here at the restaurant people in the audience like to participate in the show, so you do numbers where everybody can clap and sing along with me.

"In a night club, though, I sing different song. Michel Legrand, Burt Bacharach — quieter, softer things."

"Do you always sing Maurice Chevalier numbers?" she was asked.

"No," Claire replied. "It depends on where I'm performing. If I think one of my uncle's happy, lively songs would create the wrong mood, then I don't sing it. But if people ask for one of his old favorites, well of course . . ."

Demos Say FCC Like 'Pavlov's Dog'

Washington (AP) — The Democratic party accused the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) Tuesday of constantly favoring the White House over the Democrats like "Pavlov's dog salivated whenever his master rang the bell."

The acousation was made in a 2½-page letter from Democratic National Committee (DNC) general counsel Joseph A. Califano Jr. to FCC Chairman Dean Burch, a former Republican national chairman.

There was no immediate response from Burch.

The letter was the latest round in a four-cornered dispute among the Democrats, Republicans, the White House and the major television networks which may end in the Supreme Court.

Califano, a former Johnson administration White House aide, chided Burch, a Nixon appointee, for what he called studied frustration of Democratic requests for television time under the FCC's fairness doctrine.

Refers To Requests

The letter referred to requests filed with the FCC Oct 18 asking prime time for the Democratic Party to respond to broadcasts by President Nixon during August, September and October in support of his new economic programs

"I am writing to protest the commission's failure to act upon that complaint." Califano said, "which involves a matter of urgent concern to the Democratic party and to the nation as a whole . . .

"Unfortunately, when the DNC asserts its rights under the fairness doctrine and the First Amendment, the action of the commission is as predictable as night following day — to delay and deny the DNC complaint, just as Pavlov's dog salivated whenever his master rang the bell."

Califano complained that the FCC has shown a "willingness to give expeditious consideration to complaints by the party in control of the White House while denying such consideration to the party out of power."

'Interference'

In a recent ruling reversing an FCC order giving the Republicans air time to answer a Democratic program answering Nixon, the U.S. Court of Appeals here, in a decision written by Judge Edward A. Tamm, declared "the commission has taken a political role of interference contrary to all of the teachings of administrative decision making."

Since Lawrence F. O'Brien took over as chairman of the Democratic National Committee in early 1970, the party has challenged most presidential TV appearances as being political and claimed a right to time for expressing opposition views.

On July 7, 1970, CBS gave the Democrats 30 minutes to answer a series of presidential broadcasts. The Republicans then asked for time to answer the Democrats and the FCC so ordered.

The appeals court overturned that order in the opinion written by Tamm. A decision is now being pondered, reputedly at White House level, on whether the government will appeal to the Supreme Court.

Nixon's Speech, Politics Coincide

©The New York Times

By ROBERT B. SEMPLE JR.

San Diego — In his first public appearance of the new year, President Nixon announced a major shipbuilding contract before some 2,000 happy shipyard workers here Tuesday and, in the process, gave a vivid demonstration of how ordinary presidential business can be made to coincide with political purpose.

The $54.6 million contract, which Nixon announced while standing on a platform in the yard of the National Steel and Shipbuilding Co. here, will provide for federal subsidies to help construct three modern bulk carriers for the merchant marine.

The award is part of Nixon's two-year effort to make the merchant marine more competitive with foreign carriers, and brings the total value of the contracts negotiated between the Maritime Administration and west coast shipbuilders over the last 18 months to $200 million.

The west coast, and particularly California, which is crucial to Nixon's reelection plans, has been hard hit by unemployment, and administration officials believe that the $200 million in new contracts could well mean 15,000 new jobs in shipyard and supporting industries.

Nixon said on television Sunday night that he would make no "partisan" political appearances until after the Republican National Convention next summer. He did not break that rule in deed or word Tuesday, limiting his remarks to a tribute to the importance of trying to be "No 1" as he put it, in world competition.

But the routine act of announcing a government contract nevertheless gave him — on the same day Sen. Edmund Muskie was announcing his candidacy — a good audience, plenty of free public exposure, a vehicle for portraying his concern for the unemployed in Southern California, and a chance to expound on some of his favorite themes.

"We don't have to be No. 1 in everything," he said.

"But we have to try to be, because whenever a nation or a person quits trying to be No 1, he ceases, or that nation ceases, to be a great nation."

Companies Can Implement No-Fault Plans, Judge Says

Chicago (UPI) — Illinois Supreme Court Justice Thomas Kluczynski ruled Tuesday automobile insurance companies may implement no-fault insurance plans despite a lower court ruling that found the state's new no-fault law unconstitutional.

He said the full State Supreme Court would consider the constitutionality of the law on Jan. 28. Meanwhile, he said, insurance companies may implement no-fault provisions in their policies "on their own."

Kluczynski ruled on an appeal, filed by the state attorney general's office, of a ruling last week by a Cook County Circuit Court Judge Daniel A. Covelli. Covelli held the law unconstitutional and threatened to hold insurance companies in contempt if they put no-fault insurance into effect.

"I don't say the insurance companies cannot effect no-fault insurance if they want to do so on their own," Kluczynski said.

He said, however, his ruling does not require the companies to implement no-fault provisions.

Kluczynski refused to rule on a second motion by the attorney general's office to postpone an injunction by Covelli prohibiting state officials from spending tax dollars to implement the no-fault law.

He said the full Supreme Court should consider that matter, and Special Asst. Atty. Gen. Stephen A. Milwid withdrew the motion.

Thomas F. Reynolds, chairman of the Illinois Insurance Information Service, which represents some 250 insurance companies, said Kluczynski's ruling enables "insurance companies to honor their contracts under the Illinois modified no-fault law."

County Attorney Answers Manor Contract Questions

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Various questions posed by Lancaster County Commissioner Robert Colin as to the legality of the agreement between the county and Colonial Homes for the operation of Lancaster Manor were answered in an opinion from County Attorney Paul Douglas released Tuesday.

In response to Colin's question if the agreement would automatically be cancelled if it were consummated at a meeting other than a county board meeting, Douglas quoted the law and the motion which was passed on Jan. 27, 1970, according to minutes of the meeting found in records of the office of the county clerk.

"In my opinion the quoted minutes are in compliance with the requirements of the law and in any litigation arising from attempted cancellation of the Lancaster Manor agreement, a presumption of regularity would attach to the proceedings described in said minutes," Douglas said

In further answer to questions by Colin, Douglas said that the County Board according to the statutes, was not required to solicit bids for the services encompassed in the Lancaster Manor agreement, nor was approval of the agreement by the county attorney a requisite of its validity.

Colin had asked if the following would be grounds for cancellation of the agreement:

—lack of approval of said agreement by the county attorney.

—failure of the county board to advertise for bids for the services called for in the agreement

Colin had also asked Douglas for an opinion on whether the appearance of Commissioner William Grossman's law partner before the county board to urge the board to enter into the agreement would create a conflict of interest, and if so, whether such a conflict would be grounds for cancellation of the agreement.

Douglas said that it is his opinion that under the law in order to deem the agreement defective, it would be necessary to establish by a preponderance of evidence that the county officer had a pecuniary interest in or would receive benefit from the agreement or that one of the commissioners who approved the agreement was at that time an agent, official or employe of Colonial Homes, Inc.

Douglas said that Colin's question doesn't present "nor do I have evidence which would enable me to form an opinion as to whether in fact the appearance of Miles Johnston Sr. (Grossman's law partner) was in behalf of Colonial Homes, Inc.

"If, however, that proposition could be established by a preponderance of evidence, there would remain to be determined whether such appearance resulted in Commissioner Grossman having a pecuniary interest in or benefit from the contract, or status as an agent of Colonial Homes, Inc.," Douglas said.

In his letter containing the opinion, the county attorney stated that if the commissioners determine that the operation of Lancaster Manor under the present arrangement is unsatisfactory or detrimental to the county, notice of termination can be given

"The probable result of termination would be litigation, and of course, the cost to the county of such litigation should be borne in mind," he warned

He said the outcome of such litigation would depend upon "what evidence could be developed as to breach of contract, if any, by Colonial Homes."

"If the board feels that both continuation and termination of the agreement would be detrimental to the county then the decision to be made of course, is simply as to which is the lesser evil," Douglas added

Ellsberg Plea Innocent

Los Angeles (AP) — Daniel Ellsberg pleaded innocent stemming from the Pentagon Tuesday to new federal charges Papers case His codefendant Anthony J Russo refused to enter a plea and a judge entered an innocent plea for him

A joint trial was set for March 7 for the former Rand Corp colleagues, but US District Judge Matthew Byrne Jr indicated it probably would be postponed

Ellsberg who has admitted leaking the documents on the origin of the Vietnam war to news media entered innocent pleas on all counts of last week's new indictment against him He is accused of stealing and distributing Defense Department documents and Russo is accused of receiving them Both also are accused of conspiracy

Your honor I am not guilty for any of the offenses charged Ellsberg said standing before the judge He then answered 'Not guilty' in response to 12 counts of a 15-count indictment the other three counts which involve codefendant Russo

Russos attorney said he would file motions to have Russo removed from the case claiming that a previous grant of immunity to Russo invalidates the indictment

$55.5 Million Released For Ag Subsidies

Washington (UPI) — Under heavy pre-election prodding from congressional leaders in both parties, the administration Tuesday released $55.5 million in 1972 conservation subsidy funds previously "frozen" by White House budget officials.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said in a statement the money will be released for use in the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) This will bring total planned 1972 REAP spending to $195 5 million, the full amount authorized by Congress

REAP funds are paid to farmers to share the cost of carrying out approved conservation practices and environmental protection measures including pollution control and waste disposal improvements

After Congress had approved $195 5 million for 1972 the White House Office of Management and Budget (OMB) ordered the Agriculture Department to announce on Oct. 8 that spending would be held to $140 million — the amount originally recommended by the administration This step, which froze $55 5 million of the authorized funds, was hotly protested by many farm groups, lawmakers, and the National Limestone Institute

Demands for restoration of the funds had come recently from GOP leaders including House Republican leader Gerald R Ford, R-Mich., and the GOP national chairman, Sen Robert Dole of Kansas Similar pressure on the White House came from many Democrats including Sen Herman E Talmadge of Georgia the chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee

Take-Home Pay May Drop Due To Withholding

Washington (AP) — In spite of the tax relief voted by Congress last month, millions of Americans will find their take-home pay reduced after Jan. 16 by a bigger income tax bite out of their checks.

Congress has increased sharply the withholding rate, to make the amount of tax withheld by employers come closer to matching the employe's actual tax liability for the year.

That will correct the underwithholding which, for many taxpayers, has been a nuisance for years. For 1972 and thereafter, fewer middle- and upper-income taxpayers will have to mail quarterly estimated tax payments or make large lump-sum payments when they file their income tax returns.

This was a particular problem in 1971 for married couples in which both husband and wife work. The old withholding tables were geared to give them one too many low-income allowances; many will have to pay several hundred dollars on April 15 to get right with the Internal Revenue Service.

To Correct Situation

The change in the withholding tables was designed to correct that situation for the new tax year — and to give the Treasury the current use of an estimated $1 billion which formerly has been underwithheld in the course of each year.

But in correcting the underwithholding of one large group of taxpayers, Congress has complicated the financial problems of another large group by causing overwithholding.

Million of taxpayers — particularly middle-income couples in which only the husband works, and those claiming large amounts of itemized deductions — will find the new withholding tables take too deep a bite.

The withholding increase is so large, in fact, that in many cases it will more than offset the paycheck benefits that Congress enacted last month in the form of higher personal exemptions and an increased standard deduction.

$50 A Month

Taxpayers at the income level of $20,000 to $25,000 who claim itemized deductions of $4,000 to $5,000—fairly ordinary at that income level — may find themselves paying the government upwards of $50 a month more than they owe.

For the relief of such taxpayers the IRS has prepared a new form to be distributed by employers, called "Employe's Withholding Exemption Certificate." By filling it out and returning it to his employer, he can adjust his year-long withholding to an amount roughly equivalent to his actual tax liability.

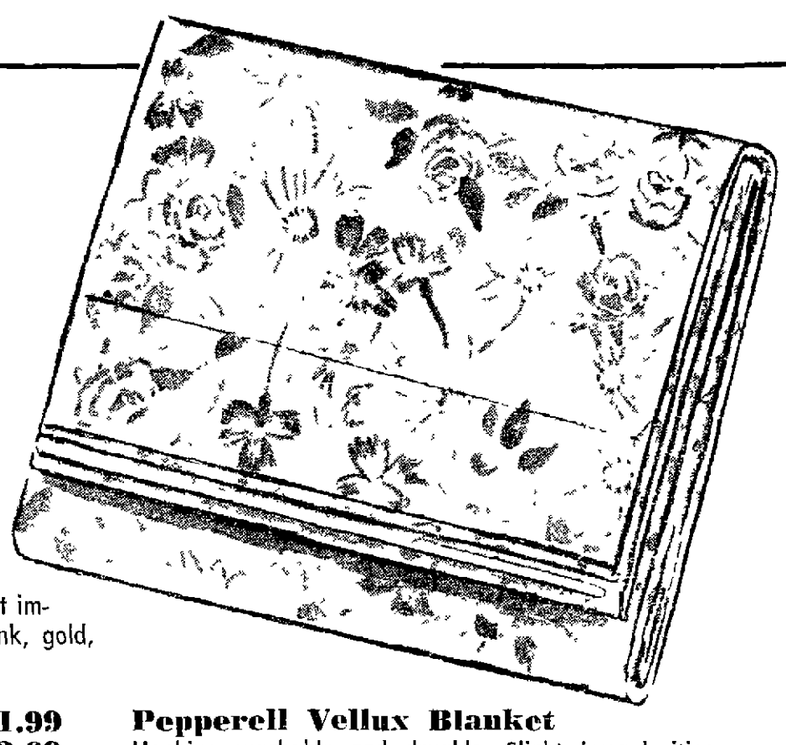

The new form carries a table showing how many "allowances" the taxpayer should claim—at $750 each, the new amount of the personal exemption — to insure that he is meeting his tax obligations throughout the year but not overpaying along the way.

He can base his allowances for 1972 on the amount of deductions he claimed in 1971 or on a reasonable estimate. If his salary or deductible expenses change during the year, he can file a new certificate increasing or decreasing the amount withheld.

Meeting Scheduled

The Governor's Committee on Mental Retardation will hold a meeting Wednesday at 9 a.m. in the governor's hearing room in the Capitol

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

In looking at the liquor policy, the City Council has opened an interesting can of worms. It is a situation in which the city is caught between two forces and in which it really cannot win.

On the one hand, the city has a limit of 133 Class C licenses, the kind that go for retailing of liquor and beer by the drink as opposed to package operations. The reason for this is simple. Too many licenses make for such a competitive situation that border-line operators might be tempted to wink at the law just to keep their establishment afloat.

With unlimited numbers, some places might tend to serve minors and drunks and to stretch on their operating hours. It would contribute to a generally loose kind of operation in which all sorts of unfavorable developments might take place.

To keep things under control and to encourage good operations, the City Council limits the number of licenses that can be issued. It is a fine theory, except for the fact that it fails to take into account the matter of the city's growth.

With a limited situation, there is little natural upgrading and expansion of establishments that serve alcoholic beverages. With a captive patronage, establishments have little incentive to improve and new operators are denied entry into the city.

Now, if you are a prohibitionist, that may be fine. It may mean nothing to you if you simply don't drink. But right or wrong, alcoholic consumption is a part of the society in which we live. It is especially a part of that society in terms of its eating establishments.

Again, whether right or wrong, you do not have the highclass eating establishments without liquor by the drink that you have with liquor by the drink. If Lincoln is to continue to grow and if its eating establishments are to improve the competitive situation needs to be strengthened.

Two new restaurant operations are scheduled soon for operation in Lincoln, both in east Lincoln. With the current limit of licenses, we don't see how either place will manage to obtain a liquor license.

There is current discussion regarding the rehabilitation of Lincoln's old wholesaling district in the vicinity of 8th and O, under the viaduct. This would include the establishment of retail shops and at least one eating establishment, again raising the question of license if we have a limited number.

What the council might do about all this is anybody's guess but it is obvious that there are no easy answers. The council this past week turned down a license applicant. It would not give the applicant first rights to any license opening that came about.

Councilman Bob Sikyta was right in saying that this makes the situation a game of chance. The applicant today faces a full quota of licenses and gets nothing. Tomorrow, someone else comes in and a license has become available, which he gets.

This does not seem to happen very often but it is the kind of thing that is perfectly possible and obviously an inequity. There isn't any question that a limit on licenses makes those licenses a pretty valuable piece of property.

A license can become available in two ways. If a license is revoked, it is thrown on the open market, so to speak. Anyone can go to the City Council and ask to be granted the available license.

Secondly, a license can be purchased through the purchase of an existing operator's business. It is apparent that there are injustices in both situations and that the overall condition does nothing at all for the average customer.

We would hesitate to say what the answer might be, largely because the elimination of the limit on the number of licenses appears to be the only solution. Ultimately, this may prove to be the only solution, despite the fact that it has its own set of liabilities.

'Any More Ideas?'

Credibility Gap Widens Again

President Nixon is widening the credibility gap between the White House and the people again on the prisoners of war issue. In his Sunday interview with CBS, Nixon said that communist negotiators had rejected proposals for the release of American prisoners of war in exchange for the setting of a deadline for withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Vietnam.

Two Democrats — one of whom is running for president — disagree with Nixon and say that the North Vietnamese are responsive to that kind of proposal but they have never been offered it directly by the U.S.

"Far from rejecting the trade," said Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., "the other side has explicitly offered to do it. They offered it to me in private on May 31 of last year and again at the official negotiating table on July 1. They've repeated the offer at the table more times than I can count." But, said Leggett, U.S. representatives have never asked the question.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., the first-announced candidate for Mr. Nixon's job, also accused the President of deception. "It is simply not true — and the President knows it is not true — that our negotiators in Paris have ever discussed with the North Vietnamese the question of total American withdrawal from Indochina in conjunction with the release of our prisoners." McGovern said Monday. If a definite withdrawal date were set, he added, "it would signal the end of support for the Saigon regime and our troops would be allowed to withdraw safely and our prisoners freed. The North Vietnamese did not reject this approach."

If memory functions correctly, McGovern and Leggett are closer to the truth. The North Vietnamese have publicly stated that an announced, definite withdrawal date for all U.S. troops would win a release of the prisoners. A change in the government in Saigon was not a condition to that proposal.

If the proposal was offered by the U.S. and discussed in Paris, as the President said, why doesn't he offer it again to clear the air? He probably won't, because he can't and still see the Thieu regime stay in power. A residual ground force in Vietnam and U.S. air support in Indochina is necessary to keep it there.

Bus Fares, Housing Appointment

A New York Times news service item out of Rome bears repeating in light of proposals offered in Lincoln and Omaha and other American cities concerning reduced-fare or no-fare bus service.

The eight-day no-fare experiment was begun last Thursday in the Italian capital as a dramatic effort to lure urbanites from their private autos and back to public transport.

According to the report, many Romans have rediscovered the bus as a means of traveling in their traffic-choked city. Officials think the results so far have been encouraging and are now considering suspension of the fare for another test period at a later time and perhaps abolishing it altogether eventually.

We think the fledgling Lincoln Transit System will have enough problems in acquiring its new equipment and building service back up to acceptable levels without having the immediate job of convincing the taxpayer that free public transportation is worthwhile. What may work in Rome may not work in Lincoln. But the no-fare or reduced-fare scheme does seem to bring people back to the buses. It is something that the system's advisory board and city government will be considering in the future.

In another topic related to local affairs, we commend Mayor Schwartzkopf for appointing Mrs. Carol Yoakum to the Lincoln Housing Authority. Mrs. Yoakum comes well-recommended by low-income groups in the city. Her experience as a welfare worker and as a tenant will give the board of housing commissioners a new perspective as well as low-income families their first real representation.

The fact that Mrs. Yoakum will not be able to vote on any action relating to Arnold Heights at the Lincoln Air Park — a housing project operated by the authority in which she lives — should not detract from her appointment and potential for valuable service.

ANTHONY LEWIS
American War Methods

"Sources said the bombing of the Plain of Jars was made easy by the fact that there were practically no civilians left in it." — Reuter dispatch from Vientiane

LONDON—Before 1967, more than 100,000 people lived in the Plain of Jars. They got in the way of American bombers operating over Laos, but this inconvenience was removed in a way reminiscent of Swift's "A Modest Proposal": the inhabitants were all either killed or forced out of their homes as refugees.

That is one example, not a particularly large one, of what the United States has done in Indochina in the name of democracy and self-determination. The figures are so huge, so horrendous, that they may no longer mean anything to the Americans who read them.

Prof. Arthur H. Westing of Windham College, Vermont, estimated the other day that there are "several hundred thousand" unexploded bombs and shells in Vietnam alone. (There are many more in Laos and Cambodia) What does that mean, unless one sees a photograph of a small Indo-Chinese boy who picked up what looked like a toy in a field and now has bandages over the stumps of his arms?

E. W. Pfeiffer, a University of Montana zoologist who has just finished an environmental study in Vietnam with Westing, tells us that American bombing has left 20 million craters. They range from 20 to 50 feet wide and 5 to 20 feet deep.

☆ ☆ ☆

Nor is bombing the only American technique of mass destruction. There is the defoliation that affected one-eighth of the acreage of South Vietnam, destroying food crops for 600,000 people and vast miles of valuable forest. There are the 150 bulldozers working every day to strip land of all cover—even more damaging ecologically than herbicides, according to Messrs. Westing and Pfeiffer. There is the "daisy cutter" bomb, which they estimate has so far killed every living thing in 116,000 acres of Indochina.

In a war, all sides commit acts of cruelty. But there is a qualitative difference, a moral difference, in the methods used by the U.S. in this war.

It is, increasingly, an automated war for the Americans. Killing is done at a distance, without the killers having to face the unpleasant reality of human beings mutilated or dead right there in front of them.

The world's most technologically developed country is using all its skill in destructive techniques against a peasant population. And against people who are not white—a fact that we may tell ourselves is happenstance but that much of the world considers no accident.

American officials so often show an astounding insensitivity to the consequences of our war methods. There was a remark the other day that must have set a record for official blindness. A Pentagon spokesman said that Hanoi's refusal to accept 900 gift packages for American prisoners was "inhuman and uncivilized" — that while American planes were carrying out 1,000 bombing sorties on North Vietnam.

There is a similar arrogance in some of the reasons given for the resumption of large-scale bombing. The North Vietnamese had attacked "unarmed U.S. reconnaissance planes." American officials said—an Orwellian lie since those reconnaissance planes are accompanied by armed fighters. And North Vietnam had been used "as a sanctuary," it was said, to attack American planes bombing Laos. What about American "sanctuaries" in Thailand or on carries standing off the North Vietnamese coast?

The official view is apparently that the U.S. has a divine right to fly and bomb at will over the entire Indo-Chinese peninsula without challenge by enemy aircraft or missiles. If the North Vietnamese dare to put up an air defense, we are entitled to punish them. It is a notion fitter for psychological than for political analysis.

It is against this background of American war methods and attitude that the decision to renew heavy bombing of the north must be judged.

Those five days of bombing — and how many more days in the future?—will cost dearly. The world has fresh reason to doubt what most people once took for granted: The fundamental decency of America. Worse yet, Americans will feel revived in themselves those terrible self-hatreds and doubts about the integrity of the political process that almost tore the country part in 1968.

Even those who think such moral costs are piffle should worry about the consequences for effective American influence in the world. For what we have done in Vietnam—and what we are now dramatically seen to be doing still—has crippled our ability to insist that other nations give diplomacy a chance and avoid the use of force.

That was clear in the India-Pakistan crisis. We simply could not be taken seriously when we said to India in effect: "The kind of interests we are pursuing in Vietnam justify resort to bloodshed, but yours do not."

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by writer's true name but may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials at the editor's discretion.

The Unicameral

Lincoln, Neb.

It is to be hoped that the shorter session of the Nebraska Legislature will inspire the lawmakers to get down to business and skip the prolonged diddling around with endless and useless detail and debate.

The unnecessary bills introduced just for the sake of looking busy get so tiresome, and a visit to the capitol during one of their average work days is something short of inspiring.

If 25 of the 49 seats in the Unicameral can have possible new occupants through this year's election, perhaps we'd better make the complete change and see if we can't get something more by way of common sense to represent us.

The Drunken Driver

Lincoln, Neb.

I would like to ask Virgil Falloon and the writer of the editorial, "Focus on Drunken Driving," Dec. 31 Star, why they are so apologetic and considerate in their methods of controlling the drunken driver. Virgil Falloon says: "While scrupulously avoiding the word 'crack-down' regarding the drunken driver," and the editorial writer says: "Patrol cars will not be parked around the corner from bars at closing time."

When the highway death toll reached almost the 500-mark, the highest in the history of Nebraska, and over half of these deaths were alcohol-involved, it seems that "crack-down" would be a mild method to use.

Are we going to have a control program to justify the spending of $1.6 million of taxpayers' dollars or are we just going to play another game? The drunken driver is not considerate and neither is he apologetic to those he slaughters. If the police need to park around the corner from the bars at closing time to be effective, then they should park there. There is no area of the alchoholic beverage industry which deserves respect, for it has destroyed the respect of more people than any other product and has no value except to line the pockets of those who make and sell it.

The program is not going to be effective if, after the drunken driver is apprehended, the charge is reduced to "negligent driving" as appeared under the court cases twice in this same paper.

Because of one of these "considerate" judges in another state several years ago I watched a baby die in one of our local hospital emergency rooms after his parents' car had been hit by a drunken driver weaving his way through the Lincoln traffic. His jail sentence had been reduced in the other state, but if he had served his time there, the baby would probably be alive today. Since that experience, I have been a crusader against the drunken driver.

Classical Music

Lincoln, Neb.

Some will notice, even fewer will voice their objection to a change in Sunday evening radio programming in Lincoln. But for the few who enjoy classical music, it's the death of a friend. "Musical Masterworks," for several years a weekend reprieve from the mechanical music melange, disappeared after months of lack-of-sponsor starvation.

It was my pleasure to serve as the host of that program during its last weeks of life. The end marks a time for reflection by anyone who uses a radio in the Capital City area; for although such a program as "Musical Masterworks" serves only the taste of a select audience, individual musical desires are even more select.

There are those who prefer Puckett to Lindsay; Brubeck over Shearing; Como above Crosby. But for listeners who favor Barenboim over Bernstein and Handel over Honegger, there is now one fewer station to favor anything.

Many say that Lincoln should be more culturally oriented. Certainly the loss of one radio program will not spell the end of culture in our city. It is not the first time classical music has been cut from the air waves here, and it probably won't be the last: its demise serves only as a marking-stone for contemplation of Lincoln's entire fine arts spectrum in 1972.

Speaking Out

Lincoln, Neb.

Recently Robert MacLennan has been criticized for quoting at a public meeting the official position of the national board of the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. on the need to repeal abortion laws. That position states that women should not be subjected to the horrors and dangers of back-street abortionists and that a woman seeking an abortion is entitled to safe medical care.

Some have criticized Mr. MacLennan for quoting this position in public, saying that as a minister he has no right to speak out for abortion reform. Apparently these critics feel that ministers are excluded from freedom of speech as guaranteed by the United States Constitution.

Lincoln Chapter, National Organization for Women (N.O.W.), supports the stand taken by the Presbyterian Church and Mr. MacLennan's right to speak on the issue. We also praise him for the courage shown by speaking up on an important social issue, thus exposing himself to the disgusting and irrational hate mail that has appeared in the Lincoln newspapers.

PHYLLIS BATTELLE
Workers Not Ready For Much Idleness

NEW YORK — Having passed through two consecutive 3.5-day weekends of holiday "leisure," many an American is thoroughly exhausted.

Not physically exhausted. Just psychologically frayed at the edges. All that accumulated goofing off — all that massive rejoicing because nothing really must be done — can be debilitating.

"On the afternoon of Dec. 23, I felt like a freed slave," remarks a friend. "But by Jan. 2, I'll be climbing the walls." She says she has seen three movies, too much turkey in too many variations, a wild variety of kids, and enough clutter and liquor to last for months. "Going back to the office will be like visiting a resort hotel."

A secretary across the hall complains that she couldn't sleep well during the holiday weekends.

The answer to that comes in a philosophical statement by Dr. Karl Menninger of the Menninger Foundation who observed once: "It is difficult to rest — when there's no work to rest from."

It makes one wonder about the growing trend toward shorter work weeks, and longer leisure periods. Are most Americans ready for the change?

Judging from current experience, I'd say that vast numbers are not. As much as the frustrations of work tend to tingle our nerve ends, work is still the contribution to society that keeps up our self-respect. To people who enjoy this contributing to society, loafing probably never will add up to serene contentment.

The increase in three-day "holiday weekends" this year is a preparation for a lazier future for all of us. The day is coming, and shortly, when the average American will spend one-third of his life in retirement. His job, his career, his contribution finished — finished 20 to 25 years before his life is.

This seems an enormous waste. You grow up, you study to learn a craft, you perfect it, grow wise and understanding and competent; you are at the peak of your prowess and — abruptly — the calendar (and the boss and the union and sometimes the law) says it's time to lie down and quit.

If you don't feel like lying down, too bad. Those are the rules. Medical science makes people physically fine and mentally sizzling at 62 years and far beyond, but the social code is a century behind medicine. Society says "Make room for youth," and the only way you can make room is to get out and stay out. Between your savings and Social Security, you should be able to nourish your body. But what happens to your mind and spirit?

It is youth who really enjoy the many three-day weekends which have recently been added to our calendar business year. To them, work is not the essence of worthwhile living that it has become to the generations of us who are past 30.

To increasing numbers of young people, work is the be-all and end-all of life; work often represents making money—and materialism corrupts.

If this present attitude continues, is it feasible to hope that the rules may be changed, to permit us "squares" who genuinely like our work to continue to do our thing, for our own good, and the good of the economy.

Why should we "make room" for youth"—if our replacement would rather be out fishing?

C. L. SULZBERGER
Malta's Prime Minister Drives Hard Bargain; Holding Threat Of Russia As His Trump Card

PARIS—A new allied crisis over Malta—or, at any rate, another flare-up of the old one, can be regarded as probable. The strategically located island republic has not figured much in recent news—but only because it has been negotiating with Britain and NATO. These negotiations appear to have failed.

Dom Mintoff, the socialist prime minister elected this year, is a fiery and emotional man who has the praiseworthy idea of seeking to raise Maltese living standards and alter Malta's economy to such a degree that by 1977 the island will no longer need to rely on its naval base for support and jobs.

The trouble is that Britain, former colonial ruler and still Malta's source of military sustenance, sees no point in paying heavily to finance this goal simply in order to prepare her own permanent expulsion from Maltese facilities. And Britain's allies—particulary interested in the Mediterranean—share this view.

Mintoff, after early hints that he might turn to Moscow if he could not come to terms to the West, originally proposed that Britain and NATO pay 30 [illegible] million pounds annual rent for continued use of facilities—a staggering increase from the previous fee of slightly over 3 million pounds.

The British, the North Atlantic allies and the Maltese have been consulting intermittently for months, seeking an acceptable compromise. They haven't succeeded. Mintoff reduced his original asking price to 18 million pounds a year. Britain and NATO came back by upping their original offer to 10 million—half British, half from the alliance.

Since Mintoff spurned this, London suggested he negotiate bilateral aid agreements with other NATO members on an individual basis. The Maltese have had little luck with this idea. The gap between what is being demanded and what is being offered remains apparently unbridgeable.

The British maintain Mintoff is being unrealistic by not taking into account expenditures—separate from and additional to rent payments but which result from use of the island's facilities by Britain and her allies.

London estimates such disbursements amount approximately to 13 million pounds a year and provide jobs for 7,000 of Malta's labor force of 100,000. It is notable that unemployed workers in Malta now total roughly 7,000.

In a sense, therefore, London feels it has a strong bargaining position because if a crunch were to come, Mintoff might be faced with double an already high unemployment rate. But the excitable prime minister also has trump cards in his hand. While he appears to have once held hopes that Libya might take up the financial burden if Britain were expelled, he now seems to mistrust the reliability of support from that wealthy oil-producing land.

Nor has Libya any navy that could conceivably require the services of Maltese shipyards; but this is by no means the case with the Soviet Union. Both Britain and NATO are acutely conscious of the danger to their Western Mediterranean position should the Russians sign a pact gaining access to Malta's facilities.

The island republic is not quintessentially important to allied navies — including the United States Sixth Fleet—but it is considered strategically vital that it be denied to Moscow's admirals. Were Malta open to Soviet vessels, the Soviet Union would be well on its way to penetration of the Western Mediterranean as it has already penetrated the Eastern Mediterranean.

Moreover, there is a lurking fear in West Europe that, in the latter case, the United States might thin out or pull back its Sixth Fleet rather than risk seeing it bottled up. Such a precaution would have strategic logic and would also be consonant with the present American mood for military retrenchment.

The Maltese problem—although no longer as flamboyant as when Mintoff first took power—represents a matter of urgent seriousness. The Russians have not recently been expanding in the Mediterranean. Indeed, their aircraft have been expelled from Algerian Mers-el-Kebir.

Nevertheless, Soviet strength in the inland sea is extensive and well backed up by a ring of bases to the east. Should Malta open its arms, Moscow is in a position to take immediate advantage of the break. Mintoff knows this and is going to bargain hard when the next round starts—quite possibly preceded by at least another mini-crisis.

Requests For State Sewage Treatment Funds Are Top Priority

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

A backlog of $10.5 million in "firm" requests for state funds in the secondary sewage treatment program is on the top of Department of Environmental Control Director James Higgins' priority list for action in 1972

Outlining his objectives for the coming year, the recently-appointed director said he hopes the current Unicameral will allow him to re-commit the state to the ongoing program.

"About 44 communities have put in firm requests since July 1 for matching state funds in the secondary sewage treatment program," Higgins said Tuesday.

Participation Reported

Currently, some 25 communities are participating in the program which was financed with $6.6 million in state monies. $15 5 million in federal funds and about $6 million in local support.

The total tab for federal, state and local participation, all 44 projects are approved, would come to $45 million. However, most likely the projects would be spread over a period of years, since the average project takes 2 years to complete.

No request was made during the last series of Appropriations Committee hearings since Gov. J. James Exon is considering an alternate way of funding the projects.

Measure Being Drafted

Reportedly the governor is in the final stages of drafting the measure which would put the funding on a local bond issue basis. Under the bonding route, the local municipality would float a bond issue for both the state's and the city's share. After construction has reached a certain stage, the state would reimburse the city for the state's share

The purpose of the alternative to lump appropriations is to prevent funds from setting idle until the cities are ready. Higgins pointed out that only $1 million of the $6.6 million in state funds would be used in fiscal 1972.

The sewage plants are not the only priorities of Higgins which are dependent on the Legislature's actions.

Higgins is asking for 5 more men in his department (bringing the total to 36) which will enable the DEC to increase surveillance and analysis of data so an "inventory" of pollution sources in Nebraska can be assembled.

Although his budget request for fiscal 1973 is less than the fiscal 1972 appropriation, the 1973 request represents a 6.03% increase over what was actually spent in fiscal 1972.

The department is asking for $415,638 compared to the $392,011 spent for fiscal 1972.

Recommend Action

Higgins explained that the inventory would survey all sources of municipal, industrial and agricultural pollution in the state, pinpoint the problem areas and indicate where action is needed.

"This is a real need," Higgins said.

"For instance, right now we have one man surveying 50 sampling points on rivers and streams. I would like to increase the manpower to three and the number of sampling locations.

'Isolate The Sources'

"Then we can begin to start measuring the impact of storm sewers and fertilizers on water conditions. First we must isolate the sources, though."

The added manpower, Higgins explained, would also allow more analysis of surveys and data.

"So far we haven't had enough opportunity to evaluate our findings."

In addition, Higgins said in 1972 there would be more work on solid waste management due to a $22,000 federal grant involving consolidation and coordination of dumps and landfills in Nebraska.

10 Churches Accused Of Complicity With Holders Of Military Contracts

©The New York Times

By DOUGLAS ROBINSON

New York — A unit of the National Council of Churches has accused 10 Protestant denominations of complicity through their stockholdings with the "irresponsible, immoral and socially injurious acts" of 29 corporations holding military contracts

Among the churches with military stockholdings, according to a report on religious investment practices, are those that have been in the forefront of the criticism of the Vietnam war and of the growing militarism in the United States.

The report, prepared by the Corporate Information Center of the national council, is to be made public Friday It shows that the 10 denominations, plus the national council itself have almost $203 million invested in companies that last year provided more than $10 billion worth of war materiel ranging from guns to missiles.

'Moral Aura'

Religious involvement in the military field, the report says, gives a "moral aura of legitimacy" to such investments and is a "factor of far greater significance than the actual dollar amounts invested."

Frank P White, director of the Corporate Information Center said under questioning that the report did not imply that churches were being "hypocritical" in their investment policies

"Generally, the reason that investment ethics has not kept pace with policy is quite simple — no one has thought much about it," he said.

"Aside from the newness of the issue, there are some process questions involved," he said. "Most investment committeemen historically have been, and still are, top corporate and financial executives."

"To ask these people to begin to prescribe moral sanction against peers and competitors, or for that matter, their own companies is troublesome to say the least," he said

The 50-page report, entitled "church investments technological warfare and the military-industrial complex," urges clergymen and laymen to "ask how the moral and economic wealth of the churches and other institutions is used" and then to "assume a leadership role by providing an example of corporate social responsibility."

To date, the report says, "ethical and moral concerns have not been expressed through the investment policies and responsibilities of the church"

Sale May Result

White said the report did not recommend that churches sell their defense stocks, although he conceded that action "might be the end result

"Selling stock obviously negates your right as a stockholder to speak to management about policies with which you disagree," he said "Many churches can petition and interview management and there are proxy proposals that can be submitted after further study"

"Our report only recommends that the churches begin to look seriously at their military holdings," he maintained. "They must decide for themselves what to do about the situation."

The churches examined in the report are the United Methodist Church, the Christian Church (Disciples), the United Presbyterian Church, the American Baptist Convention, the Lutheran Church in America, the Protestant Episcopal Church, the United Church of Christ, the Church of the Brethren, the Presbyterian Church in the United States and the Unitarian Universalist Association.

Among the 29 corporations named were the American Telephone and Telegraph Co, Standard Oil Co (New Jersey), the Ford Motor Co, the United Aircraft Corp, Litton Industries, Inc., the General Electric Co. and the International Business Machines Corp

Others were the Lockheed Aircraft Corp., the Westinghouse Electric Corp., Honeywell Inc, the General Motors Corp, TRW Inc, the RCA Corp. and Texas Instruments Inc.

White said that the 10 churches, on a national denominational basis, had investment portfolios totaling $1 5 billion.

He estimated that the nation's three major religions, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish, had about $22 billion invested in the stock market on a national regional and local basis The figure also includes religious agencies

The study dealt with the top 60 military contractors, which account for about 65¾ of all such contracts The churches had investments in 29 of these corporations

The report shows that in 1970, a bad earnings year income from these investments was more than $6.2 million and the total number of shares amounted to almost two million

According to the report, the leading religious investor in military hardware was the United Methodist Church with market value investments totaling $59,751,899. The second highest was the United Presbyterian Church with $57,871,157.

Other major investors included the American Baptist Convention with $30 556,371, the Protestant Episcopal Church, $29,891,430; and the Christian Church (Disciples), $8 690,821.

The National Council of Churches, which along with several of the denominations mentioned in the report, finances the work of the Corporate Information Center, has a military investment of $332 831

Pollution Act Also Includes The Dairyman

Beatrice — While much attention has been focused on beef feedlot operators complying with Nebraska's Water Pollution Act dairymen are faced with the same deadline of Dec 31, 1972, to meet runoff control regulations, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension dairyman Tuesday reminded those attending an NU-sponsored area dairy day, the first of eight scheduled around the state

Philip H Cole said that while all dairymen, regardless of size or type of operation, are expected to take the necessary steps to get in compliance, all dairy operations will not need elaborate waste disposal facilities And some dairies, because of their size and location on the farm, (no runoff into streams or onto neighboring farms) will need no runoff facilities Cole stated.

But he urged all dairymen to take the first and most important step — "seek technical assistance and find out what is needed for your dairy operation"

Girl In Peru Survivor Of Air Crash

Tournavista, Peru (UPI) — An injured teen-aged German girl walked nine days through the jungles or central Peru and said Tuesday she survived the crash of a Peruvian airliner that disappeared 11 days ago. She said another survivor was with the plane.

The girl, Juliana Koepeke, 17, told a farmer in this village near Pucallpa, 292 miles northeast of Lima, that the four-engine Electra turboprop with 92 persons aboard had been hit by lightning while on a Dec. 24 flight between Lima and Iquitos.

A ground search for the plane had been called off Sunday but an air search was continuing. A report from a radio ham operator in Dallas said one of the search planes had found the missing airliner with instrumentation but had not sighted it.

Five Americans also were aboard the plane

Miss Koepeke, whose mother Maria was one of the 86 passengers aboard the Lineas Aereas Nacionalies (LANSA) airliner, said the plane had crashed into a mountain pass at Chulla, which is near Tournavista

She was found by a farmer in Tournavista who relayed the information to an engineer who radioed authorities.

In Lima earlier Tuesday, Peru's military government canceled LANSA's flight license The crashed aircraft was LANSA's only plane.

Astronaut Duke Gets Pneumonia

Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Charles M Duke Jr scheduled to fly on the Apollo 16 moon mission in March, was admitted to nearby Patrick Air Force Base Hospital on Tuesday for treatment of bacterial pneumonia

The National Aeronautics and Space administration reported his condition was not serious.

It said his recuperative period would be 10 days to two weeks The agency said this would not seriously affect training plans for the planned launching to the moon on March 17 and that Duke should be ready to carry out the mission

Duke and Apollo 16 commander John W Young flew to Cape Kennedy from Houston's Manned Spacecraft Center Monday night. During the day Tuesday, Duke had complained of a cold and a bad cough.

NASA physician Dr John T Teegan reported Duke was resting comfortably and that his condition was not serious. He said neither Young nor the third Apollo 16 crewman, Thomas K Mattingly II, showed any signs of illness.

ACTION LINE: It's doubtful. The Vikings may have seen the Huskers in the Orange Bowl and may not care to play them.

We pay our physician each time before we leave his office as per his policy. Now Medicare has paid the physician, so it appears he is being paid twice. Medicare investigated and said we would be reimbursed by the physician, but after two months, there has been no response.
—J. Kuska, Lomita, Calif.

ACTION LINE: The physician checked with his bookkeeper and says you paid for extensive work performed in his office after a fall and later you were admitted to the hospital where the bill came to $85. This was not paid. So when the Medicare check came in to be applied to your office visit bill, the bookkeeper applied it against the $85 hospital bill. This resulted in your being issued a $3.20 check for the difference between the Medicare payment of $88.20 and the hospital bill.

Another check with the Medicare office resulted in a thorough investigation of the situation. Results: Medicare actually overpaid you on this series of bills by sending a partial check to you and a partial check to the physician for the $118 bill for office visits. You are being contacted personally about the matter and hopefully it will be corrected soon.

Is there a separate fishing license for ice fishing this winter? If not, what are the restrictions. —J.F., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: State Game and Parks Commission officials noted that the same license can be used with this restriction: up to 15 hooks can be in the water, whereas during other seasons only two lines with two hooks each can be in the water at the same time under one person's control.

Restrictions as to catch limit apply equally to ice fishing and regular season fishing.

Why is the flag at the new Game and Parks Commission building on 33rd St. not illuminated at night as law requires? —John Newman, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: At the time the flagpole was installed, underground wiring was not installed to light the flag at night, says Game and Parks Commission Director Willard Barbee. And, he says: "I'm not prepared to go to the expense of putting in the wiring or mounting unsightly lights on the building . . . (so) we'll just stop flying the flag at night."

This would be in direct opposition to state law passed in 1969 requiring all public city and state buildings display the flag day and night (illuminated) until the end of the Vietnam conflict.

A few months ago I read of a firm that paid several thousands of dollars for an old bottle of wine. I have a bottle of wine that is 130 years old. How can I find out if it is valuable? —Mrs. J. D., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: According to the owner of a newly-established wine shop in Lincoln, the value (as well as taste) depends on the vintage, estate and district of a foreign wine. Domestic wines would not be included. You could bring in the bottle to a wine shop of your choice for testing.

Investments Near The $1 Billion Mark

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

As predicted the total funds committed by the State Investment Council during calendar 1971 climbed close to the $1 billion mark

The total for the year, State Investment Officer Fred Kuethe revealed Tuesday, was $984,109,501 — or roughly $450 million more than was invested during the Council's first year of operation in 1970.

The more important figure — the total actual earned income from the investments — will not be known until the council's meeting on Jan 19, Kuethe reported Last year's $528 million in investments earned the state $10 974 842 in revenue through some 549 transactions

Services Utilized

The reason for the marked increase in investments, from 1970 to 1971, Kuethe said is "more state agencies realize we exist this year than last and are using our services"

The council was created by the 1969 Unicameral and was charged with the job of putting idle state funds to work for the state.

How does the investment picture look for 1972?

Hard to Forecast

While emphasizing that the situation is hard to forecast, Kuethe said he does not expect an increase in the amount of investments because the majority of idle funds have been invested by the council

"At this stage, I hope we can match what we invested in 1971; or maybe hit that $1 billion level," he said

Original estimates for 1971 hovered in the $600 to $700 million range.

As the Investment Officer currently views the economic situation, he does not expect a higher yield rate on investments in 1972 (in fact, he said on long term investments the yield may be lower for a while.)

Kuethe explained this is due partially to Nixon's economic moves over the past year — the Aug 15 freeze on wages and prices, the devaluation of the dollar and the trade agreements

The breakdown on the 1971 investments is as follows

Short term idle fund investments (less than 1 year)	$940 404 000
Medium term investments (over 1 year, less than 5)	$ 2 158,000
Long term investments (over 5 years)	$ 41,027 000
Stocks	$ 520,501
Total	$984,109,501

Two Motor Vehicle Supervisors Named

The appointment of two new area supervisors for the Motor Vehicle Inspection Division of the State Motor Vehicles Dept was announced by Director John W. Kissack.

Marion Simmons, owner of the T & S Auto Clinic in Hastings, will move to Norfolk to become area supervisor replacing Ken Franke, who has reached the mandatory retirement age

Jack Ritonya of Omaha, former owner of a service business, becomes an area supervisor in Omaha, teaming with Lou Kostka, who has had more than 425 stations to supervise in the Omaha area.

Kostka, former officer of the Omaha police force, will help train area supervisors in investigative techniques and case documentation against firms which do a poor or fraudulent job, Kissack said

Kissack said the new appointments reflect efforts to improve the inspection program by hiring area men qualified to follow up complaints perform spot checks and crack down on stations not performing inspections properly

Opposition Expressed To Reclamation Project

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

The Mid-State Reclamation Project, which would provide surface-water irrigation for portions of south central Nebraska between Lexington and Grand Island by diverting the Platte River into two offstream irrigation reservoirs, has found a new opponent in the federal Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife

The bureau released a position statement warning that the project, if completed according to recent detailed planning by the Bureau of Reclamation, would constitute a danger to wildlife — especially the sandhill crane and whooping crane — despite its provision for a national wildlife refuge, a state wildlife management area and three state waterfowl areas along the dewatered Platte.

The Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife's study of the project was prompted by changes in the Bureau of Reclamation's planning, cutting the number of offstream irrigation reservoirs from 23 small ones to 2 large ones, the statement said.

After the study, the report read " . . it is our conviction, that if the Platte River is dewatered, there is no way the National refuge or other mitigation measures included in the Bureau (of Reclamation's) 1957 report could compensate for the wildlife and environmental losses which are now attributed to the Mid-State Division project

"Contrary to conclusions reached in 1957," the report continued, "significant environmental losses would occur in the Platte River Valley from the proposed diversion dam near Lexington downstream to the confluence of the Elkhorn and Platte Rivers" if adequate flows are not maintained.

If the project is completed, the position paper said, "it is essential" that a minimum flow necessary for wildlife be allowed to bypass the diversion dam The statement included minimum flow requirements for all months of the year

"Preservation of the river is paramount," the paper said, "with efforts directed towards maintaining the natural environment of the stream and preventing degradation of adjacent habitat"

The Mid-State project, under discussion by the Mid-State Reclamation District for more than 30 years, has come under recent criticism from the National Audubon Society and an association of local farmers known as the Mid-State Irrigators.

The Mid State Reclamation District has the power of taxation, but needs federal aid Congress authorized the completion of the project by the Bureau of Reclamation in 1967, but the appropriation of funds depends on the signing of a minimum number of acres in irrigation contracts.

Carpenter Offers Bills To Provide Elderly Aid

A package of bills designed to provide financial assistance for the elderly was presented to the 1972 Unicameral Tuesday by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff.

LB1084 would provide a 50% property tax exemption for homesteads owned and occupied by persons 65 or older, not exceeding $250.

Carpenter's bill would wipe out homestead exemptions for other Nebraskans, except disabled veterans who would continue to enjoy a 90% exemption based on the actual value of their homesteads.

Other bills in the package include LB1082, granting a utility bill discount of at least 25% to customers of public service companies who are 65 or older, and LB1083, providing a one-half fare for persons 65 or older who ride the public buses in Lincoln and Omaha.

Among other new bills introduced was Sen. Richard Maresh's proposed constitutional amendment to grant a five-year state income tax exemption to any physician who locates in a town of 2,000 population or less.

The Milligan senator's plan was contained in LB1106.

Sen. Sam Klaver of Omaha produced LB1092, which would permit the sale of liquor at retail on college and university campuses.

Carpenter proposed establishment of a Commission on Drugs in LB1114, and his LB1081 would create a Commission on Mexican-Americans.

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh sponsored LB1115, providing a program for the treatment and rehabilitation of intoxicated persons and alcoholics, and abolishing the crime of public intoxification.

Photographs would be required on drivers licenses after Jan. 1, 1973 under terms of LB1087, signed by Sen. Gerald Stromer of Kearney.

Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell sponsored LB1090, which would extend Internal Revenue Service investment tax credits to Nebraska's state income tax system.

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln would provide state income tax exemptions for armed forces personnel serving their first enlistment or drafted into service. His proposal is LB1094.

A tax study package included bills changing the aircraft fuel and mobile home tax systems, and increasing the corporation income tax rate from 20% to 25% of the personal income tax rate.

Among rules changes presented to the Legislature was Barnett's surprise proposal to have the Unicameral devote the first 20 days of each session to meeting as a budget unit composed of eight subcommittees.

The senators would hold hearings, review budget requests and submit recommendations to the permanent Budget Committee.

Eight subcommittee representatives would then meet with the regular Budget Committee to prepare an appropriations bill for consideration by the Legislature.

Barnett's proposal was forwarded to the Rules Committee for its recommendation.

Youth Is Granted Restraining Order

. . . Against O'Neill School Board

An O'Neill High School student was granted a temporary restraining order against school officials Tuesday, ordering them to allow 16-year-old Michael E. Thomas to attend classes regardless of the length of his hair.

The suit, brought before U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom by the students mother, Marilyn Palmersheim, his legal guardian and a special education teacher at the school, and her attorney, Larry Langdale, cooperating attorney for the Nebraska Civil Liberties Union (NCLU), alleges Thomas was informed by O'Neill High School Principal Jerry Williams on Dec. 17 that the length of his hair constituted a violation of the dress code in effect at the school.

The suit alleges Thomas was suspended from classes and ordered to sit in the balcony of the school gymnasium until he got his hair cut. The student stayed in the balcony for three weeks until the school recessed for Christmas vacation, the suit alleges.

During that period of time, the suit claims, Thomas "was attacked by another student with a knife who attempted to forcibly cut his hair."

The suit asks a total of $35,000 in damages and names as defendants, Williams, school Superintendent Kenneth Anderson, C. Russel Force, president of the O'Neill High School board of Education, and board members Gilbert Poese, Robert Waters, John Watson and Morgan Ward.

The suit asks $5,000 compensatory damages because Thomas' educational career was allegedly interrupted and jeopardized and may lead to failing a semester of school.

The suit alleges Thomas was a subject of public scorn and ridicule, suffered shame and humiliation and great mental anguish and emotional distress, for which $20,000 compensatory damages are sought.

The suit also alleges "enforcement of said policy and rule is inconsistent with established law" and "refusal to permit Thomas to attend classes constitutes a knowing and willful violation of his constitutional rights," for which $10,000 punitive damages are asked.

Along with the temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction granted by Judge Urbom, $50 damages and costs were awarded to the plaintiff.

A hearing date of Jan. 15 at 9 a.m. was set for the preliminary injunction by Urbom.

NCLU has won two similar cases in the federal courts, but this is the first suit asking damages. The NCLU board said damages are being sought because school officials are apparently continuing to ignore legal precedents.

Senators Open Debate On Change For Regents

The Legislature Tuesday launched into consideration of its holdover bills from the 1971 session, opening debate on a proposed constitutional amendment broadening the powers of the University of Nebraska Board of Regents.

Action on the measure, LB127, was pending when lawmakers adjourned for the day.

The bill proposes a constitutional amendment which would grant the Legislature authority to give the board governing power over other public educational, research or service institutions.

"This is the gradual approach to coordination of higher education," Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell said.

Whitney sponsored the proposal as chairman of the Nebraska Constitutional Revision Commission.

The commission, he said, recommended that the state colleges continue to be governed by their own board of trustees "until the Legislature decides otherwise."

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha suggested that while the Legislature was considering the proposal, "why not be consistent" and provide for statewide, rather than district, election of regents.

The 1971 Legislature killed Chambers' bill to provide for district election of school board members.

"Either it is proper to provide representation by districts or it is not," he said.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff thereupon offered an amendment to the bill, providing for statewide election of regents.

Chambers said he would support such an effort, even though he favors district representation. At least such a proposal would "bring the issue before the people," he said.

Carpenter's amendment was pending when the lawmakers adjourned.

Sen. Chambers Plans To Seek Re-Election

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said Tuesday he has decided to seek re-election to a full four-year term in the Legislature this year.

"Even though I have misgivings and my heart is not in it, I will run again," the 34-year-old lawmaker said.

Chambers was elected in 1970 to fill the last two years of the term of the late Sen. Edward Danner, who died Jan. 26, 1970.

In the 1970 general election, Chambers unseated Sen. George Althouse, who had been appointed to fill Danner's post until the election.

Chambers had considered bowing out of the Legislature after the 1972 elections and, at one point, mentioned the possibility of an independent petition campaign for the U.S. Senate as a means of raising issues with which he is concerned.

His decision to seek re-election was based on two major considerations, he said.

"I want to monitor prison reform activities to make sure they are carried out," Chambers said.

"And I want to be certain we have a strong voice in the Legislature which will continuously articulate our problems and recommend solutions."

Chambers represents the 11th District, which includes Omaha's predominantly black Near North Side.

County Board Pay Hike OKd; Colin Opposes $2,000 Boost

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County Commissioners Tuesday approved a $2,000 annual pay raise for commissioners beginning in 1973.

However, Commissioner Robert Colin Sr. opposed the hike from $8,000 to $10,000 annually on grounds that the office is a part-time position and "I feel it should be paid a part-time salary."

The present salary of $8,000 paid to the commissioners, Colin said, is equivalent to a $16,000 per year job which in many cases, exceeds the salary now paid to other elected officials "who are required not only to devote full time to their jobs but assume much more responsibility."

The newest commissioner on the board said he feels paying high salaries to elected part-time officials is not in the best interest of the taxpayers and high salaries "would encourage citizens to run for a part-time office for the money and not because they have a desire to serve the community."

Bringing personalities into the pay hike question, Colin stated that he did not feel the members of the Lancaster County Board deserve an increase in salary for the following reasons:

—Lack of desire and ability to cooperate and work together in the best interest of taxpayers.

—Decisions made by the majority of the board that were not in the best interest of taxpayers.

—Decisions made by the majority of the board during closed door meetings.

—Decisions made by the majority of the board without the knowledge of the entire board.

—Lack of desire on the part of the majority of the board to make changes in procedures that would create efficiency.

—Regular open public meetings being recessed and then closed at a later time or date unknown to the public or the entire board.

Commissioner William Grossman said he felt that the $10,000 annual salary for the commissioner post is "reasonable" and that the board should go along with the recommendation of the Nebraska Association of County Officials which had recommended a maximum of $10,000 for commissioners in counties the size of Lancaster.

He said the position has a great deal of responsibility and he had kept account of the hours he personally spends on county business which totaled about 30 hours per week.

"It costs me a substantial amount to be on this board," he said, noting that he is willing to sacrifice that much time from his regular profession as an attorney "because I'm interested in government and have a desire to do the best I know how for the county."

County Board Chairman Kenneth Bourne, who chaired the state committee which made the recommendations for salary increases for commissioners beginning with the 1973 term, said that Douglas County had exceeded the $10,000 recommendation and had set the salary at $12,000 because of the added work load and time involved.

Newly-appointed Lancaster Office for Mental Retardation (LOMR) director John Luebs spoke out in behalf of the increase in annual salary for the commissioners.

He said that a great deal of responsibility goes with the position and that it warrants "at least $12,000 to $15,000" per year.

County Commissioners Defer Action On Retroactive Salary Increases

Lancaster County Commissioners Tuesday deferred action for a week on retroactive pay increases for county employes back to when the President's wage freeze went into effect but approved the 11 holidays for 1972 urged by county officials.

The commissioners all indicated mixed emotions in granting pay increases for county employes retroactive to Aug. 23 when they would have gone into effect had it not been for the freeze.

Commissioner Robert Colin Sr. said he wasn't sure which way the board should go.

"I think we should consider what the President was trying to do with the freeze but I don't want to deprive the county employes of anything."

Pay Increases Legal

County Attorney Paul Douglas, who had informed the board last week that it is legal to grant the back pay increases in a lump sum, told the commissioners Tuesday that it is a board decision and that it may do as it chooses in granting or not granting the back pay.

Commissioner William Grossman said that with everyone now seemingly getting the wage increases the "freeze doesn't mean very much."

"However, I hate to see the county employes penalized when everybody else is getting theirs," he said.

He and the other two commissioners indicated they would like to study the matter more before making a decision.

11 Holidays Approved

In other business, the board unanimously approved after considerable discussion the 11 holidays for 1972 urged by county officials after a meeting last week.

The officials unanimously agreed last week to back the county's observance of the 11 holidays set out in state law and followed by the state offices.

County Board Chairman Kenneth Bourne at last week's board meeting had indicated that he had visited with Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf and expected agreement between the city and county on the same eight holidays observed by the two governmental bodies in 1971.

He said Tuesday he had received word from the mayor that the city would observe the same eight holidays.

However, County Assessor Fritz Meyer told the commissioners that there was no need for the city and county to "go together on holidays any more" since many of the functions formerly performed by the city and county are now performed only by the county.

He said rarely does an individual coming to the County-City Building have business with both the city and county.

"The City and County are independent from each other and should be," he said. "But all of a sudden the city moves in and we do what they tell us."

Colin said he didn't think it was necessary for the county "to follow" the city but thought there should be some agreement for the taxpayers' convenience that the building be either opened or closed.

Grossman said that he felt that the holiday problem would be greatly simplified if all public offices were closed the same days and moved that the county go along with the state holidays and ask the city and municipal court to do the same.

Holidays approved for 1972 are: New Year's Day; Lincoln's Birthday; Washington's Birthday; Arbor Day; Memorial Day; Independence Day; Labor Day; Columbus Day; Veterans' Day; Thanksgiving, and Christmas.

Farmer Signup Date Postponed

Washington (AP) — The Agriculture Department has decided to postpone the start of farmer signups for 1972 crop programs for wheat, feed grains and cotton, a spokesman said Tuesday.

The signup was originally scheduled to begin Jan. 17 and continue through Feb. 25. The new dates are Feb. 3 to March 10.

One official said the additional time would give the department an opportunity to look over a special survey report on farmers' planting intentions for 1972 crops. That report is scheduled for Jan. 27.

Youth Is Granted Restraining Order

. . . Against O'Neill School Board

An O'Neill High School student was granted a temporary restraining order against school officials Tuesday, ordering them to allow 16-year-old Michael E. Thomas to attend classes regardless of the length of his hair.

The suit, brought before U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom by the students mother, Marilyn Palmersheim, his legal guardian and a special education teacher at the school, and her attorney, Larry Langdale, cooperating attorney for the Nebraska Civil Liberties Union (NCLU), alleges Thomas was informed by O'Neill High School Principal Jerry Williams on Dec. 17 that the length of his hair constituted a violation of the dress code in effect at the school.

The suit asks a total of $35,000 in damages and names as defendants, Williams, school Superintendent Kenneth Anderson, C. Russel Force, president of the O'Neill High School board of Education, and board members Gilbert Poese, Robert Waters, John Watson and Morgan Ward.

The suit asks $5,000 compensatory damages because Thomas' educational career was allegedly interrupted and jeopardized and may lead to failing a semester of school.

The suit alleges Thomas was a subject of public scorn and ridicule, suffered shame and humiliation and great mental anguish and emotional distress, for which $20,000 compensatory damages are sought.

The suit also alleges "enforcement of said policy and rule is inconsistent with established law" and "refusal to permit Thomas to attend classes constitutes a knowing and willful violation of his constitutional rights," for which $10,000 punitive damages are asked.

Along with the temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction granted by Judge Urbom, $50 damages and costs were awarded to the plaintiff.

A hearing date of Jan. 15 at 9 a.m. was set for the preliminary injunction by Urbom.

NCLU has won two similar cases in the federal courts, but this is the first suit asking damages. The NCLU board said damages are being sought because school officials are apparently continuing to ignore legal precedents.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

Gemini can tantalize, Libra can charm; Leo can impress, Cancer can offer security, Capricorn can be patient and Taurus can collect. Pisces and Scorpio are the most "mysterious" of the zodiacal signs, natives of Virgo can offer health tips and Aquarius can invent. Aries initiates projects and Sagittarius smooths over rough edges.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Stick to basic issues. Co-ordinate activities. Don't wander too far afield. Do what you feel comes naturally. Leave speculation to others. Get an accounting, take inventory. Correct safety hazards.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Speculative procedures intensify. Means element of timing favors your efforts. Give full play to creative endeavors. Member of opposite sex plays key role as social life accelerates.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20). Stress on home activity, real estate proposals and property tax. Study Aries message. Stick to practical issues. Be frank. If truthful now, you save time, money and possible embarrassment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22). There is much moving about — but your position will remain basically steady. Discard rumors. Stick to factual information. Older individual, who has weight of authority, is on your side.

LEO (July 23-August 22). Money gain indicated through versatile approach. Put forth ideas; create format. Your qualities of humor, showmanship are appreciated. What appeared a setback or delay will rebound in your favor.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Extend efforts to wider areas. Lunar cycle is such that circumstances turn in your favor. Purchase apparel. Others note your appearance. Initiate projects. Welcome contacts and challenges. You win.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Work behind scenes. Adapt low profile. Means don't be too conspicuous. Some changes are beneficial. Give seeds chance to blossom. You will understand — if patient. Important person makes fine gesture in your behalf.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Friends who really care encourage you to mend domestic rift. Those who advocate otherwise either don't know better — or are not your friends. You now learn who is merely of fair-weather variety.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Unusual method can lead to success. Work now with film. Create illusions. Refuse to be discouraged by one who is ultramaterialistic. Ambition can be fulfilled. Display faith.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You put poetic thoughts into motion. Ideas are transformed into inspiration. Your natural abilities surge to forefront — and are appreciated. Journey is probably on agenda. Look beyond the immediate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Important transaction can be completed. Involves items which belong to another. Your judgment is put to test. Success is indicated. Know this and act like you know it. Means be sure, steady and confident.

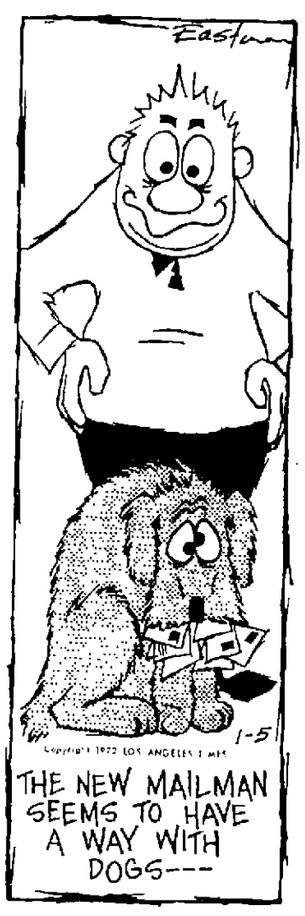

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Opposition may appear more formidable than it is in actuality. Try new approach in dealing with mate, partner. Fresh legal opinion can be of great benefit. Take steps which free you from red tape.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you possess ability to communicate ideas, would make fine teacher, reporter or photographer. You are in process of learning. This is due, to large extent, to what occurred last year in domestic area. January and October will be your most significant months of 1972.

Opening lead—king of clubs

This hand occurred in the Gold Cup, Great Britain's premier team of four event, in the match between a London and a Yorkshire team

At the first table, with London North-South, the bidding went as shown Something obviously went wrong with the bidding when the London pair failed to reach even a small slam—with seven spades, seven hearts and seven notrump all ice cold

North was chiefly at fault He failed to realize that he had not represented his strength in full by bidding first three diamonds and then three notrump.

He should have become unalterably slam-minded from the moment South opened two notrump, and West's intervention in clubs should have whetted his appetite all the more. He bowed out much too soon with three notrump.

North presumably would have bid three diamonds had the ace been simply the deuce, and he should have recognized this during the bidding. South easily made all the tricks for a score of 720 points

At the second table, with a Yorkshire pair now North-South, the bidding, after two passes, started in this colorful fashion:

South "Two cloobs"

West (imitating South): "Dooble"

After a few more rounds of bidding, the Yorkshire North-South pair got to six spades, at which point West, the Londoner, said 'Seven Cloobs You can dooble me if you like"

North did and West went down 1,300 doobled'

Down seven would have registered a clear profit for the East-West pair had their teammates at the first table bid six spades (1 460 points) or seven spades (2,210 points), but the way things actually went, the London team lost 580 points on the deal

New Project Discourages House, Bicycle Thefts

Chicago (NFS) — A new program for discouraging household and bicycle thefts is being made available to communities throughout the nation.

Called "Project Theftguard," the program is centered around the use of electric engravers. A sponsoring organization loans the engraver for three or four days to participating families, who engrave a driver's license number on all valuables.

They then make an inventory of these valuables indicating where the number was engraved. Finally, they display a "Project Theftguard" sticker on the back and front doors and where other entry would be most likely.

A SPECIAL "Project Theftguard" sticker is available for bicycles

According to Dremel Manufacturing Co., Racine, Wis, makers of electric engravers, programs similar to "Project Theftguard" have been operating since 1963 when one was first initiated in Monterey Park, Calif

Dining with Wine

Since time immemorial, Italy has been known as "The Land of Wine"; and is today, the world's largest producer with an annual production of approximately two billion gallons of both red and white wines

The Italians are the most natural wine drinkers in the world and consume an enormous quantity of both good and bad wines each year. Since the supply is plentiful and the prices are low the pleasures afforded by this most healthful of all foods do not tax the Italian's budget and he enjoys his "vino" unstintingly.

Unlike most grape-growing countries which have but a small portion of their soil suitable for grape growing, Italy is one vast vineyard, with each province or district producing wine with its own characteristics. From the toe of Italy's boot which produces the rich Marsala to the slopes of the Alps in the north, the Piedmont region, from which come the sturdy and full-bodied Barolos and Barberesco wines, every area produces wine which is suitable for export Italy has thus become one of the world's largest exporters of wine, and the excellence of its many types of wine has made them famous and in demand throughout the world

Grape growing and wine making is a very important segment of the Italian economy About 25 to 30 per cent of its agricultural force is engaged in this industry and the value of the wine crop represents about 10 per cent of the entire agriculture revenue Almost ten per cent of the Italian agricultural acreage is devoted to grape growing

Until recently, the Italian wines have not offered the buyer the consistency of quality enjoyed when purchasing French or German wines. The Italian wine industry was, largely, uncontrolled and the purchase of a bottle of Italian wine was a rather risky venture since the purchaser could not be assured that the wine described on the label was the same as that in the bottle. The shopper had to be a knowledgeable wine expert being able to identify the offerings of a reliable wine producer or had to rely on a dependable wine merchant who offered only the wines of the best Italian exporters. However, Italy has in the past few years adopted wine control laws patterned after the French "Appellation Controlee" laws, and today the buyer of a bottle of Italian wine bearing the control seal is assured of both quality and positive identification of the bottle he is buying.

Most Americans ask for Chianti, the very popular wine from the province of Tuscany — easily recognized by the straw covered "fiaschi" in which it is bottled But Italy offers a vast range of fine wines. Some of the better known varieties are the Barbera, Dolcetta, Grignolino and Nebbiolo by the Villa Doria; the Lambrusco and Trebbiano of Alberti and the Valpolicella and Bardolino by Sanzeno

Italy also makes millions of gallons of sparkling wines known as Asti-Spumanti and Nebbiolo and LaCrima Cristi or "Tears of Christ". These are very low in alcoholic content and are sweeter than the sparkling wines of France or the German Sekt. One of the best of these delightful wines is that offered by Marchesini Della Rovere. It may be served with any food and at any time — from appetizer to dessert

Evening Wedding

At a 7:30 o'clock ceremony, which was solemnized on Thursday evening, Dec. 23, the marriage of Miss Janet Susan Fricke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Wilbur Fricke of Rising City, to Milton Bemis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bemis, also of Rising City, took place at the First Lutheran Church in Rising City. The Rev. Milan E Swasko read the lines of the service.

Mrs. Wayne Vanek, sister of the bride, served as the matron of honor; and the other attendants included the bridesmaid, Miss Lisa Fricke of Rising City, sister of the bride; and Mrs. Delmer Rathje of Shelby.

Michael Struebing served Mr. Bemis as best man. Allan Kuzma and Dave Struebing of Rising City were groomsmen; and Gary Bemis of Surprise, and Ralph Glock of Blair seated the guests.

For her wedding, the bride chose a gown fasioned of peau de soie and antique peau d'angel lace. The Empire bodice featured a high neckline and a wide panel applique of the lace; and the lace was repeated on the deeply-cuffed Bishop sleeves Wide scallops of the lace on either side of the A-line skirt created a redingote effect: and French pleats added back fullness to the gown Her train-length, lace-edged mantilla veil was held in place with a coif fashioned of the lace

The bride is a graduate of Platte College in Columbus, where she is a member of Phi Theta Kappa honorary. Mr. Bemis is a former student at Nebraska Wesleyan University, and he is affiliated with Phi Kappa Tau fraternity.

MONEY MATTERS

BY LINDA OLIG

Moving should be no spur-of-the-moment process — you should obtain estimates and make your reservations well ahead of time. And there are many other suggestions that will save you time, money, and confusion, as well as hearrbreak if some of your belongings are damaged in the process.

When you have a representative come to your home to prepare an estimate of how long it will take them to pack and move your items and how much it will cost you, be sure to show them everything, including that old trunk of your grandfather's that has been collecting dust in the attic for years—if you are going to take it with you, that is. Not showing certain items will not save you any money, for the estimate is simply an estimate—in fact, it may cost you more in the long run if the move takes much longer than anticipated. You may then be required to pay overtime or for an extra trip.

Another thought is that you may want to be rid of several items—through a garage sale or donations to your charity—in order to avoid moving some items that are useless.

The time you choose to move may also have an impact on the cost. Avoid, if possible, moving during the summer months even though that may be easier on the children and yourself. More than two-thirds of the moves made annually take place during the summer—therefore, the prices are often higher and it may take you longer to recieve your household goods at the final destination. Also, most major moving firms offer reduced, seasonal rates during the less hectic winter months.

Many families who are contemplating a move volunteer to pack their own dishes and so forth—thinking they will save a few cents here and there. However, if you do this yourself, you, not the movers, will be liable for any damage, to packed items.—When you let the movers pack all of your possessions, they are liable for anything that is damaged including things they have packed.

Speaking of damages, the movers will make every effort to protect your furniture while it is in their truck. Should any damage occur, be sure to bring it to their attention and file a claim with the local agent who is responsible for repairing or replacing the damaged item. Therefore, it is quite important to be there when your household goods are being loaded on the van and also when they are being unloaded. For long distance moves the professionals will prepare an inventory of your belongings at the origin point—be sure to keep a watchful eye on that inventory, for they will be recording any present damage to each item. This is for the movers' protection. If you have any objections to those notations, be sure to make the professionals aware of that.

When making reservations for your move, be sure to give yourself a few days' leeway at both ends to avoid extra charges — if the van is late arriving to pick up your furhishings, you may have to pay another month's rent: and if the truck arrives at the destination ahead of schedule and ahead of you, you may have to pay storage charges.

A CHILD'S WORLD

BY PHYLLIS WOOLEN

DEAR Mrs. Woolen:

Our oldest child has been sick with a chronic illness for a number of years now. However, in spite of this medical problem he seems to be getting along fairly well.

Our problem is that our other children are beginning to see this son as being favored, and we are realizing that the constant attention that has been shown to him is creating a problem. It is becoming evident that our son is demanding attention regardless of whether has to do with his illness or not.

We are somewhat puzzled with what our course of behavior should be at this point, and whether or not it is too late to reverse a bad situation that we have created.

We would appreciate your advice on this matter.

PUZZLED

In a situation such as this, it is a human tendency to capitalize on the gains it will bring in the form of sympathy. We often see adults who use the same method to gain from a physical or mental disadvantage.

It becomes a natural development of a child who has to have special attention for a while to continue to make demands when they are no longer necessary, and even to expect special privileges and attentions. The child discovers that it is to his advantage to play up his illness.

There is, in fact, no good way to heal or help a child initially without expressing concern and thereby developing the potential for this problem. The most effective way to deal with it, however, is to be matter of fact about the illness or disability, and he can learn that everyone in the course of his life will suffer with illness or perhaps some kind of disability. The parents must relate: (1) that they will respond to a genuine illness and need to the best of their ability; and (2) that no one is deservant of extra sympathy because he must learn to accept the problem since all people, in one way or another, must learn to cope with special situations in their lives.

It is important to make as many demands on the chronically ill child, within his limitations and abilities, as it is to make on the normal child. This might seem harsh to outsiders, but it will relieve both parents and child of magnified problems later.

When such demands are placed on the ill child, he may well react strongly emotionally. This in turn creates guilt feelings on the part of the parents. The parents should not feel guilty, because they do their child no favor by allowing him to capitalize on his illness. A well adjusted adult, especially one with a chronic illness, or handicap, is one who has learned not to dwell on his disability. He must learn, through his parents, to respond to situations not in terms of his illness, but to the best of his individual ability.

ABBY

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to the secretary whose boss received pornographic mail was, in my opinion, shortsighted. The secretary's job is to assist her boss in his business duties, not to be forced to participate in his voyeurism.

Having had the same experience myself, I threw away the literature and photographs — choosing to believe that it was unsolicited mail rather than believe that the man I was expected to show respect for had thoughtlessly (or intentionally) subjected me to the trash that came in the mail addressed to him.

One day he asked me if that was all the mail there was because he had been expecting something else. It was then that I learned that he had actually sent for this pornography I promptly admitted that some had come, but I had been throwing it away. He seemed shocked.

Then I asked him why he didn't have that stuff delivered to his home, and he replied, "My wife would be offended — she doesn't share my interest in voyeurism." I told him that I didn't either, and that I felt that I deserved no less consideration and respect than his wife.

This opened the door, conversationally, for him to tell me about his dreams and fantasies which involved me. It was apparent that he felt he was sharing with me an imagined experience which he thought I would find flattering. People who get their kicks "watching," also enjoy talking about it.)

I quit my job, but the problem of what to tell prospective employers about why I left a top-paying job as secretary to the president of a well-known company plagued me, so once again, it is the woman who pays. Nuts to you, Abby!

Rehearing Overruled In Suit Against Ford Motor Co.

By United Press International

The Nebraska Supreme Court has overruled a motion for rehearing in a decision upholding a $325,000 damage claim against Ford Motor Co., clearing the way for an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court clerk's office reported the action was handed down without comment.

Ford had asked the court to reconsider a November ruling on a suit filed against it by a Chadron woman who was injured in an accident 12 years ago.

Janet Kohler contended the cause of the accident, which involved a 1960 Ford Falcon and which killed the driver and left her confined to a wheelchair, was a faulty steering mechanism.

The Supreme Court upheld the District Court's ruling in favor of Miss Kohler in its November decision. It also upheld the doctrine of "strict liability" of a manufacturer for its products.

In asking the court to reconsider its decision in the case and grant a rehearing before the bench, Ford contended the evidence was insufficient.

The company, represented by the Omaha legal firm of Cassem, Tierney, Adams and Henatsch, said there was no "direct" evidence that a broken tooth in the steering gear locked, causing the accident.

Manual Lists Services State Can Provide

By Associated Press

A 260-page looseleaf manual designed to tell Nebraskans what services state government can provide was placed in circulation Tuesday by Gov. J. J. Exon.

The manual is titled "Guide to State Social and Economic Services." It was prepared jointly by the State Office of Planning and Programming, the Department of Economic Development and the State Technical Assistant Agency.

The manual will be distributed initially to the 629 units of local government within the state.

First of its kind in Nebraska, the manual reflects an attempt to make the resources and services offered by state government more readily available to Nebraskans who conduct the affairs of local government.

The book contains information on 260 programs which are administered by and available through state agencies.

Not included are services offered by the University of Nebraska or state colleges. Later updated versions of the manual will include these programs as well.

Remember VS and tell others. Thank you.

School Tax System Challenge Planned

Papillion (AP) — There may be a Nebraska version of the now famous Serrano school tax decision in California.

The Papillion School Board has decided to go ahead with a court challenge of the present property tax system for financing public schools.

However, the case probably will be a taxpayer's suit and several Papillion district families have indicated they will become plaintiffs, John P. Kelly, school board attorney, said.

The district then probably would join the suit as a plaintiff. Kelly said the case will be filed in U.S. District Court in Omaha.

In the Serrano decision, the California Supreme Court ruled the local school property tax unconstitutional because wealthier districts could provide better educations, sometimes at a lower tax rate, than poor ones.

The state court returned the case to the lower trial court for further proceedings and orders for an "orderly transition" to a new system.

Similar rulings have since been handed down by federal district courts in Texas and Minnesota, Kelly said.

Henry Jelinek Dies; Founder Of Wilber Bank

Crete (AP) — Henry V. Jelinek, founder of the Wilber State Bank and a former vice president of the American Bankers Assn. for Nebraska, died in a Crete hospital Monday at the age of 89.

Mr. Jelinek formed the Wilber State Bank in 1916 and remained active in the banking business for 60 years. About 10 years ago the Wilber State Bank merged with the Saline State Bank of Wilber.

He is survived by his wife, a son, Howard, Manchester, N.H., and a daughter, Mrs. Joan Riebow, Oxnard, Calif.

Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. Friday in the First Evangelical Lutheran Church of Wilber.

Air Pollution Workshop, Hearing Slated

Omaha (AP) — A free public workshop Jan. 10 and public hearings in Lincoln Jan. 20, offer Nebraskans their final chances to determine the cleanliness of the air they breathe, a leading environmentalist said Tuesday.

Curt Abdouch, chief naturalist at the Fontenelle Forest Nature Center, said air pollution authorities from four states will present the workshop to be held at the Prom Town House at 7 p.m. Jan. 10 at which the proposed Nebraska Air Quality Plan will be discussed.

Public hearings will be held at the State Capitol Jan 20 by the State Environmental Control Council after which a state plan and regulations for curbing air pollution will be adopted.

Abdouch said the Jan. 10 workshop is the only one in the state and at this time the 350-page state plan will be discussed. He said without attending the workshop people "probably won't have the information to testify effectively at the Lincoln hearings."

Copies of the proposed state plan are available for inspection at these locations:

Health Department, North Platte; city hall, South Sioux City; Permits and Inspection Office, Omaha City Hall; Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Department air pollution office, Lincoln; State Department of Environmental Control office, Lincoln.

Groom Is Late

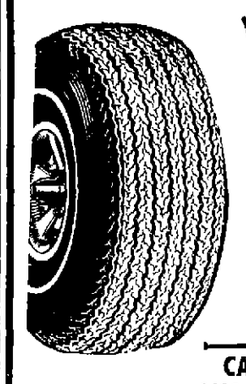

Turin, Italy (UPI) — Francesco Gallina, 20, was a few hours late for his wedding to Rosa Tragotti. He had to thank police for letting him get married at all. A police patrol car caught him stealing gas from a parked car early in the morning. They let him go when he explained he had to rush to his hometown of Alba to get his wedding suit and all the gasoline stations were closed.

Umbrellas Lost

Moscow (UPI) — Muscovites lost more women's umbrellas during 1971 than any other item, according to the man in charge of the lost luggage office at the Kursky Terminal. Gloves ran a close second followed by men's portfolios and women's handbags.

Tavern Closing Was Necessary

Belleville, Ill. (UPI) — The owner of the Coal Bin Tavern said he had to close the place after pressure from county officials forced him to put tops on his topless waitresses. Edward Becke said it was embarrassing to le passerbys see his tavern wa open but nearly empty.

Storm Makes Life Miserable

By United Press International

A wide ranging arctic storm made life miserable for millions of persons Tuesday from the Canadian border to deep in Texas Wild winds thrashed Southern California.

Snow, sleet and freezing rain turned streets and highways into treacherous ribbons of ice. Motorists battled traffic snarls in cities from Chicago to San Antonio and El Paso, Tex.

Thirteen persons were injured — none seriously — when a Chicago-bound Greyhound bus carrying 30 persons flipped into its side on an icy curve on US 77 north of Hillsboro, Tex.

School Bus Skids

A school bus carrying seven junior high school students skidded off an icy road, hit a power pole and came to rest teetering on a ledge over the ice-clogged South Plate River in Denver The children scrambled to safety out windows and a rear door, and only one required hospital treatment

A motorist in San Antonio, blinded by sleet and rain and the glare of headlights struck and killed a woman Kansas counted two traffic fatalities and Illinois and Indiana one each blamed on the weather

A bus bound for Little Rock from Kansas City went off icy U.S. 71, injuring at least four persons near Nevada, Mo.

Four persons died and five others were injured in a windblown fire that burned through a 22-unit apartment building in Springfield Ill in snow and 14-degree temperatures

In Amarillo Tex where the mercury fell to 1 above zero, a 2-year-old was asphyxiated by gas fumes and six members of his family were overcome.

Fierce, cold winds swept through Southern California mountain passes. They triggered power blackouts in sections of four counties, downed trees and utility lines, smashed windows and overturned several trailers and camper trucks Such vehicles were banned on some highways.

Wind gusts were reported at up to 90 miles per hour The San Fernando Valley was particularly hard hit

Snowdrifts piled so high on the plains of northwest Texas that cattle roamed from one ranch to another "One rancher told me that when he went out to check his herd this morning he had '25 extra cattle," said Bill Loyd, a Muleshoe banker. "The snowdrifts were covering up the fences and it let the cattle move wherever they wanted to"

Dozens of schools closed throughout central Texas. The Midland-Odessa airport was shut down Bitter cold threatened tender vegetables in the Rio Grande Valley

"People don't even drink coffee in this weather," said Mrs. Claudette Ferguson, whose restaurant at Tulia, Tex., was almost empty. "Farmers just stay home."

Harsh cold gripped the northern Rockies and upper Midwest It was 36 below zero at Laramie, Wyo , and 29 below at Bozeman, Mont and Detroit Lakes Minn Denver had a record low of 16 below for the date

DON'T LAUGH; HE'LL RUN

Comedian Pat Paulsen launched his campaign for president, again, in Manchester, N H , at a news conference Tuesday This time he says he's serious even though he drew too few votes to be counted in the official records in 1968 He took to the streets to get signatures on a petition he must present by Thursday afternoon in order to get on the ballot He said he considers the main issues to be war, pollution and poverty.

Catholic Charities Conference Plans To Lobby

©The New York Times

Washington — In a major shift of policy, leaders of the National Conference of Catholic Charities said Tuesday that the organization planned to supplement its traditional social services with a new focus on political activism.

The change in emphasis will still have to be approved by the organization's national membership, but a spokesman said approval was almost certain.

Msgr. Lawrence J. Corcoran, secretary, acknowledged that the move would probably result eventually in a dispute over its tax-exempt status.

"We intend to strongly resist this," Msgr Corcoran said. "There should be the opportunity for nonprofit organizations to lobby."

A spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service declined to comment on the case, but he said the law authorized tax exemptions to organizations only if "no substantial part of (their) activities is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation."

Argues Neutrality

Corcoran said he did not expect the policy change to result in a substantial increase in the group's lobbying in the near future, but argued that political neutrality should not be a requirement for tax exemption.

"One of the very unfortunate things that is happening today is the squeeze being put on nonprofit organizations in their religious dealings with Congress and the federal government," he said.

"If they are squeezed out of trying to make their contribution in the arena of public social policy, then the arena is left open only to the business establishment, and perhaps to the labor movement."

He contended that lobbying designed to improve society was "a religious activity" that should not be regulated by the government.

The Roman Catholic organization, which was established in 1910, was described by Corcoran as the nation's largest private social welfare agency Among its member institutions are orphanages, homes for the aged homes for unwed mothers and day care centers

Corcoran and other officials of the organization have scheduled meetings with the leaders of many of its 500 agencies and branch offices in the nation's 159 dioceses.

Example

As an example of the kind of changes likely to occur, the monsignor pointed to the financial assistance provided the National Welfare Rights Organization by the Brooklyn Catholic Charities office.

He said the policy switch represented an implementation of the social theology of the Second Vatican Council, which concluded in December 1965.

"There has been much renewal in such areas as liturgy, preaching and the sacraments," Corcoran said, "but there has not been the same kind of progress in social work."

He said the focus on organizing the poor was rooted in a perception of the church as community, rather than as hierarchy.

He also said, "It is a question of coming to grips with the question of a materialistic and hedonistic society which is in conflict with Christian values."

Births Decline

Singapore (UPI) — Singapore's birth rate fell for the third consecutive year in 1971, registering 17 births for every 1,000 persons. The Straits Times newspaper said the country's annual birth rate was nearly 29 per thousand when a family planning campaign started 12 years ago.

Decision Is Expected On Releasing Report On Alleged Police Brutaltiy

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said Tuesday that a statement will be forthcoming on his decision to release the report of the Human Rights Commission's investigation into alleged police brutality

The mayor said that copies of the confidential report — compiling over 38 hours of testimony — are being sent to City Council members. However, before the report is issued publically the mayor must give his approval.

Schwartzkopf pointed out that release of the report will be held until the completion of the trial of Cleveland Randolph who has been charged with resisting arrest Testimony in the case was heard Tuesday and will continue Wednesday in Municipal Court

The mayor indicated that he felt the report should not be made public

"This is what bothers me," the mayor said. "I have given my word and the Chief of Police has given his that this matter would be kept strictly confidential."

He added that he had told witnesses testifying before the Human Rights Commission that their statements would remain confidential

The matter of alleged police brutality against minority groups was first brought to the City Council's attention Nov 1st, at which time the matter was referred to the Human Rights Commission for investigation

The incident in question occurred Oct. 24th, when Randolph, who is black, alleged he was assaulted after being taken to the City-County Jail.

The commission's report on the incident and on over-all police-community relations originally was due in November However the commission sought and received several time extensions from the Council to complete their investigations

Martial Law Ended In Greece

Athens (AP) — Martial law officially ended for most Greeks on Jan 1 except those in the Athens, Piraeus and Salonika areas, according to a decree published Tuesday in the government gazette

A third of Greece's almost nine million residents live in the three regions, considered by the army-backed Greek government to be the centers of antigovernment activity

Arson Remains Possibility In Bus Blaze Investigation

The fire Dec 20 at the Lincoln Transportation System building which destroyed two buses and extensively damaged a third is still being listed as 'undetermined' in origin according to fire inspector Fred Soflin but the possibility of arson has not been ruled out

"We weren't able to find a formal cause for the fire," Soflin said, adding that all possibilities are still being investigated.

The inspector said they have ruled out the possibility of a passenger leaving a lighted cigarette on one of the seats because of the time element involved He said they had thought the blaze may have been caused by an electrical short, but in going over the circuit breakers, all were found in working order and none indicated that there had been a short

Soflin said one of the problems they face is the amount of fire that developed in a relatively short time He said a driver returned a chartered bus to the building at 10 30 pm Dec 19 and did not notice any indications of a fire but approximately an hour and a half later two buses were completely engulfed in flames

Many people have been interviewed including past and present employes, Soflin said, "we are at a stand still at this point in the investigation"

He said that there were a lot of people around at the time of the fire and one of them may come up with a picture or information that would give them something new to work on

Full Support Of Education Said Solution To Problems

State Education Commissioner Cecil Stanley said Tuesday that most of Nebraska's school reorganization problems and inequalities in educational opportunities would disappear with 'full' support of education

Speaking before the Lincoln Rotary Club luncheon, Stanley said several bills for state school aid changes are expected to come before the 1972 legislature.

"Full state funding of education," he said, 'would eliminate the 'property tax advantaged' school districts and generally equalize educational opportunities for all school children in the state"

However, Stanley cautioned that state funding of education could lead to state control of schools

He said he favors "local control over schools" and expressed hope any state funding method would maintain local control.

Stanley said the recent California case attacking inequities in educational opportunities because of the unequal tax support of schools carries implications for Nebraska and most other states

Fire Damage At Residence 'Considerable'

A fire at the Roger Kitsmiller residence at 813 West A, Tuesday afternoon resulted in "considerable" damage to a bedroom and furnishings and extensive smoke damage to the rest of the house, according to fire inspector Fred Soflin

Soflin said that the two Kitsmiller children, Daniel, 5, and Joseph 4, had been playing with their mother's hair dryer in the bedroom and then went upstairs and left it running on the bed The hair dryer overheated and set the bedding and bed on fire

The children's mother, Collette Kitsmiller, smelled smoke and went to investigate, Soflin said When she got to the bedroom she found the bed totally engulfed in flames She then took the children to the neighbors and called in the alarm.

Rae Viewing Minneapolis Bus Offer

Lincoln Transportation System (LTS) manager Jerald Rae traveled to Minneapolis Tuesday to inspect buses which may be purchased to replace the three that were destroyed in a Dec 20th fire.

Rae reported to the City Council Monday that the buses which were destroyed by the early morning fire which swept through the LTS garage could be replaced by used buses at a price under $1,000 each.

Finance Director James Hallon said that the loss was fully covered by insurance.

Infants Killed

Misty, moisty days around our scatter-by-the-bay. Hardly a place to find shelter except under an occasional dry martini. We make them in the kitchen.

Do you realize, citizens, that most people eat and drink in the kitchen? It is one of the wonders of our wonderful times. The dining room is like man's appendix — it's there, but you hardly know it until it gives you trouble.

This was revealed by the furniture people. Furniture people study these trends and then "reveal" them through newspapers. This is a revealing business.

Anyway, they made a study and found nearly everybody eats in the kitchen.

A whole lot of people do a little social drinking alongside the sink, too.

You know, the couple you invited for dinner drop in. The lady of the manor says: "What would you like to drink? Will you make it, Joe?"

Joe drifts to the kitchen. His male guest trails, saying:

"Anything I can do to help?"

They shake up a pair of blockbusters on the cutting board. And away they go for the evening.

* * *

"It may be," says the furniture study group. "That this trend to the kitchen is subtly encouraged by the woman of the house. It saves housework. Prevents glass rings on the good furniture. And the modern kitchen, with counters and recessed ovens, is quite an attractive and cozy room."

My own kitchen is pretty cozy at that.

I keep the cloves (for hot buttered rum) just behind the sugar. So when I am juggling a hot glass and reaching for the cloves, I usually spill sugar all over the floor.

There is nothing sweeter than a floor covered with sugar. It makes a cozy, crunching sound underfoot.

* * *

So what else is new in the house? An intelligent question and we have a daffy answer. (Not mine. I simply reveal.)

"The American housewife would like a bathtub that can be raised and lowered. Housewives complain that it is hard to get in and out of low tubs. They also say they have to get down on hands and knees to bathe the baby."

They want somebody to put an Otis on the bathtubs. Going Up! Step back in the tub, please.

We bathed our babies in the sink. A masterful piece of efficiency combined hygiene and our social life. But apparently many housewives mop off their moppets in the tub. Not only a back-breaker, but dangerous.

What else do our housewives want, bless their hearts? They want to eat in the kitchen. But they would like to have a formal dining room — "to teach the children better manners."

(It seems to me, children bathed in the sink while the guests are socializing, have a great opportunity to learn manners.)

* * *

If you interview ladies of the households, you will find that they deny they want to eat in the kitchen. They will scream to high heavens that they want to eat in all the formal manners of the most formal dining rooms.

However, visiting friends where there are formal dining rooms, I seldom find anybody in them. The housewife says brightly: "I just thought we'd have a light buffet tonight. It seems so much more cozy."

The dining room was there, and they were glad to have it. It fulfilled a large need. But it doesn't function. It just sits there.

* * *

Surveys of mine are inconclusive because when I ask typical American homemakers, they swear that they are using the formal dining room practically all the time.

And when you get one of these things started in the typical American home, you wish you hadn't.

Havelock Businessmen Establish 1972 Program

The board of directors of the Havelock Business Association has established a program for the coming year and designated committee assignments.

Five basic committees were established and a general program was approved for each committee, according to the association president, James Studnicka.

Studnicka said each committee would be co-chaired by two members of the board of directors and that members would be asked to volunteer for committee work.

He said the committee and co-chairman are

—Retail promotion: Glenn Statler and Bill Kaiser

—Public relations and intracity liaison Wayne Matthes and Don Wenzl

—Membership Mark Kipper and Bill Nueksch

—Community relations: Robel Gustafson and Jeannette Rockenbach

—Budget: Dick Harner and Niles Jobst.

"This is the first time our association has started out with a formal, written program of work," Studnicka said.

"Although the goals of each committee are general in their listings," he added, "we are counting on individual committees to work out the details for accomplishment of the overall goals."

He said the concept will enable the association to chart a definite course of action and assess progress

The first general meeting will be held Tuesday, January 18 at 7:00 p.m. in the meeting room of the new Victor E. Anderson Library, he said

REPORTS

Holding a year-end news conference Tuesday was Housing Secretary George W. Romney to report accomplishments of his department. Romney said last year marked a three-year effort to organize HUD along functional lines and to decentralize its operations to provide more effective service to local communities

Thompson Elected Head Of Housing Authority

Former City Councilman Carroll Thompson was elected chairman Tuesday of the Lincoln Housing Authority (LHA) even though Thompson accepted the post on the condition that he would resign in February if he is not reappointed to LHA.

Thompson's present term on the Authority expired last June 30 and he has not yet been reappointed or replaced by Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf.

A nine-year veteran of the LHA, Thompson succeeds Kenneth King whose resignation from the Authority became effective Dec. 31, 1971

Thompson said, "I will serve as chairman until February and if — by that time I'm not reappointed — I will resign."

He added that he did not think he could serve as chairman not knowing from "one week to the next" if he would be replaced.

Originally appointed to the LHA by Mayor D. L. Tyrrell in February, 1963, he was reappointed by Mayor Dean Petersen in July, 1966.

Thompson, 44, in addition to serving on the City Council has served as chairman of the Mayor's committee on Human Relations, has been a member of the Mayor's Committee on Housing, active in the Republican Party and is an executive in a Lincoln public relations firm.

Change Favored

San Mateo, Calif. (UPI) — Apparently a large majority, 88%, of independent businessmen favor a change in automobile insurance to some kind of no fault system, the National Federation of Independent Business said.

Extended Benefits Are Available For Some Unemployed Persons

Nebraskans who have exhausted their unemployment insurance benefits during the last half year may be eligible for extended benefits, State Labor Commissioner Gerald E. Chizek announced

Chizek said the state is participating in the federal-state extended unemployment compensation program that goes in effect when the unemployment rate climbs to 4.5% on the national level Chizek said the program makes extensions possible as the purpose of the program is to help unemployed workers who have no further benefits available from regular unemployment claims

Chizek said the Division of Employment is making an all-out effort to inform individuals whose claims are exhausted that they may be eligible for extended benefits under the new program

Chizek asked all unemployed persons whose claims were recently exhausted to come into the nearest Division of Employment Area Claims Center during the first week in January

Rebuilding Told

Buffalo (UPI) — Pillsbury, Inc said it will rebuild its Buffalo flour mill which was wrecked by an explosion and fire Sunday Damage was estimated at $3 million

No More Challengers

Miami, Fla. — Through the first 10 weeks of their season Nebraska footballers kept hearing it and kept reading it — that they hadn't played a worthy foe yet.

Through the first few weeks of the season even their coach, Bob Devaney, was saying he didn't know how good they were because he didn't know how good the opponents had been.

They kept making opponents look bad in beating them by 34-7, 35-7, 34-7, etc., and critics derisively were adding those beaten teams to what they were calling "Nebraska's Bum of The Month Club."

But it became increasingly apparent that one reason the Husker foes were looking so bad was that the Huskers were quite simply a very good football team.

Then came Oklahoma, ranked No. 2 and that's like a heavyweight champion fighting his top-ranked challenger. The Huskers won that one.

The heavyweight champion was then matched with a team that moved up into the top challenging position, Alabama, and in the Orange Bowl here Saturday night, they made Alabama look like a member of that Bum of The Month Club.

Bums, Contenders All Alike

Whether they be a member of the Bum of The Month Club or a top challenger the Huskers treated them all alike, save for Oklahoma.

The offense scored five touchdowns; the defense allowed one.

They may not have played all the challengers to their throne, but they played everyone that showed up to challenge them and it likely was the first team ever to play two games in one season against a No. 2-ranked team as the Huskers did in Oklahoma.

They ducked no one and even after whipping Alabama were offering to put their championship claim on the line against any takers.

That confident philosophy started here a year ago when Notre Dame's Ara Parseghian was making noises in an effort to get his Notre Dame team the final Associated Press No. 1 ranking and Nebraska was snowbound in Miami — because of snow in Lincoln, not in Miami.

'Tell Ara if he wants to play to come on down we're just lying around down here,' Devaney offered.

Saturday night as Devaney accepted the MacArthur Bowl, symbolic of the National Football Foundation's championship, he remarked, 'If we have to play another game to win it we will.'

His reference was to the foundation's decision to break precedent and wait until after the Orange Bowl to award the trophy to the winner.

And Willie Harper wanted to give the only other unbeaten team in collegiate football a shot at the Huskers. 'Maybe we ought to just take his bus to Toledo and settle things with them,' Harper allowed as the Huskers bussed back to their Miami Beach hotel after the Orange Bowl triumph.

No One Else To Convince

But if there was anyone else who needed convincing you can't find him in Miami and it's doubtful that you can find him anywhere if he had a TV set and had it turned on to the proper channel Saturday night.

One press box wit observed at halftime when the Huskers held a 28-0 lead: 'They ought to keep Nebraska around for another week and let them play the winner of the Miami Dolphins-Baltimore Colts game.'

No one would seriously put the Huskers in that class, but most are putting them in a class by themselves as far as the collegiate football world is concerned.

Commenting on a tongue-in-cheek remark made to an Orange Bowl committee member as to how the bowl could foist such a farce off on the people, Miami Herald sports editor Edwin Pope observed:

'It wasn't the Orange Bowl's fault. The committee came up with the ratings catch on the bowl season. It was just that nobody realized how stupefyingly strong Nebraska really was.'

And commenting on the Alabama effort to play ball with the powerful Huskers, Pope wrote, 'It was like trying to make a case stick against Perry Mason. No way.'

Hull Having More Fun Playing Hockey

By CHIP MAGNUS
(C) 1972, Chicago Sun-Times

Chicago — Turning 33, Bobby Hull describes himself as "having more fun playing hockey than ever, probably no smarter than I was last year and weighing less than I have since I was 13."

"I keep hearing that I'm a smarter player than ever, but I don't feel any smarter than a year ago or a year before that. I am lighter, though, about 183 and I don't know why," Hull said as his Chicago Black Hawks' teammates helped him celebrate his birthday Monday.

It wasn't, of course, Bobby's lightest point since his youth. Three years ago, when he suffered a broken jaw and had his mouth wired, the weight plumeted from 194 to about 175. This time, he says he feels fine, not at all weak, but just has been losing weight.

"Maybe it's a good thing," he said. "They say you should take off some weight as the years go by, and it's not as if I felt weak or anything. All those birthday cakes they've brought me should come in handy to put back a few pounds."

On the eve of his birthday, fans deluged him with cards and cakes, so many that he could easily eat his cake and have it, too.

As for the fun in hockey, Bobby is finding that on the line with Pit Martin and Chico Maki, a line that has produced 25 goals and 62 scoring points in the 12 games since it was formed. Actually, Martin has centered the line before, the year Bobby came up with his high of 58 goals.

"We just work together so well," Bobby said, "and the other two guys work so hard that they make it easy, a real pleasure to play hockey."

Maki, of course, has been on a line with Bobby for years and regards his left wing simply as the greatest hockey player in history. Of Martin, he said, "As smart as they come, a hard worker and a really fast skater. He is a tremendous playmaker."

Martin, who was switched back to the line after injuries forced coach Billy Reay to do some juggling of the forwards, has found himself capable of more than he'd ever thought possible. "The way Bobby and Chico move up right with the play," he said, "I find can hold the puck and set up plays. Frankly, I never thought I could do it consistently.

"It's funny," he continued, "but we usually look awful in practice. Maybe we know what we can do and aren't working that hard to change things. I don't know. But when the game starts, we have the timing just right.

"That's the key to it, the timing. You know where your linemates are going to be, and it gets that you can even pull off a blind pass once in a while. Then, another big thing is that somebody is always ready to drop back and cover on defense, so we aren't hesitant about driving in, afraid that we might get caught up ice.

"Another important point is being able to hang onto the puck. I find I can do it now, because the defense can't concentrate on any one of us. And the way Bobby and Chico skate, if I can hold onto the puck long enough, one of them is sure to be open for a good shot."

NCAA SET TO SWITCH?

Exec Council Seeks Changes

. . . IN CLASSIFYING SCHOOLS

Hollywood, Fla. (UPI) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association's Executive Council voted Tuesday to recommend that the NCAA revise its system of classifying its schools.

The recommendation of the Executive Committee would be considered at a meeting of the full NCAA tentatively set for next summer to consider a cutback in financial aid to athletes.

The re-organization could divide the NCAA now split into college and university divisions into as many as three or four categories of colleges and universities, based primarily on the size and scope of the schools.

An NCAA spokesman said the council decided that the re-organization should come before, or at least at the same time, as the proposed drastic cuts in scholarships.

The key proposal in the debated financial aid package would be to award aid on the basis of need only. The matter will first come before the association membership for discussion Thursday when the 66th annual NCAA Convention opens.

The scholarship proposal cannot come up for a vote however except in a special convention.

Both the financial aid measures and a group of proposals on recruiting are intended to save money for financially struggling college athletic departments across the nation.

The recruiting proposals, which will be up for a vote at the convention here, would tighten restrictions on recruiting high school athletes.

It would limit to five the number of institutions an athlete could visit in trying to decide on a college, allow only one visit to any one college and limit recruiting visits to an athletic prospect to one.

The Council also voted Tuesday to allow college basketball teams to begin their seasons as much as one week earlier in the year.

Council endorsement of a proposal usually assures its passage. The council is meeting here prior to the opening on Thursday of the NCAA's 66th annual convention.

Formal discussion of financial aid proposals, cutting back on athletic expenditures to alleviate "tight money" situations in ataletic departments, were not due until Thursday.

The basketball season proposal would allow the schools to play their first game the last Friday in November instead of Dec. 1. That could come as early as Nov. 24.

A proposal by the National Association of Basketball Coaches that two scrimmages be allowed in addition to the maximum schedule of 26 games was not endorsed but will come up before the convention.

Also meeting prior to the NCAA convention was the Executive Committee of the American Association of College Baseball Coaches. Tom Chandler, president of the Association and Texas A&M Baseball coach, said the group is trying to convince major league baseball to draft only in June instead of January and June.

Chandler, noting that college relations with professional baseball are the best ever, said the elimination of the January draft would mean pro baseball would not be able to draft 21-year-olds with a season of college eligibility remaining as is current practice in many instances.

Chuck Brayton, coach at Washington State and head of the NCAA's baseball rules committee, said the Southern Conference has been given an automatic qualification for the NCAA district baseball tournament.

UCLA Still Holds First In Ratings

Compiled From News Wires

UCLA and Marquette continued their domination of the wire service polls Monday, taking first and second respectively in both the Associated Press and United Press International ratings.

A nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters picked the Bruins as the top team for the AP while for UPI a board of coaches chooses the leaders.

Both polls have North Carolina in the No. 3 spot and neighboring South Carolina as No. 4. Indiana rounded out the top five in both polls after emerging as kingpins of the Old Dominion Classic during the tournament-happy holiday week.

The AP has Penn, winner of the Kodac Classic last week, in the No. 6 spot and Louisville in No. 7. Long Beach State held down No. 8 after winning the International City Classic; Virginia was No. 9 after taking the Palmetto Classic and Ohio State dropped to No. 10 after being beaten by UCLA.

The UPI has Louisville in the No. 6 position in the top ten, with Penn No. 7, Long Beach State, Ohio State and Maryland complete the group.

The only Big Eight team to make either rating was Missouri, ranked 19th by the UPI.

Wesleyan Gets Started Right By Whipping Friends, 73-65

. . . PLAINSMEN ADVANCE TO 4-6 RECORD

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska Wesleyan started the year off right by grabbing a 73-65 win over Friends University at the Ina J. Taylor Gym Tuesday night.

Friends, now 6-2, finished with a 23-4 record last year and came within one victory of earning a berth in the NAIA national tournament in Kansas City.

The Plainsmen who moved to 4-6 will host the W Club Invitational Friday and Saturday.

The game started as if Friends was in for an easy night. The Falcons raced to 10-0 lead before Wesleyan scored.

In that stretch, the Kansans made five of six shots from the field while NWU was in a zone defense.

Coach Ivy Peterson had his Plainsmen change into a tight man-for-man and NWU started rallying by feeling off six straight points.

Friends held the lead for the last time with 13:58 left in the first quarter. John Strain connected on two consecutive fielders to put Wesleyan up to 18-15 with 11:56 remaining.

The Plainsmen then steadily built on their advantage with most scoring coming off a well-executed fast break.

By battling the taller Falcons evenly on the boards NWU was able to run and set up many scoring opportunities. Both teams finished with 18 rebounds.

Wesleyan led 39-29, at the half and played a more cautious game in the last half.

Friends tried to press but the Plainsmen were able to break it most of the time. The Falcons tried a zone defense briefly but came out of it, when NWU went into a ball-control game.

Every time Friends would draw within seven points the Plainsmen would make free throws, after being fouled trying to stall and up the margin. Peterson termed the win a "good team effort."

Only eight players saw action for Wesleyan with six scoring."

Redell Lintz and John Strain each had 17 points for NWU while Lyle Hiatt had 16. Dick French 12 and Mike Renken nine. Renken was the game's leading rebounder with 21.

"We blocked out well and were able to fight through the screens on defense," Peterson said.

"We didn't switch men and played them real tight. It was a good win over a good team," he noted.

Peterson pointed out Renken in particular as "doing a tremendous job." Renken was married in Imperial on Monday and returned to Lincoln about noon Tuesday.

How Other Writers Viewed The Huskers

Miami, Fla. — How the nation's sports writers have seen Nebraska's 38-6 victory over Alabama for the national championship in the Orange Bowl here.

Bob Elliott
Miami Herald

Richard Nixon could have saved himself an awful lot of time Saturday night if he had placed a telephone call to Nebraska coach Bob Devaney at the end of the first half of the 38th annual Orange Bowl classic in the OB stadium.

For when the first two periods of the collegiate Super Bowl were finished, Devaney's gang of marauders held a 28-0 lead over Paul (Bear) Bryant's demoralized Crimson Tide, proud champions of the Southeastern Conference.

It all wound up with a 38-6 Nebraska victory, one of the biggest shockers of recent years.

Jack Griffin
Chicago Sun-Times

Merlin, the wizard of ancient times, couldn't have coached a ball club past Nebraska. This may be, as Bryant suggested, one of the finest college teams ever planted in a stadium.

Certainly, the Cornhuskers proved it in the Orange Bowl. But it wasn't just the one game. They've been proving it all season. The only challenges they had really came from within their own lodge, Oklahoma and Colorado.

Some of the Alabama patriots mumbled about the fumbles and interceptions that the Cornhuskers dug out of their darlings. And they hinted darkly but weakly that the war might have been different if the ball had bounced a little their way.

Don't you believe it. If the Cornhuskers hadn't minted victory out of Alabama errors, they would have found some other way to do it. Anyway, the name of the game is to make the other guy spit up the football.

Richard Dozer
Chicago Tribune

The powerful Nebraska Cornhuskers pulverized a pretender from the Deep South here, routing Alabama 38-6 in an Orange Bowl Classic to settle which team was first and which was second in college football.

Striking early on Alabama mistakes and Johnny Rodgers' dazzling 77-yard run to the end zone with a punt return, the mighty man from the Midlands left no doubt about No. 1.

But they whipped the Crimson Tide so soundly on the way to their 23rd consecutive victory that they cast considerable doubt over any claim Alabama might have had to a No. 2 ranking.

Devaney Honored

Oklahoma City (UPI)—Bob Devaney of Nebraska has been elected the nation's 'Coach of the Year" for 1971 by the Football Writers Association of America, president Volney Meece of Oklahoma City announced Tuesday.

Meece said Devaney edged Alabama's Paul (Bear) Bryant and Iowa State's Johnny Majors in voting by more than 1,300 sportswriters. Others who placed high were Bob Blackman of Illinois, Chuck Fairbanks of Oklahoma and Bo Schembechler of Michigan.

Northwestern's Alex Agase was the 1970 winner.

Parsons suffered a shoulder injury in a dummy drill Monday. Parkhouse's ankle injury suffered in the Orange Bowl failed to respond to treatment. Both departed for home Tuesday.

Nelsen-Griffin Bout Slated Wednesday

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Randy Nelsen has got his wish. Dan Griffin of Fairbury will fight him if the match can be made at the Lincoln Boxing Smoker Wednesday.

'He's (Griffin) been training pretty hard," says Murvel "Mumbles" Fentress, Fairbury boxing coach. "He trains about 2½ hours a night after he gets off work.

His wind and stamina are better than Nelsen's so I think he can beat him."

Nelsen the Lincoln Saylor fighting-coach shrugs off any reference to his condition and says that he intends to fight his kind of fight and avoid mixing it up in close quarters with Griffin.

"That's how he's been winning," Nelsen explains. "He gets his opponents to fight his kind of fight then he hits them in the back of the head when they bend down.

I don't go in that close so I think I'm going to win by staying away and boxing him."

Fentress says Griffin has been working on short jabs and hooks and plans to use this as an attack against Nelsen and his peek a boo defense.

'That's good," replies Nelsen. "I hope he fights that way because I'm not going to. I'm going to box him. That's my kind of fight."

Nelsen said he was glad that Fentress would agree to a Dave Underhill-Bruce Pearson rematch as Pearson got robbed in his last fight."

Other fighters making the trip from Fairbury are Dave Truba who Nelsen says he would like to match against Ron Stutzman and Dan Peppercorn who may fight Lincoln Saylor's Chip Williams.

'As a matter of fact," Nelsen says frankly, "Fentress can have just about any match he wants. I've got fighters who will fight anyone he wants to bring along."

The Lincoln Boxing Smoker will get underway at 8 p.m. at Pershing Auditorium with weigh-ins slated for 6 p.m.

Outbreak Of Influenza-Like Illness Apparently Still Far From Epidemic

What health officials are terming "sporadic outbreaks" of an influenza-like illness continued in the state Tuesday, although the disease was apparently still far from epidemic.

Ten Lincoln schools reported absenteeism due to illness at 10% or more, while two more area health facilities announced they were restricting visitations.

The health facilities are Madonna Home and the Lincoln Veterans Administration Hospital At the VA Hospital, officials said visits would be suspended except for immediate families of seriously ill patients.

Russell Murray director of the State Health Department's communicable disease control division, said he had received word of an unusually high incidence of the influenza-like illness in Central City.

Murray noted that Lincoln schools continued to be affected, but he said a check with several local industries turned up no unusual rates of absenteeism due to illness.

Murray said the health department is collecting samples for a test to determine the nature of the illness, but he said it would probably be mid-month before any results are received

He said such a disease is not considered epidemic unless 25% to 30% of a population is affected

On Tuesday, about one-fourth of the Lincoln Public Schools reported absentee rates of 10% or higher

The schools and their absentee rates included: Belmont, 11%; Clinton, 15%; Elliott, 17%; Everett Junior High, 13%; Hartley, 10%; Havelock, 10%; Lincoln High, 12.5%, McPhee, 11%; West Lincoln, 10%, and Whittier Junior High, 14%.

School officials said some of those figures appeared to be inflated by incidences of parents keeping healthy children home in hopes they might not contract the virus

Regents Receive Nominations For Chancellorships

University of Nebraska President D B Varner said Tuesday the NU Board of Regents has received lists of candidates for chancellorships on the NU Omaha and Medical Center campuses However, Varner said he expects the regents to take no action on either appointment at Saturday's board meeting.

An NU-Omaha search committee submitted a list of six candidates last month, Varner said, and he turned the list over to the regents.

Of the six names on the list, only one is a Nebraskan, Varner said.

A list of candidates for the medical center chancellorship was given the board last month.

Navy Grounds H46 Helicopters After 3 Crashes

Washington (AP) — The Navy has grounded all H46 helicopters pending investigation of three crashes which killed 14 Marines in the Far East, it said Tuesday.

Two of the Marine helicopters crashed at sea while operating off the helicopter carrier Tripoli in the Indian Ocean. Seven Marines lost their lives in these two crashes.

The Tripoli was sent into the Indian Ocean, along with nine other U S. Naval vessels, during the brief India-Pakistan War.

The naval task force never approached closer than several hundred miles to the war zone and is now off Ceylon.

The third helicopter crash involved a craft at the Air Force Base in Yokota, Japan in which seven Marines were killed.

Senator's Aide Sentenced To Prison, Fine

New York (UPI) — Robert T. Carson, former administrative assistant to U.S. Sen. Hiram Fong of Hawaii, was sentenced Tuesday to 18 months in federal prison and fined $5,000 for participating in a bribery scheme to quash several stock-fraud indictments.

Carson was convicted in November of conspiracy to misuse the office of Fong and perjury involving a bribe of $25,000 to try to quash a federal prosecution in a stock fraud case. He was continued free on bail pending appeal.

Lie Detector Tests For Fire, Police Candidates Backed

Omaha (AP) — Initial successes probably mean that candidates for both fire and police department jobs will be given lie detector tests, Public Safety Director Al Pattavina said Tuesday.

"This doesn't mean that the candidates for jobs are bad people," he said. "But the polgraph tests reveal information that would not be known in other types of examination."

He said there are some personality traits which were found in testing police candidates that would make a person ineligible for either police or fire work.

Tests given candidates for recruit training have shown for instance, that one candidate disclosed he had been turned down for employment at an Omaha business because of back trouble. Another was found to have been wearing contact lenses for eye tests given by the city.

In other cases some behavior problems were found which did not appear on city of Omaha records, Pattavina said.

Stocks Finish Higher

New York (AP) — Stock market prices closed around their highs for the day Tuesday after recovering from an early decline.

The closing Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 2.93 to 892.23. At one point it was down more than two points.

Analysts attributed the early market slide to profit taking, which they said was only to be expected after the six-week post-Thanksgiving rally in the last part of 1971.

"The action of the market today showed a persistent movement toward the 900 level on the Dow average," said Monte Gordon, an analyst at Bache & Co. "Its ability to recover from its early drop was a sign of this."

In the news background, many major banks lowered their prime lending rate to 5% from 5½%, its lowest level in almost six years. Analysts said this further indication of the trend toward lower interest rates helped the market to advance.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks gained 21 to 56.44.

Big Board volume was 15.19 million shares, compared with 12.57 million shares Monday.

There were 837 advances and 590 declines out of 1,732 issues traded on the Big Board. The market had 28 new yearly highs and 4 new lows.

The Associated Press 60-stock average advanced 1.2 to 327.6, with industrials up 2.1, rails up .1, and utilities up .8.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index climbed .42 to 102.09.

There were 123 big blocks of 10,000 shares or more traded on the Big Board, compared with 88 Monday. The biggest was 200,000 shares of United Aircraft at 29¾, up ½.

Rails, chemicals, rubber issues and farm implements were mixed. All other stock categories were higher.

Volume leader on the Big Board was United Aircraft, up 1¾ at 31.

American Stock Exchange prices also climbed. The Amex price change index gained .08 to 25.89. Volume was 4.52 million shares compared with 3.79 million shares Monday. There were 556 advances and 367 declines out of 1,174 issues traded.

Corporate bonds, and governments were mixed

Legislation Prepared To Prevent Colts' Move

. . . RUMORS INFLUENCED DECISION

Baltimore (UPI) — Rep. Edward Garmatz, D-Md., said Tuesday he will introduce legislation later this month subjecting professional football asd baseball to anti-trust laws preventing the Colts from leaving Baltimore.

Garmatz said he was motivated by rumors that Baltimore's pro football team may be sold or moved.

"Baltimore fans have supported the Colts with enthusiasm and loyalty," he said. "Baltimore city and the entire state of Maryland are proud of this fiotball team and any attempt to reward that kind of loyalty by selling the team would be a disgrace and an outrage."

Garmatz said his legislation would not only prevent fraschises from being moved at will, but would also prevent "such nefarious owner practices as blacklisting and throttling player negotiations, charging excessively high prices to fans and blacking out TV."

"It is a shame that national sports must be disciplined and governed," Garmatz said, "but in light of the brash attitude and oppressive business practices of the owners of pro athletic teams, I believe it is high time that these businesses be subject to the anti-trust laws."

Owner Carroll Rosenbloom was quoted Monday as saying he had no firm offer for the Colts and indicated he really wasn't interested in selling. His son Steve, President of the Colts, said nothing had been decided about a possible move to Tampa, Fla., or using that city for summer practice site.

The city of Baltimore began countering the rumors this week with a pro-colt campaign.

One began a series outlining the history of the franchise. The article pointed out that the Colt franchise was awarded to Baltimore in 1953, at least partially as a settlement by the National Football League of a court suit initiated by a group of Baltimore fans.

Tuesday, the Greater Baltimore Committee, a group of the area's 100 largest busisesses and corporations, proposed a $50 to $100 million downtown sports complex to serve both the Colts and the baseball Orioles.

Both teams are unhappy with antiquated Memorial Stadium and the Colts have said they will not renew their lease when it expires at the end of next season.

Rosenbloom has also talked of moving the team out of Baltimore city to one of the surrounding suburban counties. The rumors aof a possible move to Tampa are not taken seriously by many who believe Rosenbloom can't get the 20 votes from other teams needed to move a team.

Missouri Nips Ohio, 78-76

Athens, Ohio (UPI) — Missouri led all the way Tuesday night and shot 73.2 per cent from the line to record a 78-76 victory over Ohio University and its eleventh win against one loss this season.

Led by John Brown and Greg Flaker, both with 20 points, Missouri broke open the game in the second half after a 35-34 halftime lead. With 11:04 left in the game, Missouri built up its lead to 59-43.

OU came back, however, and both teams traded buckets until with just 1:52 to go, Ohio University came to within three points, 74-71 and then stayed at that margin until Tom Corde made the game's final basket.

Corde led Ohio University, now 3-6, with 23 points.

Colorado Slips By Tulane

New Orleans (AP) — Colorado put on a strong comeback in the final 90 seconds of regulation play, then kept things in control in an overtime Tuesday night to score a 75-74 victory over Tulane.

Tulane held a 64-58 lead with 90 seconds left in regulation play, but costly turnovers and cold shooting allowed the Buffaloes to knot it up in the final seconds.

Colorado led during most of the five-minute overtime and allowed Tulane's Ricky Miller to drive in for a layup to cut the winning margin to one point as the clock ran out.

Majors Acknowledges Rice Interview For Head Coach

. . . 'A BEAUTIFUL POSITION'

Ames, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State football Coach Johnny Majors confirmed to The Associated Press Tuesday night that he has interviewed for the dual position of head football coach and athletic director at Rice University in Houston, Tex.

Majors stressed that Rice officials had instituted the action and had contacted him first.

"I am not an applicant for the job, and I am not pursuing the job because I am extremely pleased with the progress being made at Iowa State," Majors said.

Majors acknowledged he was in Houston Monday for the interview.

"It's a beautiful position — athletic director and head coach — and an individual owes it to his family and to himself to look into it when a position such as this is available," he said.

Majors is reportedly one of three top choices for the Rice post, where officials are seeking a successor to Bill Peterson, now head coach of the Houston Oilers who resigned at Rice in December.

"There may be some applicants for the job — in fact they have a lot of applicants," Majors said.

The other two top choices, reportedly, are Homer Rice, former head coach at Cincinnati and now athletic director at North Carolina, and Barry Switzer, an assistant coach at Oklahoma.

"They contacted me, and I've talked with them," Majors said. "It's a great school and tremendous people, but so are the people in Iowa.

"My people knew I was going to interview but I've never looked for a place to go since I've been at Iowa State. I've had several chances to leave, and I've never had any desire to leave unless it's a very fine opportunity.

"Whether it's an opportunity for me or not at Rice I haven't determined.

"I think I have a good opportunity at Iowa State. I'm pleased to be associated with them. I've had chances before to go back South and I didn't go. So I don't think it's ethical for people to use that against me when I'm recruiting."

Majors feels the Iowa State football program has great potential.

"I'm in a position where I'm interested in getting to where we can compete for the Big Eight championship."

In this week's Associated Press football poll, three Big Eight teams, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Colorado finished one-two-three respectively in national rankings.

Majors has been at Iowa State four years. Last season the Cyclones had one of their best records in the school's history.

They finished 8-4 and played in their first bowl game. Majors was voted the Big Eight Conference Coach of the Year in 1971.

Houston television station KHDU reported Tuesday that Majors was Rice's first choice for the positions, but turned down the school's offer.

Majors, however, denied that report.

"This is not true," Majors stressed. "Rice is a great school and they are such a fine institution that if they had offered me the job I would not shame them by saying if I had turned it down."

Maloney Inks Cardinal Pact

St Louis (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals signed Jim Maloney, former California Angeles and Cincinnati pitcher for the 1972 season Tuesday.

The 31-year-old righthander was given his unconditional release by the Angels Monday.

Hampered by hamstring injuries last season, Maloney had an 0-3 record in 13 Angel games and recorded a 5.10 ERA. The Cardinals said reports indicate Maloney's arm is sound.

Maloney played for Cincinnati from 1962-69. He won 23 games in 1963 and 20 in 1965.

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — Centerfielder Amos Otis and shortstop Fred Patek, the base-stealing duo that sparked Kansas City to its best season, have been named co-winners of the first annual Royals Player of the Year award, it was announced Tuesday.

The two, whose 101 stolen bases was the highest output in the American League since 1917, were chosen to share the award by sports writers and broadcasters who covered the Royals in 1971.

Nicklaus Laughs Off Report Of Attempted Colt Purchase

LOST TREE VILLAGE, Fla (AP) — Jack Nicklaus got a chuckle over being rumored as head of a syndicate trying to buy the Baltimore Colts for $23 million.

"Twenty-three million?" Nicklaus asked. "They must think I'm Arnold Palmer."

The report came out of Baltimore that Colt owner Carroll Rosenbloom was negotiating to peddle the National Football League team to a group including Nicklaus and the Chase Manhattan Bank.

"Hmm, $23 million, that's a lot of birdies," the 31-year-old golfing great said in a strong denial. "If somebody offered me a team for $23 million, I'd begin to choke. I'm still trying to get my first million . . . to keep anyway."

The Golden Bear was among the 78,000 persons who witnessed the Colts' 21-0 playoff loss Sunday to the Miami Dolphins. "I was a little divided," he said.

"I am a big Miami fan, but have a lot of friends in the Colt organization."

Nicklaus, however, admitted at his lakeside home that he had been—and still is—interested in the possibility of being a pro football owner.

"We have been thinking more about a possible expansion team," he said. "Our price was about $13 million less than the figure mentioned in the erroneous Colt rumor."

Nicklaus and furniture king Harry Manguarian are "still doing our homework" on possible NFL ownership. "Most of the talk has centered around Tampa, a good place for a pro team."

The double Grand Slam winner is a confessed football nut. He follows NFL news closely and can usually name off the entire starting lineup of his alma mater, Ohio State University.

"As far as being an owner," he said, "it's like climbing a tree. I'd love to climb the tree, but first I want to see how tall it is and how strong the branches are."

Newark, England (AP) — Colene Blanchard said in a letter of thanks to the Post Office that she and her mother, who live 90 miles apart, have written each other every day for 25 years and all but a few letters have been delivered promptly.

Jersey Standard Signs With Algeria

©The New York Times

New York — The Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) has signed a $400 million agreement with Algeria for crude oil deliveries starting in 1972, the company confirmed Tuesday.

The agreement is the second huge oil contract signed by Algeria and an American company in the last four weeks. The first was an $800 million deal with the Commonwealth Oil Refining Co. for crude oil and products deliveries over a 25-year period.

The Commonwealth deal caused arched eyebrows in the executive suites of the oil industry; the Jersey Standard contract is expected to raise them even higher.

Algeria is considered to be one of the more militant Arab nations. In recent years Algeria has nationalized both French and American companies, although paying compensation in all cases.

The Commonwealth contract was viewed as resulting from the request of a company desperately short of crude oil looking for a long-term source of supply from any source. Jersey Standard, however, is the world's largest oil company and the pinnacle of the international oil industry establishment.

One astute oil industry observer commented, "Jersey's willingness to deal with the Algerians, who have nationalized both French and American oil interests, must be seen as a seal of acquiescence if not approval of the actions of Algeria."

He added: "The difference between Commonwealth's doing business with the Algerians and Jersey's is as big or bigger than the difference between Commonwealth's $18.1 million earnings last year and Jersey's $1.3 billion."

The way was legally opened for both contracts on Dec. 15 when the national oil companies of France and Algeria signed an agreement ending a bitter dispute set off in February with the nationalization of French oil and gas interests in the North African country.

The nationalization measures had resulted in a boycott of Algerian oil by the French, cutting Algeria's production to about half the one-million-barrel-a-day level of 1970. Non-French companies were unwilling to touch the disputed oil because of the possibilities of legal action.

Under the final agreement between France and Algeria, hte French received official compensation for the nationalized properties, but the amount was canceled out by back taxes and the French may have to pay money to Algeria. The French companies will continue to operate in Algeria but under control of the government.

The Jersey Standard deal will involve an average of more than 100,000 barrels a day over a four-year period beginning in 1972 and increasing through 1975.

Non-Residents Blamed For Many Drug Woes

Omaha (AP) — Persons who come to Nebraska to traffic in drugs are causing headaches for law enforcement officials and endangering resident youngsters they recruit to help them, the head of the State Patrol's drug control division said Tuesday.

Lt. Wayne Rowe said 1,801 persons were arrested in Nebraska in 1971 for drug offenses and at least 425 were non-residents.

That figure does not show the number of those who were residing in the state, but were here only to traffic in drugs — that would probably increase the arrests of out-of-state residents to one-fourth of the total, Rowe estimated.

When someone involved in illicit drug trade comes to the state, Rowe said, he recruits local youths to help them, thus making the problem more serious.

Rowe also reported such drug merchants have a "beautiful scheme" for leaving the local person holding the bag.

After an accomplice in Nebraska has harvested and prepared marijuana, for example, the out-of-state connection has a local youth drive him to an unannounced destination in another state. The hitch: if the car is stopped by authorities, the out-of-stater says he was only hitching a ride.

The local youth is stuck, even if he wants to help the authorities, because he doesn't know where he was going, only following directions.

Rowe said part of the problem is out-of-staters who believe, mistakenly, that the state law making marijuana possession a misdemeanor applies to all drug convictions. It does not.

The patrol would support legislation categorizing marijuana with LSD, diet pills and other drugs where penalties are concerned.

Last year, the average age of males arrested in drug cases was 19, females 18.

The state confiscated 8,590 pounds of marijuana in 1971; 515 grams of hashish; 26,057 doses of hallucinogens; 110,524 millgrams of cocaine and 664,011 milligrams of heroin, enough for about 8,300 doses.

Suit Charges Bayer Aspirin Is Not Superior

Detroit (UPI) — A $1.5 million lawsuit has been filed in U.S. District Court charging the makers of Bayer aspirin with conspiring to deceive the public in claiming its aspirin is superior to other brands.

The suit, filed by Atty. John M. Toomey of Ann Arbor on behalf of his wife and all aspirin users, names as defendants Sterling Drugs Inc., maker of Bayer aspirin; the American Medical Association (AMA); the American Broadcasting Co.; Detroit Television Station WXYZ, and an unidentified advertising agency.

The suit charges that the AMA published false claims that Bayer aspirin is superior to other, less expensive brands of aspirin. The drug company, advertising agency and broadcasters are charged with publicizing the AMA claim "knowing them to be untrue."

Lobster Tails, Black Cod Have Most Mercury

(c) Washington Star

Washington — Among seafoods now on the market, large lobster tails — in the three-and four-pound range — and black cod are the most likely to contain mercury contamination, according to a survey of seafood.

In a study by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), large lobster tails, which usually are available only in restaurants and hotels, were found to contain up to 0.68 parts per million of mercury.

The Food and Drug Administration has not set any level formally but uses 0.5 ppm as a "safe" working guideline.

NOAA's survey also shows that in 72 samples, 8% of black cod, a fish found off the West Coast, exceeded the guideline. Its mercury count went up to 0.8 ppm. As a result, all black cod over five pounds should be tested prior to sale.

Soviets Report Major Advance In N-Program

©The New York Times

Moscow — The Soviet Union announced Tuesday a major advance in its nuclear energy program with the end of construction of the world's first large commercial fast-breeder reactor.

Installations of this type, producing more nuclear fuel than they consume, are expected to be the mainstay of atomic power generation by the year 2000.

In announcing the completion of the fast breeder, Izvestia, the government newspaper quoted D. Yurchenko, director of the power station, as having said:

"The completion of construction and installation of the station marks an important stage of this industrial experiment."

The 350,000-kilowatt-hour power plant, situated in the new town of Shevchenko on the desert coast of the Caspian Sea, will produce both commercial electricity and the energy needed to convert 30 million gallons of salt water from the Caspian Sea into fresh water.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's How to Work It

One letter simply stands for another in this example. A is used for the three L's X for the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A X Y D L B A A X R
to L O N G F E L L O W

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
